Youngstown Prosecutor Indicted

Today

Up in the Air-Ocean.
Rome Sends Bad News.
Bombs and the Heifer.
Ireland's Revenge.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MEN DEAL with two oceans, one above the other, of water and of air. In one, we die if submerged too long, in the other, fishes die.

For centuries men have been familiar with the ocean of water, inventing legends about it, diving into it for pearls, sailing over it for commerce, and recently men have explored it in diving bells.

NOW PROF. PICCARD, courageous scientist, takes his "diving bell" in the other direction, upward. In an airtight round ball, supplied with oxygen for artificial breathing, attached to a balloon, Prof. Piccard went up to investigate the stratosphere, near the top of our air-ocean.

He broke the record for height by 12,000 feet, going up 52,500 feet, and risking his life. If the balloon had not come down, he and his assistant, Charles Kipper, must have suffocated. They had a narrow escape as it was.

For the first two miles the scientific "climbing bell" went up through the layer of clouds, storms and changing temperatures, that lies close to the earth, at the "bottom" of our air-ocean.

Higher up the temperature fell to 135 degrees below zero, still "warm" as compared to absolute zero outside of our atmosphere, more than 400 degrees below zero.

In the upper air a wind blows steadily from the east caused by the earth's movement. No storms or clouds up there.

And far up the sun and stars shine in a sky jet black, due to the fact that there is no dust in that high atmosphere. Without dust, so plentiful on the "bottom" of the air, the sky would be always black, there would be no rainfall, and we should probably not be here.

Prof. Piccard will have interesting things to tell his fellow scientists who look upon his escape from death as a miracle.

No monument will be built to him, of course, because he only went up in the interest of science. If he had gone up to kill somebody or destroy a whole city, he would have a large monument.

NEWS FROM Rome continues bad. The fact that, for three months, the Pope has refused to receive an ambassador from the Fascist government, while Mussolini has refused to receive the nuncio sent by the Pope, indicates strained relations between the governments of Italy and the Vatican City.

Outbreaks against the Pope, and the Catholic religion, continue. A picture of Pope Pius was publicly trampled on by Fascist students, the Pope is publicly called a traitor by the mob, and Catholic books are burned.

ITALIAN TROOPS have been sent to protect the finest of the churches, in fear of incendiary outrages, such as have recently occurred in Madrid.

The savage, anti-Catholic demonstrations in Rome, like those in Madrid, come as a surprise to Europe, as well as to America.

For in Rome, as in Spain, at least 90 per cent of all those concerned in the riots are professing Catholics, brought up in Catholic schools.

IN SPAIN, the new government faces great difficulties, including disorganized finances. Inflation has reached the limit. Monarchists are accused of organizing wholesale exports of gold, to create panic. The law forbids taking out of Spain more than 5,000 pesetas, but the Republican finance minister says more than a billion pesetas have been exported.

Once, fighting men were most important in maintaining a government. Power seems to have shifted to fighting dollars, and they must be good dollars, recognized in every world market.

MR. WALKER, mayor of New York, gave a dinner to the young Army flying men and their officers, including Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, a splendid officer, commander of all the fliers.

It would have pleased you to see those hundreds of keen, eager young men, perfectly at home in the air, flying through all weather in close formation.

THE QUESTION arises in the mind of laymen: "Why close formation in the air?" In war, each pilot becomes a chief commander on his own account. Air formation, hundreds of planes close together, must offer an excellent target to exploding shells of anti-aircraft guns.

It is probably based on imitation of military formation on the earth, and it reminds you of early automobiles, that had dashboards in front, although there were no horses kicking up mud.

Two incidents connected with the airplane display in New York will make thoughtful men more thoughtful. Mrs. T. Colman du Pont had a valuable heifer on her farm at the edge of the Hudson. Six hundred Army planes came roaring along, and the young heifer dropped dead. The veterinary said: "Heart attack."

Later, over the city, an Army plane, making photographs by night, dropped exploding "bomb flares." Perfectly harmless, they create a bright light, and one, unusually powerful, broke a few window panes and shook a few houses. Thousands were terrified, traffic was stopped on Riverside drive, many ran out into the street.

WHAT WOULD happen to heifers and citizens' nerves if there were a real enemy airplane raid not dropping harmless flare bombs, but high explosives and poison gas on New

OHIO UTILITIES GRAFT LINKS 7 OTHERS

Former Officials to Face Trial as 'Power' Tools; Blackmail One Charge

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 29.—(AP.)—Ten indictments naming eight persons were returned today by a special grand jury which for a month has been investigating relations of public officials and utilities here.

Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas was named in six indictments charging bribery for making appointments, for intimidating an officer, for embezzlement of public moneys, for blackmailing the Central Savings and Loan Company, for blackmailing Harry Engle, former traction commissioner, and for obtaining a signature under false pretense.

OFFICIALS INVOLVED

One indictment named Albert Cooper, chairman of the Mahoning County Commissioners and chairman of the Ohio County Commissioners' Association; Griffith Jones, former county commissioner; Col. Wade Christy, former county commissioner and deputy adjutant general in Gov. Cooper's administration; Joseph Hannon and Thomas Ryan, real estate dealers, and Attorney Kedgwin Powell, former chief of police.

These men were indicted in connection with the sale of property to the county for a bridge approach.

The grand jury reported that "the Ohio Edison Company for a number of years has influenced certain officials and has committer certain offenses." The report recommends additional investigation by another grand jury with wider scope.

The prosecutor's office, the report said, has been controlled by utilities, and has shielded and protected various persons. It recommended that Prosecutor Thomas be removed as soon as possible.

VISITING JUDGES

The report was received by three visiting judges—Alfred Mack, of Cincinnati, H. W. Jewell, of Delaware and A. J. Pearson, of Cleveland—who were sent here to take charge of the case after a controversy between local Common Pleas judges and Prosecutor Thomas as to who should conduct the investigation.

A number of other actions growing out of the inquiry still are pending. Thomas has filed disbarment actions against Judges David G. Jenkins and J. H. C. Lyon, charging that they accepted favors from the power company. He also has a disbarment action against A. M. Henderson, who was appointed by the judges as a special investigator, but was dismissed by the visiting judges. The action charges that Henderson was appointed to a receivership position by Judge Lyon after he had paid a debt which the judge owed.

Balloon Men Go High Just to Find A Cake of Ice

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Two European scientists went up in a balloon and landed on a large cake of ice.

Sounds like the autobiography of a leg of lamb in a butcher shop.

Being in a hermetically sealed basket they saw nothing, heard nothing and said nothing. A voyage of discovery that compares favorably with the expedition of the three wise men of Gotham.

When they got back to earth they were surprised to learn that hens were still laying eggs.

So far as results are concerned it was an aerial Wickersham expedition. It proves that man can live in the clouds but he can't get his groceries there.

It may have been all right for scientific purposes. But 10 miles in the air is no place to yell:

"Lafayette, we are here."

But the trip is a good lesson to explorers, expeditions and visiting mayors.

Go anywhere you want. But have a rope tied around your waist so we can pull you back.

TEXAS GUINAN

Guinan Gang Gets in —For a Time—After Wordy Battle

HAVRE, France, May 29.—(INS.)—Assured of at least one night in France, Texas Guinan and her "gang of little girls" disembarked from the liner Paris this evening and proceeded to a hotel pending decision of the French government as to whether she will be able to remain for her projected music hall tour of France.

The entire aggregation will be kept under strict police surveillance, and if the government decides Miss Guinan's labor contract is not in order, the troupe will be sent back to the United States on the first available boat.

BATTLE IN MEDLEY

The debarkation took place after several hours of heated and voluble discussion between Miss Guinan and the immigration officers, conducted in a medley of

WOMEN URGED FOR CHURCH COUNCIL

Retiring Moderator Offers Resolution for Membership On High Presbyterian Body

Full membership for women on the General Council of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. was recommended to the General Assembly of the church, meeting in Syria Mosque, by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, retiring moderator, today.

Women, heretofore, have enjoyed only nominal membership on the council, Dr. Kerr said, in presenting that body's initial report to the assembly. He recommended that three women ultimately be elected at large to active membership. His recommendation will come up before the assembly for adoption.

Dr. Kerr also indorsed a program of spiritual emphasis for the church in presenting the initial reports of the General Council.

ANSWERS CRITICS

He asked for a renewal of emphasis on the place of the church in Christian life. The church, he said, has too long been subjected to superficial criticism. Dr. Kerr said:

"Sensational and secular preaching that avoids the central revelation of a supernatural gospel is treachery in such a day as this.

"No pronouncement, no authoritative message, no encyclical, can solve the social, industrial and moral problems of our day, but they can be solved through the application of Christian discipleship."

More rigid requirements for the ministry would result from ratifi-

Rector Offers Brides Birth Control Advice

TORONTO, Ontario, May 29.—(AP.)—The Rev. Canon Lawrence Skey, rector of St. Anne's Anglican Church, said yesterday he would give birth control information to any young woman of his parish about to be married.

Inspector David McKinney, of the morality department of the Toronto police force, said he would make no move in the matter unless forced to do so. Bishop James Sweeny, of the Toronto diocese, refused to comment.

'Bossy' Can't Close Schools for Circus

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 29.—(AP.)—School authorities today won a controversy with Mayor Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, who had sought to have a school holiday declared so the students might attend a circus. The mayor withdrew an order for police to close the school when told it would be punishable by fine and imprisonment.

Jean Norris Faces Removal as Judge

NEW YORK, Ma 29.—(AP.)—Referee Samuel Seabury has recommended removal of Magistrate Jean H. Norris, first of New York's two women magistrates, because "of her severity, her unjudicial conduct and her callous disregard of the rights of defendants in the Women's Court."

Ties, Robs Woman, Leaves Rose Bouquet

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 29.—(AP.)—A robber who entered the apartment of Mrs. Raymond J. Martin, tied her up with her maid and escaped with several thousand dollars' worth of jewels, but left a bouquet of roses on a table for her.

DO-X Plans Hop Over Sea Tonight

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 29.—(INS.)—The Do-X, giant German seaplane, plans to leave the African coast on its long-awaited flight to South America tonight, according to word received by the National Telegraph Bureau here today.

6 Women Fall 30 Feet in Car

Six women dropped 30 feet down an embankment in an auto today, got out of their car, into a bus and went on to their bridge game.

It happened on Clairton road at Option. Rounding a curve, the car, driven by Mrs. Harry Dull, of Connellsville, ripped through 60 yards of brush, down a 70-degree embankment and bounced along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks for 10 yards.

None of the women was hurt. In fact, a half hour later they were lunching in the home of Mrs. P. C. Dix, 2705 Broadway.

Injunction Denied On Town Hall Site

Court Refuses to Ban County's Purchase From Nicola.

The taxpayers' suit to restrain the County Commissioners from purchasing the Nicola property and erecting a town hall there, today was dismissed by Judge James R. Macfarlane, who refused to grant an injunction. Costs of the suit were placed on the petitioners.

Oliver K. Eaton, chief counsel for the taxpayers, announced the case would be appealed. He said he would file exceptions to the court's ruling within a few days.

The court held that:

1. The choice of location was a matter for the Board of County Commissioners and under the facts there is nothing to cause interference by the court.

2. The ordinance of February 18, 1931, amended the zoning ordinance and the erection of a public auditorium on the site is lawful.

3. The bill does not raise the question of the legality of the purchase of the one-foot strip.

4. The contract upon the Keefer tract is not unlawful.

Marie Dressler Bans Comic Film Shows

DEL MONTE, Cal., May 29.—(AP.)—Marie Dressler, maker of funny movies, rarely goes to shows, she said today, because:

"If performances are better than mine I feel uneasy—if they aren't, I'm bored."

Mine Victim Found, Second Feared Dead

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 29.—(AP.)—Rescue crews at the Delaware colliery of the Hudson Coal Company this morning removed the body of Amani Teiselio, 38, laborer, trapped by a slide yesterday. Faint hope is held that Thomas Rossi, 43, brother-in-law of Teiselio, will be rescued alive.

Last night workmen were within a few feet of the spot where he is trapped but another fall of rock and coal again placed his life in jeopardy. Fellow miners heard him whisper "Good-bye."

Suit Against Hemple, Opera Star, Quashed

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Johannes Adler's $50,000 damage suit against Frieda Hempel, former Metropolitan Opera star, was dismissed today because testimony was "vague and uncertain." Adler, a former Berlin teacher of voice, claimed he restored Mme. Hempel's voice.

Holdup Man Slain On Eve of Wedding

CHICAGO, May 29.—(AP.)—Today was to have been Ralph Cruikshank's wedding day. But he was slain last night with his own pistol by the owner of a gasoline station he tried to rob.

Tomorrow, Memorial Day, no editions of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will be published. A full account of Memorial Day activities will be contained in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

LIPSTICK CAP VICTIM DYING

The condition of John Ginkel, 7, of Freyburg, Clarion County, who swallowed a lipstick container which lodged in his lung, was reported as critical at Passavant Hospital today. Hospital attaches said he had very little rest during the night and is suffering from pneumonia.

The container, lodged in the pleural cavity, has not moved during the last 24 hours, according to the hospital report. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ginkel, swallowed the object while using it as a whistle.

Meanwhile, Billy Armitage, after a restful night, was still unconscious in his fourteenth day in the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington.

Physicians are waiting for his condition to improve sufficiently to permit them to operate for a blood clot on his brain, received when he was struck by an automobile in the Leechburg road, May 15.

Showers Predicted For Memorial Day

A continuation of the heat wave today with a probability of scattered showers on Memorial Day was the offering of the local weather bureau today. The mercury today was expected to equal, if not surpass, yesterday's high mark of 87 the season's record made May 18. Southerly winds are still sweeping the heat wave toward Pittsburgh.

Showers—not very many of them—were expected to cause some annoyance to picnickers and motorists tomorrow.

Soost Press Agent, Sends Man to Movie

Magistrate W. J. Soost turned press agent today by his own admission.

When Louis Donatelli, of Stayton avenue, was arraigned in Traffic Court on charges of running through a traffic light and driving without a license, Soost sentenced him to see a moving picture. Later, Soost explained that the manager of the theater had asked him for some publicity.

Driver Kills Self After Auto Wreck

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 29.—(AP.)—After his roadster crashed into another car today, Ivan Van Pin, 22, stepped behind his crumpled machine, placed a revolver to his temple and killed himself. He apparently believed a woman in the other car, knocked unconscious, whom he had sought to aid, had been killed.

10 ARRESTED IN EAST END RAID, TWO CONFESS

19-Year-Old Girl Escapes Through Window as Sister Is Trapped; Captured Later

Three girls and seven men were being held by police today following a raid on an alleged robbers' rendezvous at 6812 Fifth avenue extension.

Members of a police radio car squad battered in a kitchen door and surprised two of the men counting money, which, police said, they admitted obtaining in a street car hold-up at East Liverpool, O., last night.

Two of the seven men were identified in East End Police Court this morning as members of a gang which robbed the Atlantic and Pacific stores' warehouse of $6,300 in merchandise on May 16.

GIRL JUMPS FROM WINDOW

As the police raiders broke into the Fifth avenue house early today, one of the girls leaped from a window and escaped. She was captured later.

Acting Capt. Frank Shine, Lieut. W. J. Lavery and other officers, who searched the house and reported finding rubber gloves, blue and red bandanas, grease paint, goggles, blackjacks, revolvers and tear gas maces, together with several letters which, they said, indicate some of the suspects were implicated in other robberies here and in other cities.

Magistrate Charles Papale held the 10 for investigation.

Because of the age of the two girls, the entire case will be heard in Morals Court tomorrow morning.

Charles Willoughby, 21; George Bauman, 21, and Wilbur Black admitted the Ohio holdup, in which two iron boxes containing $225, the proceeds for the day from the East Liverpool-Chester (W. Va.) toll bridge, were stolen.

They also were held in connection with the robbery of Edward Lookman, 1153 Chislett street, an oil company collector, April 14, and stealing $306 from him.

DELIVERY OF 1,100 VOTE MACHINES ON TIME ASSURED

FACTORY READY FOR OUTPUT ON BIG SCALE

First Demonstrating Devices Promised Here by June 8, Rest Ahead of Schedule

By F. P. O'BRIEN
Staff Correspondent

BALTIMORE, May 29.—The first voting machine built by the Poole Engineering and Machine Company and its subcontractors was completed in the Poole plant here today.

Officials of the company declared that Allegheny County's order for 1,100 machines will be delivered by August 15, the delivery date in their contract with the County Commissioners, and probably before this date.

Demonstrating machines promised for June 8 will be delivered in Pittsburgh, according to S. Proctor Brady, president, and Dudley Shoemaker, vice president.

250 MEN AT WORK

Mass production of the machines will be under way this week, according to the Poole officials, and an inspection trip through the plant was convincing evidence that the officials know what they are talking about. There are 250 men at work.

The Poole officials confessed they have found the manufacture of voting machines to have been no bed of roses. Politics, court proceedings, engineering problems and gathering of the personnel to get under way with quantity production have been just a few of the difficulties. But now they are set for production and probably will deliver all of the machines ahead of time.

One division of the Poole plant has been turned over to the assembly of voting machines. Another section is being devoted exclusively to the fabrication of plates, levers and the rest of the 28,000 parts that go to make up one of these machines designed to make elections fraud proof.

OFFICIALS ON SCENE

Bases for more than 100 machines are lined up ready for the installation of the cabinets that will contain the complex recording device. Some of the machine bases are seven-party 40-candidate machines for delivery to Schuylkill County and some the nine-party 50-candidate machines for delivery to Allegheny county.

Shoemaker said that the parts in the storeroom today represent enough material for 50 machines and that shipments are being received daily from sub-contractors that will keep the plant supplied with material to keep up with production.

Gilbert C. Cloonan, head of the Allegheny County Elections Bureau, and George J. Schad, Jr., arrived at the Poole plant today to work out with engineers the details of printing and manufacture of the metal slugs which will be needed in setting up machines for use in local elections. They will remain here several days.

HELPING MIX THE BATTER—By Quin Hall

PINCHOT LOSES REDISTRICTING BATTLE

Governor Expected to Sign Bill in Order to Protect Rural Congress Districts

HARRISBURG, May 29.—Gov. Pinchot is expected to sign the conference bill on reapportionment and so protect the rural districts from victimization by the big cities.

If the bill is unsigned, and there are those who point out that he and his supporter, Joseph G. Grundy, are displeased with the measure, it would necessitate the election of 34 congressmen-at-large. This would mean that the 34 getting the highest poll in the state would be elected and that could be effected with a coalition of Philadelphia and several other congested areas, leaving the remainder of the state without representation.

BITTER AT DEFEAT

The bill left some bitterness with the Grundy and Pinchot support, particularly the former, disgruntled over their surrender to Gen. Edward Martin's group.

The fight did not touch Allegheny County, but centered about Bucks, Montgomery, Luzerne and Pike counties.

Western Pennsylvania was little effected, its districts appearing as follows: The Twenty-fourth district, Fayette and Somerset; Twenty-fifth, Greene and Washington; Twenty-sixth, Beaver, Butler and Lawrence; Twenty-seventh, Armstrong, Indiana, Jefferson and Cambria; Twenty-eighth, Westmoreland; Twenty-ninth, Crawford and Erie; Thirtieth, from the Twenty-first to the Twenty-seventh Wards of Pittsburgh, and the area lying north of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers not in the Thirty-fifth district.

NEARBY DISTRICTS

Thirty-first District—Boroughs and townships between Monongahela and Allegheny rivers, Springdale, Cheswick, Brackenridge and Tarentum boroughs; Harrison, Fawn, East Deer, Frazer and Springdale townships, and McKeesport. Thirty-second—From the First to Eleventh wards and the Fifteenth Ward. Thirty-third—Seventh, Eighth, Twelfth to Twentieth, excepting the Fifteenth, and the Twenty-eighth wards. Thirty-fourth—Twenty-ninth to Thirty-second wards; Duquesne, Clairton, and the boroughs and townships south of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers.

HARMONY MOVE LINKS COYNE, ARMSTRONG

Leaders of Rival Factions Seen as Running Mates For County Commissioners

By E. W. PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, May 29.—Senator James J. Coyne and County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong probably will be the organization candidates for county commissioners at the fall elections, it was understood today.

Considered unfriendly politically, they will run if they regard the wishes of W. L. Mellon and Mayor Charles H. Kline, it was reported.

A number of difficulties stand in the way of the ticket, however. Particularly important is the enmity of lieutenants and followers who have been at odds on political jobs and on battles of the past 10 years. Whether these differences can be patched up so that a harmonious army can be made out of conflicting factions is considered doubtful.

Some of the differences are local, with a few statewide. The distinction in the Legislature was only slightly marked, with Senators Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and Herman Brandt, of the Armstrong wing, voting with the state organization, while Coyne and Einstein, of the Kline wing, voted with Gov. Pinchot. In matters of local interest in the House, the representatives of both forces voted much alike.

A leading political figure explained that the Coyne-Armstrong ticket would be put through only when the factional leaders came to the realization that to make a strong showing, each must appreciate the need of support by the other.

Other harmony candidates are believed to include Joseph N. Mackrell, for register of wills, and C. J. McBride, for prothonotary.

Former Hoover Aide Sued by Brokerage

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Suit for $3,670 with interest since May 3 was filed yesterday against George E. Akerson, who resigned as secretary to President Hoover, by the stock exchange firm of F. B. Keech & Co.

A summons was granted by the Supreme Court on allegations that that Akerson had blocked service of papers in a "deliberate, willful and intentional" manner. He is now vice president of the Paramount-Publix Corporation.

Drake to Present Degree to McCahill

David I. McCahill, lawyer, businessman and horseman, is to be honored June 8 by Drake University, when he will be given the degree of doctor of laws.

McCahill is a graduate of the Des Moines institution, finishing the law school course in 1907 with the degree bachelor of laws. The following year he was graduated from Yale University with the degree of master of laws.

Trolley Derailed, Passenger Injured

Two automobiles and a truck were damaged and traffic was halted for more than half an hour when an outbound Hamilton avenue street car was derailed in Fifth avenue, near Miltenberger street, during the evening rush hour yesterday. Alice M. Beck, 36, of 6436 Aurelia street, a passenger, was bruised. She was treated at Mercy Hospital.

3 GIRLS, 7 MEN HELD IN RAID

Black as members of the gang that bound and gagged him before looting the place. They deny any part in the robbery.

Suspicions of two policemen in the East End radio scout car were aroused when they saw an automobile, reported as stolen, parked in front of the Fifth avenue house.

Circling the house, they saw a light in the kitchen, where, they said, Willoughby and Bauman were counting the money. Battering down the door, they rushed in, arrested the pair, and Peggy O'Neil.

Upstairs they found a brother of Willoughby—Claude, 19—in bed.

TRAPPED VIA TELEPHONE

As they were leaving, Lavery said, a telephone call came. He answered it. A voice asked:

"Have the cops gone yet?"

Lavery replied:

"Yeah. Come on up."

The police concealed themselves and arrested E. N. Hecklinger, 23, as he accepted the invitation and came to the house.

In Hecklinger's room at 6536 Thomas boulevard, they found his roommate, Ernest Kantner, 28. Hecklinger denied connection with the gang, saying he had called for Mary O'Neil, to whom he led police several blocks away.

Mary, twin of Peggy, told them she had leaped from a window while they were breaking into the Fifth avenue house.

The missing persons bureau today notified police that it had been asked to look for the O'Neil twins as runaways from their home in Meyersburg.

Black and his wife were arrested in their home at 719 North Beatty street, police said, following discovery of a letter referring to gang activities and containing Black's address.

East Liverpool police were to arrive here today to question the suspects about the holdup there last night.

Arrest of Milton J. Borland, 24, 5903 Penn avenue, by Lieut. Lavery at the home of Bauman, 315 Carver street, later in the day brought the total arrests to 10. Police reported confiscating a hypodermic needle and several capsules believed to contain morphine at the Black home, next door.

TEXAS CRASHES FRENCH GATES

French and English. Miss Guinan was vehement in her insistence that she was entitled to land, but when she saw the immigration men were admant she yelled in characteristic fashion:

"Hey, suckers! I've been thrown out of better places than this."

From the window of her hotel room, Texas looked out to see all she could of France and was greeted by a salvo of greetings from persons in the street. She was mad all over and bellowed:

"We're not lawbreakers. Everything's grand! We'll be in Paris tomorrow. Come and see us.

"I wouldn't think of breaking any French laws. They're entitled to have their laws. We've got plenty of them."

The French authorities were careful to point out that Miss Guinan was not being barred from the country personally, either because of her difficulties with prohibition agents in America or any other reason. She was held up solely because the labor contract which she obtained before leaving New York was not submitted to the ministry of labor for a final "O. K."

EXTRA SESSION CALL AWAITED

HARRISBURG, May 29.—(INS.)—Most protracted and unproductive of recent years, the one hundred and twenty-ninth session of the General Assembly today was history, and already speculation has begun as to when members of the Legislature will return here for the special session Gov. Pinchot is certain to call.

The Governor repeatedly had warned that he would call an extra session unless his utilities program was passed. His fair rate and all other bills were killed.

In a radio address last night, Pinchot asserted that the leaders of the Republican party in Pennsylvania give their allegiance first to the public utilities and to the party itself only so long as they can get from it what the utilities want.

HALL SITE SUIT DISMISSED

the $6,000,000 hall. There is pending in the Dauphin County courts, a suit seeking to set aside the approval by the State Secretary of Internal Affairs, the issuance of $1,500,000 county bonds to finance the purchase of the site.

This suit was filed in behalf of the Allegheny County Town Hall Association. It will be heard next week.

Judge Macfarlane in his opinion said:

"One objection raised by counsel is that the board as a whole was not sufficiently informed on values; did not submit the availability to engineers and did not have an appraisement; had no plan, and that the majority voted without bringing out the sources of their information, etc., at the meetings of the board.

CLEVELAND PARALLEL

"The Cleveland town hall is built on practically the same lot as the one under discussion. The majority members saw it. The fact that the lot is adequate answers the charge of ignorance. Before the resolution was passed the statement was made and the opinion given on the value. There was no possible reason for further discussion on the subject which had been talked of by the whole community, had filled columns of the newspapers and had been talked over at public hearings until the time had arrived when it was the duty of the commissioners to obey the mandate of the act and select a lot. Two of them voted in favor of a selection, the third voted in opposition, and neither in his answer or his testimony had advocated another location.

UPHOLDS PURCHASE

The court said it was not its duty to find the market value, and cited testimony of witnesses that the price was not excessive.

Concerning the purchase of the Keefer plot, instead of obtaining it by condemnation, the court said the commissioners acted to protect the price. The court holds the agreement proper.

The court holds the city approval ordinance is an amendment to the zoning ordinance; that the site is adequate, that the commissioners visited 25 sites, and the choice narrowed to Duquesne Garden and the Nicola property. He holds the price is not excessive and the hall will not be, or create, a nuisance.

Mrs. Pinchot Assails Hoover Charity View

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot asserted yesterday that the government was directly responsible for the citizen's welfare.

Speaking before the Pennsylvania Women's Trade Union League, she attacked the "laissez-faire" policy of government, saying it operated only for the benefit of the wealthy and privileged class. She assailed President Hoover's contention that "charity is the American system of handling demands of unemployment and depression."

Visitors Fleeing Club Raid Slide Down Rope

Proprietors and visitors left hurriedly by a rope suspended from a rear window of the third floor at 642 Penn avenue last night, when, dry agents report, they raided the Ramblers' Club.

Fred Williams, 21, was arrested while loading whisky into an automobile from a garage in the rear of 1608 Belhurst avenue last night, according to prohibition agents.

ITALY EXECUTES U.S. CITIZEN

ROME, May 29.—(INS.)—Condemned by his own confession, Michele Schirru, naturalized American citizen, was executed today at Braschi fortress for plotting against the life of Premier Mussolini.

Schirru, the first American ever to face a special military tribunal in Italy, was convicted and sentenced yesterday after a speedy trial.

The Italian-born anarchist found an ignominious death. He was bound to a chair, his back to the firing squad. The squad had been ordered to fire at the base of his spine.

Schirru told the court that he had contemplated assassinating the Premier, but later abandoned the plan.

When the death verdict was announced, the large crowd in the courtroom cheered lustily and sang the Fascist hymn.

GLENNA TO WED VARE SCION

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Miss Glenna Collett, five times women's national golf champion, is to marry Edwin H. Vare, Jr., of Philadelphia. Announcement is made by her mother, Mrs. George H. Collett, of Greenwich, Conn.

Vare is the son of Mrs. Edwin H. Vare and the late State Senator of Philadelphia. He is a nephew of William S. Vare, Republican leader of Philadelphia. He is a golfer, but his fiancee can beat him.

Miss Collett, a native of New Haven, Conn., but a resident of Providence, R. I., until her father's death three years ago, played golf first when 12 years old. Her father, George Collett, one-time amateur bicycle champion of the world, was her teacher.

She won the golf title in 1922, when 19 years old, and repeated in 1925, 1928, 1929 and 1930, setting a record for the event. Trying to win the British championship, she has been beaten twice by Miss Joyce Wethered.

Bank Liquidation Method Bill Signed

HARRISBURG, May 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday signed the bill of Representative Philip Sterling, Philadelphia, prescribing the method to be followed in either the liquidation or the reorganization of banks, trust companies and building and loan associations which have been taken over by the Secretary of Banking.

York's 6,000,000 people, and 60 billions of dollars?

Moral: Tell your congressman and two senators to vote for an adequate air fleet. We haven't got it yet.

The Irish "sweeps" gambling lottery enterprises worry the British. Ten million Britons, whole or part owners of tickets on the Irish sweepstakes, sent money to Ireland. Few will get anything back. At least $5,000,000 of English money goes to Ireland to help Irish hospitals, while British hospitals are in a bad way.

In old days Ireland sent money to London to be spent there by expatriated landlords.

Things are turned upside down when the Irish Free State sends little pieces of paper to England and brings back a million pounds of good English money.

PAYMENT OF the soldiers' bonus still worries some financial minds. One million, nine hundred and fifty-nine thousand men have applied for the bonus, and payments have passed $1,000,000,000, a good deal of money.

This was an excellent time to pay it out for immediate necessary distribution. It must be paid some time, money is cheap and government can borrow at low interest if it hasn't cash on hand. The best time to give money to the men is now when many need it.

BALLOONIST TELLS HOW EARTH LOOKED FROM 10 MILES UP

PICCARD LIKENS IT TO DISC IN COPPER HAZE

Predicts Oversea Flights Will Be Made in Few Hours By Way of 'Stratosphere'

Scientists Prove World Is Flat, Says Voliva

CHICAGO, May 29.—(AP.)—Wilbur Glen Voliva, overseer of the religious colony at Zion City, Ill., said today the flight of Prof. Auguste Piccard had confirmed his theory that the earth is flat.

Told that Prof. Piccard had said the earth, from high altitude, seemed "like a huge disc, with an upturned edge," Voliva said:

"That's fine business. It confirms my theory, just as it was confirmed on my recent trip 'around' the world."

By ALFRED TYRNAUER
International News Service.

OBER-GURGL, Austrian Tyrol, May 29.—A picture of the earth as a huge disc with an upturned edge, shrouded in a steaming coppery mist, was drawn today by Prof. Auguste Piccard, noted Swiss physicist, who, with his assistant, Charles Kipfer, looked down upon the terrestrial sphere from the dizzy height of nearly 10 miles.

Flights from Europe to America through the stratosphere "within a few hours" were envisioned for the near future by Prof. Piccard. He said:

"Stratosphere flights across the Atlantic are likely in the near future. Cruising speed in the stratosphere, owing to the absence of wind resistance, would easily be 400 miles an hour, while engines can be throttled down to 1,000 revolutions a minute.

AIR-PROOF CABINS

"Cabins, however, must be made air-proof and oxygen supplied by artificial means."

While Kipfer climbed up the glacier on which they landed to salvage the giant balloon and its aluminum gondola, for a careful calculation of the observations made while 50,000 feet above sea level, Prof. Piccard answered the question uppermost in the lay mind—what the earth looks like from the limitless heavens. Said the wiry scientist:

"At an altitude of 10 miles the earth is a marvelous sight.

TERRIFYING SIGHT

"Yet it is terrifying, too.

"As we rose, the earth seemed at times like a huge disc, with an upturned edge, rather than the globe that it really is.

"The bluish mist of the atmosphere grew red-tinged and the earth seemed to go into a copper-colored cloud. Then it all but disappeared in a haze."

The moon also presented an unusual picture, Prof. Piccard said, when viewed from the stratosphere, that almost pressure-less layer of space lying far above the atmospheric belt that sustains life upon the earth.

"The moon is as bright in the stratosphere during the daytime as it is when seen from the earth in the middle of the night.

COLD INTENSE

"But our most amazing discovery is that the temperature in the stratosphere, that stormless region far up in the skies, is more than 100 degrees below zero, centigrade (more than 148 degrees below zero Fahrenheit)."

Prof. Piccard said he discovered what appeared to be definite radioactivity from the stars, which he considered the most important result of the expedition.

He intimated he and Kipfer may make another ascent later in the year.

LAWYER'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE

She left him 20 times, after paying his tuition in law school and furnishing an office for the practice of his profession, Mrs. Gladys Cancelmi, 23, of Ross street, Carnegie, testifying in her divorce suit against Louis Cancelmi, Washington (Pa.) attorney.

Married in 1924 they separated in 1929, she testified, after her husband knocked her unconscious. Once, she said, he hit her with a copy of Blackstone and another time took a knife to bed and threatened to kill her.

Mrs. Cancelmi was represented by Attorney Kivie Wolfe. The case was uncontested.

Coolidge Approves Idea Of Federal Tax Revision

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 28.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Secretary Mellon has convincingly stated the approaching necessity of devising a tax system when business becomes normal to make national revenues more nearly depression-proof. Assessing taxes where they can best be borne is sound enough. The rich are necessarily the immediate source of the income taxes. But mixed up with our tax laws have been certain social theories for dispossessing the rich in the name of reform rather than for revenue.

Mr. Coolidge

Now, when we especially need surplus money for relief purposes, we find Treasury receipts greatly reduced. The vacillating income of persons and corporations does not supply certain sources of revenue. Taxes should provide a sure income and a balanced budget for the government without reference to social theories. It would be cheaper for the people of small incomes to pay one direct tax to the government than many indirect taxes on what they consume.

A broad base of income assessments enabled Great Britain to balance its recent budget with little increased taxes. If government is to be able to relieve future depressions and encourage business it must first provide a revenue system that will not itself be depressed and also demonstrate ability to pay its own bills from current receipts.

POPE'S RETURN TO EXILE SEEN IN STRIFE

Mussolini Reported Ready To Crush Violence as Vatican Protests Attacks

By GUIGIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

ROME, May 29.—The voluntary return of the Catholic Pontiff to virtual imprisonment in the Vatican City was feared here today unless the Italian government intervenes to quell attacks by Fascisti on students and church institutions.

Aroused by recent disorders and a fear that the bounds of the Lateran treaty may be violated, the Vatican today prepared to dispatch a note to the government, protesting against the threats to lives and property. It was understood Premier Mussolini was prepared to heed the church and to order personally the cessation of violence.

By the terms of the Lateran treaty signed in 1929, Pope Pius XI was assured the full personal protection given the King. Unless the government takes steps to prevent the recurrence of the attacks and the defilement of pictures of the Pontiff, His Holiness will again close the bronze gates, reopening the breach made in 1870 by Pius IX. The latter retired into the Vatican when he refused to accede to the demands of King Victor Emanuel that the church surrender its temporal possessions.

While Catholic circles considered the posibility of closing the gates, the entrances to the Holy See were guarded by Italian troops. Although reports yesterday that the Swiss Guard, historic bodyguard of the Pope, had been armed with rifles and ammunition were proved false, nevertheless they indicated the situation had reached a critical stage.

The government today posted plainclothesmen and police at churches and other buildings owned by Catholic organizations in Rome.

EARHART HERE, RESUMES HOP

A trip over the Allegheny Mountains in an autogiro didn't seem to bother Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flier, but her first complaint upon arrival at Bettis Field was about the weather. She said:

"Oh boy, it's hot."

Sunburned and tired, Miss Earhart spent last night in McKeesport and today was to take off in the queer looking plane for Columbus. She flew in yesterday from Newark, making stops at Reading, McConnellsburg and Johnstown. Miss Earhart plans to cross the continent in her autogiro.

PARK PROGRAM READY IN FOOD QUIZ; SECRET

Confers With Citizens on Procedure, Calls in County Sleuth, Indictment Clerk

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today definitely decided what course to pursue as a result of the investigation of city food contracts.

But what that course was he wouldn't say. After a second conference with the Citizens Committee, Park made this statement:

"We have definitely arrived at what we are going to do. The program is moving along satisfactorily. We are in entire harmony. To talk now would only show my hand.

"I will handle the matter in as efficient manner as I can. A definite announcement will probably be made Monday or Tuesday.

It was regarded as significant that during the conference John Weible, secretary to George W. Murren, chief of county detectives, was called in several times, bringing a number of documents. George Connor, indictment clerk, also visited the meeting, presumably upon request.

The committee which conferred with Park consisted of Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, president of Allegheny County League of Women Voters; L. M. Johnston, chairman of the joint committee of the league, and the Citizens' Committee; Attorneys Earl F. Reed, W. L. Dalzell and William R. Scott, and M. C. Conick, of Main & Co., which conducted the audit for the committee.

After the conference, Johnston repeated his statement that Park was offering the fullest co-operation and said a third meeting was scheduled for Monday.

PASTOR SCORES RULE OF VICE ON HILL

Terms Police Insincere in Proclaimed Campaign to Clean Up Near Schools

Ministers of the gospel are subject to open solicitation by women in the Hill district, the Rev. E. M. McFadden, of Pride and Crawford streets, said today.

Mr. McFadden, living within two blocks of the Franklin School, said police declarations against vice conditions near Hill schools were insincere and hypocritical and that conditions near the school were unimproved.

The outcry against vice near Hill schools was first raised by Mrs. Allena G. Stuhlfire, secretary of the Third Ward Board of School Visitors. Principal W. A. Laning, of the school, and Miss Anna M. Heldman, of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, joined in the protest, with the result that high police officials declared they would stamp out illegal activities near the schools.

LATEST PROTEST

Raids on disorderly houses, alleged speakeasies and "numbers" stations followed, and suspects were fined or discharged. The declaration today of Mr. McFadden that conditions are little, if any, improved, was the latest development in the movement of protest, first voiced in the Sun-Telegraph. Mr. McFadden said:

"Walking down Stevenson and Colwell streets the other day, I was accosted by strange women twice. Open solicitation on the streets continues, so far as I can see.

"I don't think the police have any real desire to clean up the district. Look at their failure to hold suspects for court in the last few days. I am constantly shocked at conditions allowed to exist near these schools. Constant contact with vice makes children, the voters of tomorrow, not immoral, but unmoral."

BLAMES MAYOR'S OFFICE

Replying to statements of Director of Public Safety James M. Clark that his criticisms of magisterial procedure should be made to Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, not to him, Sidney A. Teller, director of Irene Kaufmann Settlement, said today:

"Both the director and the magistrates are appointees of the Mayor. When you come right down to it, they both represent the same system. Laxness must be due to indifference in the Mayor's office."

Weather Conditions.

High pressure covers the southeastern states, and another high overlies the Northwest, with its center over Montana. The two highs are separated by relatively low pressure in the form of a trough, which extends from north of the Great Lakes southwestward to Mexico. As a result of this low barometer, cloudiness prevails over the Mississippi Valley states and showers and thunderstorms occurred yesterday and last night over much of that area. Temperature changes were mostly small, but generally towards rising. The weather is warm over the states east of the Mississippi River, while over the West moderately cool weather prevails.

River Conditions.

WORLD FLIERS HERE FOR TEST

Hope of shattering two world records on their proposed flight around the world, which is scheduled to begin within 10 days, was voiced by Hugh Herndon, Jr., youthful millionaire, and Clyde E. Pangborn, veteran stunt pilot, during a stopover at Bettis Field yesterday.

The fliers plan a non-stop flight to Moscow from Roosevelt Field, L. I. They hope to break the long-distance record flight now held by Coste and Bellonte, French trans-Atlantic fliers, and that of the Graf Zeppelin, which circled the world in 21 days.

The two aviators spent several hours at Bettis Field, testing the propeller of their Bellanca plane. The propeller was made by the Standard Steel Propeller Company, of Homestead.

Drys Raid Home, Then Buy Food for Hungry Family

A poverty-stricken Turtle Creek couple and their four children were provided with food by a squad of prohibition agents after they reported seizing a 100-gallon still and destroying 1,400 gallons of mash in a raid on their home, yesterday.

Frank Gisanti, who is crippled and ill, and his wife, a paralytic, and their four children were in the house at 596 Negley street, when the agents entered. The cupboard was bare save for a piece of stale bread, according to the agents.

Touched by the poverty of the family, the raiders "chipped in," went to a nearby grocery and purchased food. Gisanti was ordered to appear before a justice of the peace when physically able. The raid was made on a tip.

Other raids reported by agents were at 169 Provost road, Overbrook; 2508 Library road, Overbrook, and 6354 Station street.

2,000 ATTEND OPENING OF PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY

MUDGE VICTORY IN ELECTION THRILLS

Unexpected Contest For Moderator Marks First Session of Churchmen

By THE REV. DR. HERMAN C. WEBER.
Director, Canvass Department, General Council.

An audience of 2,000 massed in Syria Mosque yesterday to witness the proceedings in the opening of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. This is the one hundred forty-third annual session of the body. Its members are representatives of 10,000 Presbyterian churches, elected by presbyteries in every state and the territories.

Dr. Weber.

Nine hundred commissioners registered for the opening session out of 924 eligible. One commissioner from Utah died on his journey and another was seriously injured in an automobile accident in Nebraska.

The important event of the opening session was the election of a moderator to succeed the Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Church, Pittsburgh. Another Pennsylvanian, the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, of Philadelphia, for 10 years the stated clerk of the assembly, had been widely mentioned for the office and was expected to be elected by acclamation.

CONTEST DEVELOPS

At the last moment, however, a sizable group in the assembly unexpectedly presented the name of the Rev. Dr. David DeForest Burrell, of Williamsport, Pa., and gave the galleries the thrill of a contest for the office. The Rev. Dr. George N. Luccock, of Wooster, O., nominated Dr. Mudge and the Rev. Mark A. Matthews, LL. D., a former moderator of the church, seconded the nomination. The Rev. Thomas L. Coyle, of Milton, Pa., an unabashed young commissioner, presented Dr. Burrell's name, which was seconded by the Rev. Dr. John H. Lamb, of Lawton, Okla. Dr. Mudge was elected, 519 to 379.

WORK DIVIDED

The assembly constituted itself into a series of committees of 22 members each, to whom all of the business of the assembly will be referred. Many overtures and memorials, as well as formal reports of its boards and other agencies, have been placed in the clerk's hands and these will occupy the attention of the committees over the week-end and lead to proposals which will be debated on the floor as they are presented.

A bronze tablet will be dedicated Sunday morning in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, to the memory of the Rev. Dr. Elisha P. Swift. Dr. Swift was the founder of the Board of Foreign Missions when he was pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speer will speak at the services, and the dedicatory prayer will be offered by the Rev. Dr. James A. Kelso, president of the Western Theological Seminary, of which Dr. Swift was a joint founder.

At the evening service the Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews, of the First Presbyterian Church of Seattle, Wash., will speak. The Rev. James Black will assist in the service. The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton will be in charge of the services throughout the day.

JEWISH COUNCIL MEETS SUNDAY

The sixth annual convention of the National Council for Jewish Education will open at the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, Sunday at 10 a. m., with an address by Dr. Alexander M. Dushkin, executive director, Board of Jewish Education, Chicago.

Israel S. Chipkin, of New York, will preside at the meeting.

Dr. Leo L. Honor, of Chicago, will conduct the afternoon session, which will include addresses by Rabbi Marvin Nathan, Louis Hurwich, of Boston; Dr. Julius B. Maller, of Cincinnati, and Dr. Eliezer Rieger, of Chicago.

The evening session will be held in Rodef Shalom Temple, with Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson presiding. Speakers are to include Dr. Solomon Lowenstein, New York, and Dr. Jacob S. Golub, Cincinnati.

'The Triune God' Subject of Sermon

"The Triune God" will be discussed at both services Sunday in Zion's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Thirty-seventh and Bandera streets. The Rev. Carl Graham is pastor of the church.

Heinroth to Omit Saturday Recital

The usual Saturday afternoon organ recital by Dr. Charles Heinroth in Carnegie Music Hall, Oakland, will be omitted tomorrow because of Memorial Day.

PIMA INDIANS AT ASSEMBLY

Full-blooded Pima Indians are among delegates attending the forty-third General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, which opened in Syria Mosque yesterday. The delegates have traveled more than 2,000 miles to attend.

From Sacaton, Ariz., comes the Rev. Dirk Lay, pastor of the Pima First Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Edward Jackson, assistant to Dr. Kirk, and Johnson McAfee, elder of the church.

The Pima church is located on a reservation 60 miles long and 12 miles wide, along the Gila River. It is situated between Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz. The church enjoys a membership of 449 members, and there are more than 5,000 members of the Pima tribe scattered throughout the country.

SINGERS AID REVIVAL

Evangelistic services will be continued Sunday at the First Baptist Church of Sharpsburg. Dr. Loen Tucker, evangelist, who has been conducting the meetings, brings a group of six musicians. Three services have been planned for Sunday.

At the evening service Dr. Tucker will speak on "Broadcasting Through an Eagle Radio." The party will present radio broadcasts throughout next week.

FORMER PASTOR TO SPEAK AT MANCHESTER

Builder of North Side Church Here as Delegate To the General Assembly

The Rev. Dr. A. Greene, retired, of Newark, O., here in connection with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, will be the guests speaker Sunday in the Manchester Presbyterian Church, Chateau and North Franklin streets.

Dr. Greene is a former pastor of the Manchester church, and it was during his pastorate that the present Manchester church was erected.

His morning subject will be "Memorials to the Captain of Our Salvation by the Grand Army of His Kingdom."

After leaving Pittsburgh Dr. Greene was pastor for eight years in Newark, O., and for 10 years pastor of the Poplar Street Presbyterian Church in Cincinnati. Here he developed a week-day Bible school of 1,200 pupils. At the evening service Dr. Greene will speak on "The Life More Abundant." At this service Michael Dolan, of Butler, will sing.

Salvation Army Heads Speak Here

Commissioner and Mrs. John McMillan, eastern territorial commanders of the Salvation Army, will be the speakers Sunday at two services in the Salvation Army headquarters, 425 Second avenue. They will address a morning meeting at 10:30 o'clock, and a salvation service at 7:45 p. m. They will be supported by Lieut. Col. and Mrs. C. B. Campbell, heads of the Western Pennsylvania division.

Mr. McMillan

Butler St. Church To Hear Dawber

"The Song of the Lord" will be the morning subject of the Rev. Samuel Hill, of the Butler Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Fortieth and Butler streets. At the evening service the Rev. Dr. N. A. Dawber, superintendent of the department of rural work of the Board of Home Missions, will be the speaker.

YOUTH UPHELD BY EDUCATOR

A defense of youth was voiced by the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, president of Marysville College, Marysville, Md., in an address at the young peoples meeting in Syria Mosque last night under the auspices of the Co-operative Council of Young People's Work. Dr. Lloyd, a former resident of Pittsburgh, said:

"The older generation has always been perplexed by the younger generation. We are perplexed because youth is perplexing, and we are perplexed also because it is difficult to see through the eyes of youth."

PULPITS HERE TO BE FILLED BY VISITORS

Churches of District Host To Pastors Attending General Assembly Meet

Pastors attending the Presbyterian General Assembly here this week have been assigned to pulpits throughout the district for Sunday services. Assignments have been made to cover Presbyterian, United Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and other denominations.

Most of the Presbyterian churches of the district will be hosts to the guest pastors Sunday. The newly elected moderator, the Rev. Dr. Louis Seymour Mudge, will speak at the morning services of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, retiring moderator, is pastor.

West Newton Road Patrol Announced

The Pittsburgh Motor Club has been notified that members of the highway patrol are to be stationed at the intersection of state routes 31 and 51 between West Newton and Monongahela, with instructions to enforce observation of "Stop" signs. Additional warning signals also are to be placed at the intersection. The Motor Club had requested Secretary S. S. Lewis of the State Highway Department for relief from traffic danger at the junction.

Sunday Program At Homestead Park

The Rev. L. W. Rupp, of the Messiah Lutheran Church of Homestead Park, will speak Sunday morning on "The New Birth." The service will also inaugurate the local building fund and Thiel College campaign program being carried out simultaneously by all congregations of the Pittsburgh Synod.

U. P. ASSEMBLY ASKS PRAYERS FOR RELIEF

Depression, Other Economic Ills Cited to Hoover; Unity Report Draws Fire

By REV. JOHN E. SIMPSON

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 29.—The seventy-third annual assembly of the United Presbyterian Church today received a resolution calling on President Hoover to set aside a national day of prayer to cure "starvation, the depression and other evils."

The resolution, submitted by Dr. T. C. Pollock, Philadelphia, asserted that "America's condition is due to the displeasure of God over the manner in which Americans are living."

UNITY OPPOSED

The first fire of the assembly was brought out by report on union with other Presbyterian and Reform churches, read by Dr. W. J. Reid, of Pittsburgh, who urged the continuance of the committee with instructions to co-operate in drafting a basis of union to submit to the next assembly.

Dr. E. M. Milligan, manager of the Board of Publication, Pittsburgh, led the opposition, basing it on the dissent from the historic Westminster confession in 1923 by 1,200 Presbyterian clergymen in the Auburn affirmation. Dr. Milligan admitted, however, he too had dissented from the Westminster divine in a book of his own writing a few years ago.

REPORT TO CARRY

This admission was brought out by Dr. Pollock from the floor. Discussion was resumed this morning, and it seems likely that the report will carry by a large majority.

Prof. M. A. Quayyan Daskawi, commissioner from the native church, Rawalpindi, India, closed a popular session last night on foreign missions. He used excellent English—his was an outstanding address of the assembly.

MUDGE NAMES CHURCH AIDES

Chessman A. Herrick, president of Girard College, Philadelphia, was named vice moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church as one of the first official acts of the new moderator, Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, of Philadelphia, who is stated clerk.

The appointment of many standing committees also was announced by Dr. Mudge. The Rev. Mark A. Matthews, of Seattle, Wash., was named chairman of the committee on polity, and the Rev. George W. Luccock, of Berea, Ky., chairman of the committee on bills and overtures. Other committee appointments were:

National Missions—Herbert Booth Smith, Los Angeles.

Foreign Missions—The Rev. W. W. White, New York.

Christian Education—The Rev. John E. Wishart, San Anselmo, Cal.

Pensions—Dr. David De Forest Burrell, Williamsport, Pa.

Theological Seminaries—Robert W. Labaree, Lincoln University, Pa.

Finance—Judge Royal R. Watkins, Dallas, Tex.

Mileage—David Styer, Bordentown, N. J.

Leave of Absence—Rev. L. Carmon Ball, Huron, S. D.

Synodical Records—The Rev. H. L. McCroery, Charlotte, N. C.

Nominations of Members of General Council—The Moderator.

Nomination of Members of Permanent Judicial Commission—The Rev. W. Clyde Howard, Chicago.

Resolutions of Thanks—The Rev. William H. Hopkins, Albany, N. Y.

Retail Shoe Dealers Hear Pitt Educator

Miss Grace Ely, of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Pittsburgh, discussed summer styles at the last monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh Retail Shoe Dealers Association until fall. She stressed the influence of the French Colonial Exposition in Paris last week on shoes as a part of the costume ensemble. Dr. Schultz, president of the Chiropodist Association, and Dr. Styles, of Kansas City, Mo., noted Orthopedic surgeon, also spoke.

cation of an amendment to a constitutional amendment of 1893, which was in the hands of the committee on overtures and bills today.

The present system permits presbyteries to license for one year unordained persons who feel qualified to preach. After four years, if the licensee shows qualifications for the ministry, presbyteries are permitted to ordain him. The proposed amendment would set up more rigid requirements.

The amendment was introduced at the 1930 assembly. It has since been approved by a large majority of the presbyteries.

MERGER TO FORE

Organic union of the five largest Presbyterian churches and the Reformed bodies, already tentatively approved, was foremost among the business matters to be presented late today to the assembly.

Churches in the proposed union are the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., Presbyterian Church U. S., the United Presbyterian Church of North America, the Reformed Church of America and the Reformed Church U. S.

With the election of the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, of Philadelphia, as moderator, over unexpected opposition yesterday the way was cleared for the active business of the annual conclave of the Presbyterians, which has attracted more than 2,000 persons to Pittsburgh from all parts of the country.

SPIRITUAL VALUES

Speaking briefly following his election, Moderator Mudge made a plea for a united and harmonious assembly. He declared that the assembly has neither theological problems nor ethical problems to distract from consideration of the spiritual values of the assembly.

There was an undercurrent of feeling that birth control may not be discussed during the present session. It was believed that the two overtures demanding a severance of relations with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, which has indorsed birth control, will be blocked, although it is known there is a strong feeling against the council. Some of the commissioners, it was said, feel they have nothing to gain by continuance of membership.

Similar action has been proposed to the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church which convened yesterday at Montreat, N. C.

ELECTION OF DR. MUDGE

The election of the new moderator was the outstanding business of the assembly which was opened by the Rev. Dr Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church. The name of Dr. Mudge was placed in nomination by the Rev. Dr. George N. Luccock, of Bera, Ky., who declared it was the desire of the Presbyterian church that Dr. Mudge be elected by acclamation.

The applause which followed Dr. Luccock as he resumed his seat had scarcely subsided when the Rev. Thomas Law Coyle, of Milton, Pa., was on his feet placing the name of the Rev. Dr. David DeForrest Burrell, of Williamsport, in nomination. Mr. Coyle said the Presbyterian church was large enough to consider two men at this time and "that there was a growing desire on the part of many of the commissioners that a working pastor should be considered."

When the final vote showed the election of Dr Mudge by a vote of 519 to 379, Dr. Burrell moved that the election of Dr. Mudge be made unanimous.

Dr. Mudge will still retain his position as stated clerk, which he has held for the past 10 years.

One of the features of the sessions today was to be the presentation to the newly elected moderator of a gavel made from pieces of wood gathered from every Presbyterian mission field in the world. It was made by Harold A. McLean, Pittsburgh cabinet maker.

Assembly Highlights

Tragedy struck the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, according to reports received yesterday. The Rev. Dr. S. S. Parker, en route to Pittsburgh from his home in Brigham City, Utah, died and Elder John S. Brown, of Hydaburg, Wash., coming to Pittsburgh by motor, was injured in an accident. Dr. William Covert, of the general council, offered prayer in memory of Dr. Parker.

The new moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, comes from a long line of ministers. His father was a minister. Three of his brothers have been ordained in the Presbyterian church. One of his grandfathers was a minister and the other studied for the ministry but was forced to cease on account of a throat affliction. During the Revolutionary War, one of Moderator Mudge's ancestors rose to fame during the battle of Springfield, N. J. According to the story chronicled in a poem by Bret Harte during the height of the battle, the cotton wadding used in the old muzzle loaders at that time became exhausted. The want was supplied by the minister, who tore up the hymnals of his church and gave the torn pages to the soldiers.

One hundred elders, trained and organized by Dr. William P. Finney, of Philadelphia, served the sacrament during the observance of the Lord's Supper, a feature of the opening session of the General Assembly yesterday. All of the commissioners who occupied seats on the main auditorium floor of Syria Mosque were served.

The Rev. Dr. David Riddle Breed, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, who is father of the practice of preaching children's sermons from Presbyterian pulpits, is to be honored at a mass meeting of Pittsburgh children Sunday afternoon in the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. The board will present him with a scroll of greeting, and the children will give him a bouquet of roses. The latter presentation will be made by Margaret Jean MacGowan, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, pastor of the Bellefield Church.

A series of women's meetings in Shadyside Presbyterian Church today will bring together not only several hundred Pittsburgh women, but scores of visitors to the city for the general assembly. The program will be devoted to missions and messages will be given the meeting by mission workers from many foreign lands.

The Rev. Dr. Cheng Ching Yi, moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Christ in China, an interesting visitor to the general assembly in Syria Mosque, is of the opinion that the church in China is still at the beginning of an awakening to its responsibilities and has not yet fully realized the vastness of that

Two Children Rescued, 7 Routed in Squirrel Hill; Amusement Center Burns

Two women were burned and two firemen injured as fire destroyed Playaround, an amusement center on the Babcock boulevard, Ross Township, last night.

Anna Bernhart, 30, of Jacksonia street, and Enid Harris, 52, of Murray avenue, were in Allegheny General Hospital today suffering burns received as they ran from the burning building, according to hospital authorities.

Two volunteer firemen, Harry Yeckel, 42, and Oscar Reed, 38, both of Bauerstown, were cut by glass and bruised. They were treated by a physician and taken home.

Two children were rescued and seven other persons were routed when fire broke out last night in a brick duplex at 5911 Nicholson street, Squirrel Hill.

The flames, which started in the basement, were discovered by Helen Schulberg, 15, daughter of A. Schulberg, whose family occupies the first floor.

Dr. F. F. Cantor, of 5905 Nicholson street, and his brother-in-law, Harry Stein, rushed into the house and rescued Schulberg's younger children, Irving, 7, and Beverly, 4, who were asleep.

Nursery Rhyme Original Marks 90th Birthday

LONDON, May 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Hughes, who is said to be the Mary of the nursery rhyme "Mary Had a Little Lamb," celebrated her ninetieth birthday at her farm home at Llangollen, North Wales, yesterday. She received congratulations from children in all parts of the world.

"Mary," who is blind and suffers from chronic rheumatism, delights to relate how years ago her little lamb was turned out of school. The lamb had followed her from her father's farm two miles away.

The rhyme was written by Miss Sarah Buell, who was staying at the farm at the time.

HEARST NAMES AD DIRECTOR

NEW YORK, May 29.—(Universal)—John R. Hearst, vice president of International Magazine Company, Inc., announces the appointment of Earl H. McHugh as general advertising director of the Hearst magazines to succeed Eugene Forker, who recently was made publisher of the New York American.

Mr. McHugh, who has been general manager of the business magazine division of the International Magazine Company, has directed the advertising policies of its four important business papers: Motor, The American Druggist, the American Architect and Aromatics. His thorough knowledge of American industry, gained through his work in these fields, is expected to contribute a still closer relation between the Hearst magazines and business in general.

MEMORIAL DAY TRIBUTE HERE BEGINS

Pittsburgh Joins Nation In Honoring Soldier, Sailor Dead of All Wars

Pittsburgh and Allegheny County today joined the nation in the beginning of a three-day tribute to the memory of the soldiers and sailors of all wars.

Memorial Day had its origin in the order by Gen. John A. Logan, of Illinois, when commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, that an American flag should be placed on the grave of every soldier of the war on May 30.

The Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Pennsylvania, will join with the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, United Spanish War Veterans and American Legion in a joint service Saturday morning at Uniondale Cemetery No. 3 and Troy Hill Cemetery. The Rev. W. M. Bracken, Camp 198, S. U. V. C. W., will speak at the former, and the Rev. M. F. Bierbaum on Troy Hill.

Congressman Clyde Kelly will be the principal speaker at a community program in the Swissvale High School tonight at 8:15. Twenty-one church, patriotic and civic and fraternal organizations will participate.

The Mt. Lebanon Cemetery services will be at 11 a. m. Saturday, preceded by a parade, assembling at Key and West Liberty avenues. Judge D. P[illegible] Foster will be the speaker.

Gen. Alexander Hays Post No. 3, G. A. R., will form at the Courthouse at 8:45 a. m. Saturday, and, accompanied by Washington Infantry and Davis Star Camp, Sons of Veterans, march to Duquesne way to board automobiles for services in Allegheny Cemetery.

AUTOIST GETS TERM IN DEATH

Michael P. Schultz, sentenced a month ago to two years in the workhouse for an attack upon a girl, was sentenced yesterday to four months to two years in the workhouse, concurrent with his previous sentence, on his plea of no defense to voluntary manslaughter.

Visiting Judge Culver in Criminal Court pronounced the second sentence in connection with the death of Joseph Holden, 74, of 3110 Hazelhurst street, Brentwood, March 4. On the River road, near Hays, Schultz' automobile struck the car of Henry Schultz, no relation, and the latter car struck Holden, according to the testimony.

Polish Veterans To Place Wreaths

The placing of wreaths on Pittsburgh's war monuments will be a feature of tomorrow's sessions of the national convention of the Polish Army veterans of the United States Army, meeting here this week. The convention will close with a mass meeting on the South Side Sunday.

A memorial high mass at St. Adalbert's Catholic Church was celebrated yesterday in honor of the American Poles who served in the world war. Preceding the ceremony, the members of the association paraded over Carson street.

Hoover Wreaths for Roosevelt, Grant

NEW YORK, May 29.—(INS.)—Two memorial wreaths from President Hoover to be placed on the tombs of two former Presidents were to arrive here today. One wreath will be hung tomorrow on the grave of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and the other will be placed in the tomb of Gen. Grant.

Clara Bow, Interne in Love

Mystery Fund of $30,000 Linked in Romance With Dr. Pearson

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service.
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc. Reproduction in part or in whole prohibited.)

CHAPTER XI.

A little frightened at the thought of an operation, yet with the braveness which has characterized Clara throughout her entire life, she went to St. Vincent's Hospital on February 14, 1929, and had the offending appendix removed. An operation for appendicitis is not necessarily dangerous, yet Clara's stay in the hospital brought to her one of the most important events of her life.

In that hospital was a young interne named Dr. William Earl Pearson. He had heard that the motion picture actress, Clara Bow, was in a certain private room. He begged the interne who was assigned to Clara's case to take him to see her.

Clara, lying in bed, pale—her vivid red hair a contrast to the dainty pink negligee she wore—was introduced to the attractive young interne.

"Miss Bow," he murmured, "I have seen you on the screen and I admire you."

A love affair which lasted for two years came from that meeting in Clara's sick room in St. Vincent's Hospital. Clara, at first, was not interested in the young interne. She thought he was just another of the many men who sought to meet her. Later, she became greatly interested in him and Earl, as Clara called him, became an important factor in her life.

Doctor Had Wife

Tui Lorraine, who lived with Clara during the time of her romance with the young Texas doctor, says:

"Clara had no idea that Dr. Pearson was still friendly with his wife."

At any rate, Clara first admitted, then later denied, that in June of 1930 she paid a suit settlement of $30,000 to Mrs. Pearson. By a curious coincidence, Dr. Pearson left for Europe almost immediately afterward.

There was never a more shocked little girl in the world than Clara when his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Atwood Pearson, filed suit for divorce and threatened to name her as co-respondent.

"I have never had a love affair with a married man in my life," said Clara, "and when Earl and I were seeing each other, I thought he was definitely separated from his wife."

Tui Lorraine tells me at this time of Mrs. Pearson's attorneys getting in touch with her and of offering her a large amount of money if she would testify against Clara.

"Clara and I," said Miss Lorraine, "were not as friendly then as we had been, but I certainly would never testify against her. I immediately got in touch with the Paramount studio officials and told them of the suggestion."

Trust Fund Mystery

A trust fund had earlier been put aside by Clara and the Paramount company. She was depositing $500 a week, not a penny of which was to be touched until 1931. At the time Mrs. Pearson threatened to name Clara in her divorce suit the Paramount star's trust fund was dissolved.

There are those who believe that $30,000 of that money went to Mrs. Pearson to keep her from naming Clara as corespondent in her divorce suit.

Clara, who hates to hurt other people, even when they step on her and make her suffer, would never admit that she did pay this money to the doctor's wife and Mrs. Pearson denied having accepted any part of the money.

Clara said, one night when the Harry Richman romance was flourishing:

"You know of all the men in the world, I think doctors are the most fascinating. I don't know what it is, but there's something about them which attracts women. Once I was very much in love with a doctor. He represented all that was fine and good, but I know now I should never have permitted him to make love to me."

Dr. Pearson may be an important doctor now. I don't know where he is, or anything about him in fact, but I wonder if sometimes he doesn't feel a little bit conscience-stricken and if he doesn't wish that he had not added to the burden of this poor child whose tragedies have been accumulating with the years.

Tui, Clara Break

The Clara Bow-Tui Lorraine association broke up several years later when Miss Lorraine became Clara's stepmother. The two girls had been inseparable friends. Tui, who is an Australian and an actress, married Robert Bow, Clara's father.

The outside world was surprised, but Miss Lorraine said that she had been engaged to Mr. Bow for some months. You might think that Clara would feel annoyed at her father's marriage after his unfortunate experience with Idella Mowrey. Not Clara. She took Tui and the bridegroom into her Beverly Hills home and gave them a royal welcome.

But the old saying that two families cannot live under one roof came true in this case, so Robert Bow and his bride left Clara's home.

"I know," Mr. Bow told his daughter, "if I had some occupation I would be happier."

Mr. Bow knew the restaurant business and so, financed by Clara, he opened a cafe in Hollywood. Miss Lorraine acted as his cashier and for some months all went well. Then came the inevitable break that happens to so many May and December marriages and, with it, the crash of the restaurant business.

Loses Money

Many reasons were given why the restaurant business did not flourish. None of these is important to our story except for the fact that Clara lost what money she put into the business. She has always said it wasn't much. Just what the amount involved, neither Mr. Bow nor Clara have ever told.

With the separation of Tui Lorraine and Robert Bow, came the estrangement of the two girls who had been so close. Clara, who had never had a sister and always longed for one, missed her bosom friend who had filled a sister's place. It was easy, then, for a youny woman with Daisy De Voe's ingratiating ways to win Clara's complete confidence.

Miss De Voe, sensing the loneliness of Clara, who, in spite of being a motion picture star, has never been really happy, started playing upon her sympathy. She told Clara how much she admired her and how lucky she was to have such beautiful clothes and such jewels and how she understood her great loneliness.

It is a well-known fact that women, all of them, tell their troubles to their hair dressers. There is something about the intimacy of a beauty shop, or even in a visit from those who beautify, that makes confidences come easy.

Clara Bow takes the hairdresser home and lavishes upon her the affection no longer bestowed upon Tui Lorraine. In Monday's installment Miss Parson reveals the events leading upon to the "It" girl's greatest tragedy.

WESTINGHOUSE AD HEAD QUITS

The retirement of J. C. McQuiston, general advertising manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, effective Monday, was announced today. McQuiston has been in charge of Westinghouse advertising for 29 years. He will go on a cruise around the world, he said.

McQuiston is credited with contributing much to the growth of modern advertising. Truth in advertising and development of advertising and selling in harmony have been among his tenets.

Advertising policies of Radio Station KDKA were originally formed and directed by the retiring manager.

As president of the Association of National Advertisers, McQuiston came in personal contact with most of the large advertisers in the country. He has been responsible for the expenditure of millions of dollars in purchase of advertising.

Trade Body Backs Bill for Park Fund

Resolutions indorsing the House bill which provides for appropriation of $150,000 for state park developments were passed yesterday by the recreation committee of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. H. B. Scott, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, was notified of the action by E. T. Whiter, chairman of the recreation committee.

The bill provides that the money would be turned over to the state Department of Forests and Waters to be used for supervision, maintenance, improvement and acquisition of park land.

L. T. STEVENSON NAMED HEAD OF REALTORS

Pittsburgher Wins Third Place in Contest for Boosters of Home Towns

By EDWARD GOSS
Staff Correspondent.

BALTIMORE, May 29.—L. T. Stevenson, Pittsburgh real estate operator, was unanimously elected president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards here today at the concluding session of its twenty-fourth annual convention.

The election of Stevenson to succeed Harry S. Kissell, of Springfield, O., is considered by the Pittsburgh delegation as the greatest victory the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board ever scored at a national convention.

William H. Gardner, Winnipeg, Canada, was elected vice president. The new treasurer is Mary Levy, Chicago. Twenty-three directors also were elected.

The Pittsburgher's name was presented to the committee yesterday by J. W. Cree, Pr., president of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Association and a member of the Pittsburgh board.

The five-minute oratorical contest was won last night by Frank W. Robinson, of Long Beach, Cal. C. C. C. Stotler, who talked on the merits of Pittsburgh as a "home town," was third. Second place went to Peyton Norville, of Mobile, Ala.

Louis Brandt, Pittsburgh housing engineer, addressed the home builders' and subdividers' division on financing homes.

WOMAN SHOT, HUSBAND HELD

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., May 29.—Harry M. Brennon, a retired businessman, was being held by police today while his wife, Charlotte, 45, lies in the Brownsville General Hospital in a serious condition from a bullet wound in her abdomen.

Police said that Brennon, prostrated over financial reverses incurred in a bank failure and ill from a heart attack, shot his wife as she ministered to him at his bedside in their home at 209 Mill street last night.

The Brennon family has long been prominent in this city.

The shooting is said to have occurred while their daughter, Helen, 10, played in the sick-room.

Four Men Arrested On Loitering Charge

Four men were arrested today when they fled from Oakland police investigating a report that men were loitering near the loading platform of the Eagle Soda Water Company, Niagara street. They gave their names as Frank Tatamer, 30, 2230 Tustin street; Peter Bettem, 18, Orr street; John Mullen, 29, Brady street, and Andy Kosler, 18, 2229 Forbes street.

"I'M going, anyway"

THE modern Miss needs no "time out" for the days of month!

If you've ever taken Bayer Aspirin for a headache, you know how soon the pain subsides. It is just as effective in the relief of those pains peculiar to women!

Don't dedicate certain days of every month to suffering. It's old-fashioned. It's unnecessary. Bayer Aspirin will always enable you to carry on in comfort. Take enough to assure your complete comfort. If it is genuine aspirin it cannot possibly hurt you. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. It does not upset the stomach. It does nothing but stop the pain.

Headaches come at inconvenient times. So do colds. But a little Bayer Aspirin will always save the day. A throat so sore you can hardly swallow is made comfortable with one good gargle made from these tablets. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Rheumatism. Pains that once kept people home are forgotten half an hour after taking a few of these remarkable tablets. So are the little nagging aches that bring fatigue and "nerves" by day, or a sleepless night.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets cost so very little after all, that it doesn't pay to experiment with imitations!

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S SPEECH, INDIANAPOLIS DERBY ON AIR TOMORROW

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Changing of the national Memorial service from Gettysburg to Valley Forge, Pa., occupies the spotlight in holiday radio programs. KDKA and WJAS are to carry President Hoover's speech at 10:30 Saturday morning direct from the historical location where Gen. Washington and his comrades encountered many hardships in their struggle for freedom.

The last and perhaps most exciting bit of the Indianapolis Speedway derby is to be described for the WCAE audience by Graham McNamee, starting at 4:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Other highlights Memorial Day include a special edition of Frances Owen's "Wastebasket," a war episode on "Harbor Lights" and a speech by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

Two of the best known serenades in music literature are billed for Jessica Dragonette on WCAE at 8 o'clock tonight. First, Tosselli's "Serenade" and next Schubert's famous opus.

Ukelele Pat Haley, stage and radio star—a Pittsburgh boy who has fought his way to the top on merit alone—appears in WCAE studios at 11 o'clock tonight as guest artist with "Riggs and Moke, the Crazy Pair."

THE PENALTY of GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray Hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor incapable. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprisingly what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist—and get rid of the "age-penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you; if not, he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Kaufmann's and all Mayflower Drug Stores or your own druggist. —The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

BOGGS & BUHL
62ND

SALE BEGINS
TUESDAY JUNE 2ND
ADVANCE SELECTIONS
MONDAY JUNE 1ST . . .

You are cordially invited to come and participate in the greatest sale in the history of this store.

It is our greatest sale because it brings the largest and finest collection of style-right, new and desirable merchandise we have yet offered in a similar event. Not only that, but it brings you values that will surpass your fondest expectations. Prices for high quality apparel and homefurnishings that are 15% to 50% lower than identical qualities sold for in last year's Anniversary Sale.

We want to stress particularly to families in moderate circumstances the wisdom of buying now Furniture, Domestic and Oriental Rugs and Carpets, Draperies, Curtains, Lamps, Fine Comforts and Blankets, Porch Gliders, Kitchen Ranges and Cabinets, and such things which give many years of service. There is an opportunity now of owning these finer things at prices that, in all probability, will not buy even mediocre grades in the near future. Our system of Extended Charge Accounts makes it possible for you to buy these truly remarkable values and make payments over a long period of time.

Values are equally as thrilling in Men's, Women's and Children's Apparel of all kinds. The newest and smartest fashions the markets afford at Anniversary prices that are sensationally low.

We urge every family in the community to set aside a day or days to come to this great sale. Monday is Advance Selection Day when everyone is invited to come and give his or her critical inspection to these sale values. Remember our slogan for this sale—"Not a Single Dissatisfied Customer." Test it out for yourself.

Your Car Parked
Free of Charge

Come in your car, of course, with the happy assurance that you won't have to spend the best part of your time looking for a place to park. Simply drive up to our Diamond Street entrance, and hand your car over to an attendant. He will park it for you and return it when you are ready to leave. No trouble. No charge for this service.

NEW FILM REVIEWS; HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM COMMENT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

If you are wondering why that front window in the home of John B. Corris, in Singer place, Wilkinsburg, was broken the other day, we can tell you. Mr. Corris, who is vice president of Hope Natural Gas, glanced out the window and saw a rabbit nibbling at the budding vegetables in his garden. Now Mr. Corris is a mild-mannered man and generous to at least a T, but one thing he will not stand for is a rabbit in his garden. He grabbed the nearest object and tossed it at the rabbit. But he missed, and went into the adjoining room to get another weapon, which was, let us say, an old shoe. He came back, hurled the old shoe at the rabbit, and crash went the window. While he was out of the room Mrs. Corris had entered and, ignorant of the feud between her husband and the rabbit, had closed the window.

This would be a better world to live in if more attention were paid the meter readers. Take the cases of two readers for the Equitable Gas Company.

One of them, Willie Patsch, dropped into the Armour Company plant in Hamilton avenue to read the meter, just as he had read countless other meters. To reach the meter he had to climb a ladder. On the trip down he slipped, was caught on a meat hook and hung there, suspended, until rescuers arrived.

Then there was the new meter reader in the Sheraden district. He reported to his superiors that he couldn't read the meter in a certain house because a sign outside proclaimed the house had been quarantined. Investigation revealed that the sign was an advertising poster for a children's play "Mummy and the Mumps."

In the midst of public indignation against the city government we rise to point out that probably no city treats its pigeons better than this city does. We watched several squadrons of them a few days ago. They hopped from the tower of the Courthouse across Grant street to the window sill of an upper floor of the Frick Building. There they were fed. Employes of the American Bridge Company dropped pigeon feed generously to the birds.

The pigeons had their fill, then hopped back to the Courthouse tower, presumably for an after-dinner nap. The point is not only that these pigeons are fed, but that they live in a tower which is pointed out as one of the finest pieces of architecture in a tower way in the land. Perhaps it is true that we give contracts to high bidders, that places of ill repute flourish near schools, that ward chairmen are the real bosses of the city, but what municipality provides a better home for its pigeons? And just to prove that we think clearly and logically, we wish to say right now that this reminds us of Fred Allen's observation that the penguin flies backwards because it wants to see where it's been.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Last week we had quite an unusual murder out here (and its getting very hard to put on anything unusual in the way of a murder), a well known politician was killed and at first they could find no reason. Then it was discovered that he was on the verge of financing a preacher in establishing a radio broadcasting station. So now the murderer will surrender and show that his deed was to save the public and he will be acquitted with honors and his services will be in demand everywhere. The regret is that this hero didn't start his life's work earlier. Yours, WILL.

Joel McCrea Looms Like Star Timber in Films And Social World

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 29.—Stardom waits in the not-too-distant future for Joel McCrea, former Pomona College athlete, who is cutting quite a figure these days not only in the films but in Hollywood's social whirl.

Only a little bit removed from his discus-throwing days, the six-foot two leading man has been chosen for the second time to play opposite Constance Bennett. It will be in her next picture, "Salvaged," which Tay Garnett and Tom Buckingham wrote originally for Helen Twelvetrees.

Joel McCrea

After the Bennett picture, Joe returns to R-K-O, his home company, to be the star of "In the Mexican Quarter." The promotion will culminate one of the most rapid rises in recent cinema annals.

For the moment, the young actor is to be found at the Fox studio playing the romantic lead in Will Rogers' picture, "The Plutocrat."

LATEST GOSSIP

"Once in a Lifetime" was not so exaggerated at that. A prominent studio executive dictates letters to a male secretary, who in turn summons a pretty stenographer and redictates the letter from his shorthand. Presumably, she writes it. . . . Willard Huntington Wright (S. S. Van Dine) will finish the sixth and last of his Philo Vance stories this summer. . . . Any good football player on a local college team can always land a job in the studios. Jim Musick, fullback for University of Southern California, is to be found these days working in Jimmy Savvo's comedies at R-K-O. . . . The choice of John Boles for the Italian opera singer in "Strictly Dishonorable" has been freely criticized out here. In the meanwhile, John has engaged an Italian tutor to instruct him in the proper accent. . . . Fred Kohler's 17-year-old son is an even larger man than his father.

ON TO RENO

Not a day goes by but a Reno story is announced. F[illegible] enters the list with "Alimony Queens," by Verne E. Conley. The cast is to contain such well known people as Warner Baxter, Joan Bennett, Sally Eilers and Una Merkel. Paramount already has committed itself to "Road to Reno," with Buddy Rogers and that pretty minx, Carmen Barnes. First National plans "Merry Wives of Reno" with Loretta Young. And R. K. O. intends to kid the divorce racket in "Six Weeks in Reno," the new Bert Wheeler-Robert Woolsey comedy.

Joan Bennett

One of the few companies still silent is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and it would not surprise me if they didn't have a story in preparation. Several of the studios have adopted the practice of camouflaging plots under different titles, to keep competitors in the dark.

HIS SEVEREST CRITIC

Leave it to children to put parents in their place. Groucho Marx, the comedian, was planning a fourth birthday party for his daughter Miriam.

"May I come to the party?" he asked fondly.

"Oh, no," Miriam replied, "you'd scare the children."

Memorial to State Road Police Unveiled

HARRISBURG, May 29.—(AP.)—A stone and bronze memorial was unveiled yesterday at the State Highway Patrol Training School here in honor of 15 members of the patrol who have lost their lives in service to the state. Gov. Pinchot, speaking at the ceremony, said:

"Above all, we remember them as cheerful volunteers on safety's altar of sacrifice."

How well she knows the part she never plays,
How confident she is that she could walk
Upon the stage and face the mask-like gaze
Of silent crowds and never err or balk;

Night after night, she sees the star appear,
And reap the sweet applause that might be hers;
The months go by and lengthen to a year,
With not a break—and all her rancor stirs.

Ah, many of us stand the self-same way,
And vainly wait for fortune's soft caress;
Yet, someone has to fill the role we play—
And stardom is no proof of happiness;

So, learn your lines—no matter what the part—
Brace up and smile—and play it from the heart!

A Tougher Audience

Ship news photographers and reporters bunched about Al Trahan, the comedian, who broke into all the front pages recently, after giving a Command Performance for the British King. The monarch, you recall, then toasted Trahan by saying:

"That American comedian made me laugh."

Mr. Ziegfeld, who is readying his new "Follies," sent for Trahan as soon as he got off the liner.

"I never saw your act," said Flo. "How much salary do you want?"

"I want $4,000 a week," said Trehan without blinking an orb.

"You got $1,500 at the Palace some time ago," reminded Ziegfeld, "why do you want $4,000 now?"

"Because," said Trahan, "I made the King laugh."

"Yeah?" replied Ziegfeld. "Well, make me laugh, then maybe I'll consider you."

Gosh, Yes!

Billy Rose, the producer of "Crazy Quilt," was comforting a fellow producer the other night. The miserable man had just closed one of those costly flops and he was brooding.

"I know what I'll do to end this terrible pain in my head," he said, "I'll go right over to the Hudson River and jump right in!"

"Well, if you do," comforted Rose, "look before you leap, or you'll jump right into the middle of Arthur Hammerstein!"

By Way of Report

The new week-end fad—sailing on the Mauretania and sister ships, from New York down to Nassau and return—has made the Nassau shopkeepers very miserable.

It appears that shops must close on the Sabbath, which is the day the liners touch that port. Never before have so many tourists on one liner visited Nassau and the perfume, novelty, etc., store owners have begged, pleaded and wept to the Governer there to permit them to "grab all that sucker coin."

The Governor, however, is a very righteous fellow, and reminded them all that stores should close on the Sabbath.

The one place permitted to clean up a fortune on Sundays is "Dirty Dick's," a saloon.

Ouch!

They are swapping one about a Broadwayite who is better described as the type of guy who even makes a noise when he is buttoning his coat.

He went out to Hollywood to try his luck in the studios. The

RACKETEERS GROW UP IN ENRIGHT AND DAVIS FILM

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Public Enemy," much fussed about gangster film, premiered in the Davis last night and now is to be seen in both that theater and in the Enright.

It is an impressive spectacle of racketeers growing up from boyhood into full-length coffin size. Its takes its place with the best of the gangland drammers, and, for atmosphere and human interest, it tops them all.

The final fadeout is as terrific an episode as the movies have ever done. And it comes with the suddenness of a rap on the chin.

The story opens in the swinging-door era of 1909 and ends in the racket atmosphere of the present day. And the old preachment that crime doesn't pay is written all through it.

There is more sentiment, however, to this picture than to most of the other gang films that have come to our town. The family life of the youthful racketeering principals is emphasized and this gives the story many emotional touches. And the director has done a good job.

The cast is grand. James Cagney, in the lead role, does an effective characterization. Other prominent players include Edward Woods, Beryl Mercer, Leslie Fenton, Joan Blondell and Snitz Edwards.

The production succeeds in catching much of the foamy glory that was Chicago's and much of the brutal drama that is supposed to be Chicago's today.

LAWYER HAS LITTLE SECRET IN FULTON AND SHERIDAN

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Charles (B for Buddy and boyish) Rogers goes dramatic in "The Lawyer's Secret," the new film which opened yesterday in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square. But his dramatics are nothing to write home about.

He's seen as a rich youth, who plays dice and becomes involved in a murder. Then he runs around with a worried look while good old justice convicts an innocent sailor boy to hang.

Richard Arlen, who finally has escaped from cowboy life, plays the sailor. Mr. Arlen is one of numerous Hollywood actors who never worries about acting. He wears the costume that fits his particular role and always seems to be thinking: "Well, camera, here I am."

Clive Brook, ever intelligent and capable, contributes the best performance. He's the lawyer who has the secret. He knows who's guilty of the crime, but he won't tell. But right is triumphant when a couple other sailors take a day off from sailing and go sleuthing.

The plot is about as novel as a backyard garden in the springtime.

Jean Arthur and Fay Wray put in the clinches.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Tonight will be Gladys George night in the Alvin, where our Sharp players are showing a keen edge as cut-ups in the comedy, "She Couldn't Say No." Each performance of the week has been dedicated to some member of the company. Alice Ann Baker will be honored tomorrow afternoon, and all members of the company will take a final bow together at the night show.

Small Timer says there is a lot of foolish talk these days and that he is able to prove it.

Florenz Ziegfeld, whose new "Follies" will have its premiere in the Nixon Thursday evening, June 11, to remain nine days, is just continuing a habit. He considers Pgh. his lucky town and the Nix. his mascot. "Whoopee" and other Ziegfeldian successes made their debut here and then proceeded to make New York like getting the second look. The new eye-filler (it continues to "glorify the American girl") will have a cast including Helen Morgan, Harry Richman and that good-looker, Gladys Glad.

Small Timer says that when he steps out, and answers his wife's question by saying he is going "nowhere," she replies by stating "and I suppose you'll stop at nothing."

Tomorrow—Decoration Day—our various cinema palaces will be prepared to handle extra large patronage. Managers, expecting increased audiences, have booked what they believe to be strong attractions. Openings have occurred in several houses, and in most of the others the first view of the new films is presented today. The Harris change comes tomorrow. The Warner also presents its new bill on regular schedule for the first time Saturday, with a preliminary showing tonight, after the final show of the current program.

Small Timer assures his audience that a xylophonist may not be the last word in the entertainment line, but a zaney most likely is.

Villa-Royale Keeps Pettis and Walsh

A special Memorial Day floor for tomorrow has been arranged by the management of the Villa-Royale, Babcock boulevard. The holiday attraction will include Sammy Walsh, master of ceremonies, and the dance team of Clifford and Wayne. Jack Pettis' Orchestra will continue indefinitely as a headline attraction.

All City High School Orchestra and Band of Pittsburgh public schools gave their annual concert in Carnegie Music Hall last night under the direction of Lee M. Lockhart. The large audience was made up of friends of the players, but it might have been a revelation for most of our concert goers had they come and been surprised that children were making the music.

It is too late a day to say what cultural influences come to the community with such organized music instruction as we now have in our public schools. That has all been proven long ago. But we should know what excellent music our school children are learning, and how well they can play. Last night's program opened with a Beethoven symphony and it was a more than creditable performance. Tone, rhythm and enthusiasm were all there, and there were several outstanding soloists in this orchestra, notably the flutist, harpist, and some violinists.

The band, too, scored high with tone, prolonged phrases of the clarinets and trumpets being especially well played. More than ever, we can now urge upon our city the consideration of a spring festival, so that these players have their just opportunity to display their talents.

Two Ask Pardon In Bank Looting

WHEELING, W. Va., May 29.—(AP.)—William Leach and Thomas Ward, cashier and assistant, respectively, of a Benwood bank, who were accused of taking nearly $1,000,000 from the bank six years ago, have filed applications for pardons. They are serving 10 to 20 years in prison. The applications will be before the Pardon Board at its next meeting, probably in June.

You Must Call on Us

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

If the sun is shining Saturday and Sunday you are going to hitch up your old tin dobbin and rattle out into the country.

That's as it should be. Every family is entitled to all the fresh air it can breath during a stated period and outside of banking hours.

Every town and city has its public parks and golf courses. Which is fine when you consider we have almost reached that congested situation where a parking space and a load of hay looks like a government forest reservation.

As the city folks tour out into the country and go by the farmers most farmers are glad to see them go by. What the farmers fear is that you will stop and start light housekeeping on his domains.

It was not always thus in the days of western hospitality when you were welcome at any door. The tired traveler could stop at any farmhouse and get food, lodgings and drink.

But in those days the tourists didn't set fire to the barn, raid the vegetable garden and tear out an armful of the host's whiskers to place in a vase on the piano.

They do it now. We don't know why honesty is supposed to stop at the city limits. Put the average metropolitan family in a motor car, start them loose on the peaceful suburbs and they will do more damage in an afternoon than a wolf pack could do in a season.

Flowers, shrubs, beans, tomatoes and corn are all legal trophies for the week-end picnickers. A no trespassing sign is just another one of those amendment things.

They drop delicatessen into the well, throw rocks at the cows and consider that any lawn looks better when covered with pickle jars and well-thumbed paper plates.

We suggested last summer that when a city family invades a farm the weedbender should be qualified to return the visit, build a fire under the piano, take the carpets as souvenirs and use the bath tub for a silo.

Famous Prize Beauty Reveals Own Version Of Thrilling Romance

By CHARLOTTE NASH NIXON-NIRDLINGER

This is the fifth installment of Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger's own story of her romance and tragic marriage which began with her appearance in the national beauty pageant at Atlantic City.

The former "Miss St. Louis," acquitted in Nice, France, for the murder of her husband, tells today how she went to a fashionable school before marrying the wealthy theater magnate, and of the disillusionments that followed.

Her story in some respects contradicts the widely circulated reports that Nixon-Nirdlinger, spurred on by his "Pygmalion and Galatea" sent her to school to give her education and culture so that she could be his "ideal woman." Charlotte insists she decided to go to school on her own initiative. However, she impartially explains her own and the public versions of this remarkable episode of her dramatic life.

What has bothered me more than anything else during the past few days is the fact that I have been misunderstood—if not by my friends, then by the public. I insert this statement here because of an episode just before my marriage to Fred and also because of the flood of letters that have come into my cell.

Most of these letters, by the way, are cheering, encouraging, kind and sympathetic. They not only are from my own dear friends, but from those who were friends and acquaintances of Fred. They tell me how they suspected his unreasonable jealousy, how they sometimes even feared for me and felt like warning me—until it was too late. But there are other letters that bitterly condemn me. Some of them, in their mad injustice, seem the work of fanatics of the worst sort.

Today, as I began to write this article, I received a letter. It was accompanied by a vial, but the latter was intercepted by the prison authorities because it contained poison. The letter explained. I will only quote here a part of it:

"As one who loved and admired you in vain, and whose love is now turned to loathing, I send you this present in order to enable you to do justice to yourself because, as the world knows, the jury will not do justice. The court's acquittal, which will be pronounced, will not avenge the blood of the dead man."

Unsigned Letter

It was not signed. Now, I realize this was the work of a fanatic, yet it must—as all such fanatical letters usually do—reflect at least a section of popular opinion. I am not concerned with what the public thinks, yet it is terrible to feel that the world points an accusing finger when you know you have done the only thing there was to do.

But what I started to say was this: The public either has misjudged me through prejudice or has been misinformed about my life. Even my romance has been garbled and distorted so that I have looked like an ungrateful young woman. It was rumored, for instance, that Mr. Nixon-Nirdlinger tried to give me a chance to be educated and cultured by sending me to a fashionable school.

Now there are two sides to that. It is true that Fred had a rare faculty for seeing a defect in a woman and helping her to correct it. That was one reason why he was such a good theater man. In fact, I have heard that many actresses and motion picture stars praised him highly for the help he had been to them. He liked molding beauty to his own ideal.

It is also true that Fred seemed to want in the girl he loved "the most outstanding woman in the history of the world," as the reports said. He expressed that ideal to me once, but it is not so unusual when you think of it. Every man, I sometimes feel, wants superlative beauty and charm in his women. It is natural. It is another way that men choose to express their egotism. Such men think they have become victims of Cupid's darts. They are wrong. Usually they have been hit by the dart of pride. That I know is my experience, at least.

Flattered by Fred

Of course, at the age of 17 I naturally was flattered when Fred told me that, in finding me, he at last had found his ideal woman. Indeed, it was something of a thrilling surprise when he insisted upon insuring my dimples for $100,000. This sum, incidentally, was to insure my eyes, teeth and limbs. I was astonished at his action, but he said it was worth it. He said beauty was worth insuring above all else.

Still, he was not altogether satisfied. He wanted certain defects in my accent corrected. The rumors were that he thought I lacked poise and that my voice was such that in general he found it important to outline an extensive course of training for me.

He may have told friends that I needed poise and bearing, but he never told me.

It is true that he seemed obsessed with the idea of making me a world-beater with a salon and savants bowing before me. But it is not true that, to effect this end, he sent me to a private school. It was I who soon tired of the theatres and longed for the open and to play again. I wanted the companionship of other girls and a chance to improve my mind.

Thus it was—through his aid, of course—that I decided to go to a girls' university at National Park Seminary, at Forest Glen, Maryland, just outside of Washington. This was a lovely school, situated in a large glen of pine trees. How nice the girls were.

Evelyn Lederer, now Sue Carol, was there at the time. My dear roommate, who lived in Cleveland, and I have been friends ever since. We rode, swam, played basketball and all the things I loved to do. Fred wrote me once or twice each day. The gifts of fruits and flowers that were lavished on me turned my head. In fact, I am not surprised to learn that such gifts were the subject of conversation throughout the school.

Loves Sports

It has been said I was not exceedingly popular at the school. As to that I am not certain. True enough, I never was a girl's girl—whatever that is. As I have told you before my childhood was one spent with my brothers and with other boys. I loved, and still do, sports in preference to social affairs. In view of this, it is amusing to read the rumors that at the seminary I "developed a great flair for sports and became quite proficient with those she took up." Why, I don't mind boasting that I was quite proficient in most sports at the age of 12. It didn't take a seminary for girls to educate me in sports.

Another report was that while I liked sports I cared not at all for studies and that French always was beyond me. In contradiction to this let me say that I pride myself on speaking French quite well.

It was during one of his visits to the school that Fred asked me to marry him. I thought then that nothing could be more perfect—that my life would be a continuous dream of happiness. So one week-end, when I was stopping with friends in Washington, I eloped with Fred to Hagerstown, Md., and was married by the Methodist minister.

He insisted that we use fictitious names. At first I thought this was merely because he wanted to avoid publicity. But it was not until after we had been married—when it was too late—that I realized how horribly I had been duped into an illegal marriage!

TELL IT TO SALLY

Is a Divorcee Doomed to Insults From Men?

Do Gents Get Fresh with Divorced Ladies—as soon as they know they're divorced? Just because they are divorced?

"I'll say they do!" says Cissy. "They begin it just as soon as they find I've been married . . . although until they do find out, they treat me fine!"

How about you, Ex-Missis? What has your experience been since you lost the platinum shackle? Did the Big Boys try to edge in on you when they found you'd been a Missis? Or is there some other reason for Cissy's bad luck?

"My Dear Miss Martin:

"I have been a reader of your column for years, and at last I am asking you to help me . . . A few years ago I married the rottenest chaser any man could be. Naturally, I didn't find him out for some time, and when I did I was expecting a baby, so I hated to break up our home, and decided I would stick it out. But when, a month before the baby came, he gave me an awful beating, for no reason at all, I decided enough was plenty, and 'took the cure.' I asked nothing from him, not even doctor or hospital bills, and I gladly work to support my baby and myself.

"Now my problem is this: I am only 23 (my baby is now 2) and, like any young person, I try to have a good time—to go to dances, the theater, parties, and it isn't always convenient to go with a girl friend. So I accept invitations from men friends . . . But there hasn't been one single man whom I have met since my divorce, who hasn't tried to insult me, as soon as he found I'd been married. Young men, old men, married men and single men. They're all alike. And I never give anyone the impression that I am 'loose.' Quite the contrary. In fact, I am very reserved.

"As long as they don't know I've been divorced, they treat me with all due respect, but as soon as they know they begin to act as if I were some woman of the streets. Just tonight a boy I met some time ago asked to take me out. He knew I'd been married, and it was the same old story. I told him what I thought of him . . . and all his kind . . . and then went home and had a good cry. But crying doesn't help matters any, even if it does relieve my feelings.

"Do you think there are some men we don't think every divorcee is bad? I'm not the only one who has had this experience. I know several girls in the same boat, and I even had to leave one job because, when my employer found I'd been married, he began making advances. I'm just sick about it all. I'm young, and I do want friends, but not that kind.

"And please, don't think I am imaging all this. I'm not. Every one of these men has told me in plain words what he thought and meant. Please help me. You're the only one I know that I can confide in. I have no mother.

"CISSY."

Have I an answer to that? Yes, plenty of answer. But I'm not going to give it just now. I'm going to put it up to the boys. How about it, gentlemen—is Cissy's story true?

Do you take it for granted that a gal's a Loose Lady because she's shuffled off her Ball 'n' Chain, and treat her accordingly?

If so—why?

STAGE-SETTING FOR JUNE-:-'A Soft and Gentle Bride'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The play is ready, the costumes planned and lying now like delicate desserts, sherbets for the bridesmaids' frocks and snowy glace for the bride's, under the flying needles of smiling women, and the scenery is creaking into place. The chorus is practicing like a treeful of warblers out of big silver and pink and blue songbooks, singing "Here Comes the Bride" and "The Passionate Shepherd to His Love," "Oh, Promise Me" and "Love is Enough."

The bride bends over her hope-chest every day of her last month as a demoiselle like Pandora over the box, save that the bride's hopes and dreams are flying in instead of out, and settling like homing doves with the same soft swings that the choir-boys of her chorus have.

The play opens in June and puts on its pretty spectacle all over the country simultaneously—a wonderful thing.

There is pretty much worrying done over it, and the leading lady is afraid that she will forget her ONE line—"I do," just when she means it very much and is happy to say it.

The leading man! OH, I FORGOT. There IS one. And he will be there—and he will be all dressed up, too, in a special costume, and in a fine, delicate agony of nervousness. But no one will care what he wears, or notice him much—so he needn't be.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen's Offer Is Frowned on by Dicky.

There was something in Philip Veritzen's resonant voice as he spoke of the pleasure it would give him to plan a surprise for a child again, which, elusive, indistinct, yet had the effect of a tremolo stop in an organ strain, and which gave me the eerie feeling of suddenly seeing the door swing open into a long closed room.

His behavior to Noel since the announcement of the boy's betrothal to Mary had been such as to raise a doubt that the great dramatic producer had an emotion higher than self love and wounded pride. Though I had heard Lillian say he had been a devoted father before that old unfortunate college scandal of Noel's, and though he had lavished everything upon the boy in the time following his reconciliation, those things weighed little against the ingenious cruelty with which he had treated Noel since the failure of his hopes to win a royal alliance for his boy.

But something seemed to tell me that if he had been cruel and unjust to Noel he had been equally so to his own better instincts and I wondered if an emotion he had thought was crushed had not begun to show signs of reviving life.

My pulses quickened at the thought. If this were true, then my faint hope of bringing about a reconciliation between my employer and his son might not prove so fantastic a thing after all. Upon one thing I resolved. I should not jeopardize that hope by humoring my disinclination to let him have any part in Junior's Christmas. But for the sake, not only of peace but of appearance, I must make Dicky share the yielding. He was hardly in a position to object to any Christmas gift coming from Philip Veritzen. I said to myself with a grim little remembrance of Edith Fairfax's high-pitched, excited voice as she babbled gloatingly about the "most gorgeous Christmas gift" Dicky had sent her.

With the sensation of a poor swimmer jumping into water over his depth, I faced my employer, trying to invest my voice with the gratitude which his generous proposal merited.

"I can think of no lovelier plan," I said earnestly, "and if it rested with me, I should say, 'Thank you, go ahead,' even though I thought you far too generous. But you see this basement playroom is my husband's affair. He must have the final decision. However, we will let him know about it at once."

I ignored the protest which leaped to his eyes, kept him from voicing it by raising my voice and calling across the room to Dicky ostensibly busy with the laying out of the toy railroad tracks upon two big rugs. They were rugs so worn that I had been glad to replace them and send them down to keep the chill of the floor from the youthful engineers, who, I knew, would spend much of their time upon their knees before their idols.

"Oh! Dicky, will you please come here a minute?" and Dicky rose promptly and swung over to us.

"Mr. Veritzen has the most adorable plan for this, Dicky," I said in the most approved wifely coo, indicating the alcove platform. "He wants to plan it as a miniature theater and send out some men to transform it into one with drops and curtains and lights and wings."

"A theater!" Dicky growled. "What does a baby like Junior want with a theater? We rigged this up for him," he turned to Mr. Veritzen, "as a place where he could give what kids call shows with two or three pins for admission."

"But why not let me arrange it so that he will be able to charge ten pins, if he so wishes," Mr. Veritzen urged with unperturbed good humor.

"But the cost—I cannot permit you," Dicky began.

"My dear fellow, consider," My employer spread his hand expressively. "I am in the game. It would be an item certainly to a person who was not. But for me, it simply means for myself the delightful pastime of planning the thing, and then of utilizing material which I have on hand, and the time of a man or two drawing fat wages for very little work. It is nothing."

"Nevertheless," Dicky said firmly, "while of course I am deeply grateful for the offer—it isn't everybody who can have a miniature theater designed by a Veritzen in their home. I must insist on defraying any expense to which you may be put."

"You mean, of course, any cash expense, outside of the things I have mentioned, which I could not estimate, for they cost me nothing," Mr. Veritzen replied quickly. "Of course, if you insist, I will do that, although I warn you, I'm the worst bookkeeper in the world. Thank you so much for the opportunity you're giving me. Anything like this fascinates me. It's a Christmas gift to myself not to Junior."

I shot a furtive look at Dicky. Mr. Veritzen had so adroitly taken him at his word, while yielding no point of his own position, that I wondered what the outcome of the camouflaged but real controversy would be.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Pure Water Essential to Health

Dr. Copeland

Water is one of the essentials of life. Plants, animals and man cannot exist without this vital element.

Not all water is desirable. Even the ancients knew this. Though they realized that sickness often occurred after drinking certain water, they did not know why.

It is only within the past half century that accurate methods of testing water and purifying water have been devised. During this period of time it was discovered that certain diseases can be carried by contaminated water supplies.

Among the diseases that are carried by water are typhoid and paratyphoid fevers, cholera and dysentery. Fortunately, cholera is rarely seen in this country. The others have greatly decreased, but still occur.

The germs of these diseases enter the water supply with sewage. Sewage present in drinking water is very likely to lead to disease. It is imperative that such contamination be prevented.

Water containing no germs is clear, tasteless and odorless. It is a safe water to drink. It is assumed, of course, it does not contain any lead or an excess of other minerals or chemicals.

Though odors and taste in drinking water may be disagreeable, they are not always harmful. Frequently where the process of chlorination is used for purifying the water, there may be a peculiar taste to the water. Due to vegetative growths in and around the reservoir, the water may assume a peculiar taste and yet be perfectly safe to drink.

The water supplied to any well-regulated community is regularly inspected and subjected to rigid tests. Methods of purification, aeration and careful planning for abundance of supply, are responsible for the pure water of the civilized community.

The expense and energy expended in this direction have been more than repaid. The reduction in the death rate of certain diseases in all large cities can be attributed only to the control of the water supply.

CORRECT MANNERS

Planning for a Debutante

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have received an invitation to a debutante tea. Will you please advise me if it is necessary to send flowers or a gift? I am in no way related to the debutante. If one is obliged to send flowers, what kind of flowers and type of bouquet would you suggest?

2. You might tell me about dress and so forth. Would it be proper to wear a dress with sleeves above the elbows? If one wears a dress of this style, what length gloves should one wear?

3. Also, will you please tell me what is the proper salutation to make to the debutante?

MRS. G.

1. It is customary to send flowers for a debutante tea, flowers that most suggest youth and brightness, flowers that will most gracefully take their places as part of the decorative background for the debutante.

If you wish to send a corsage, gardenias are effective flowers to choose. Or a prim bouquet fashioned of rows and rows of delightful posies gathered about a central flower, such as a yellow rose or several white flowers.

2. Wear your dressiest afternoon clothes. An ensemble is always appropriate. If you wear a dress of the kind you suggest, wear gloves that as near as possible meet the sleeves.

3. Offer her your felicitations on her entrance into formal society.

She Has the Social Right

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A friend with whom I correspond met me one day and asked me if I would address her letters in this form: Mrs. Wm. Gerald Travis, which I declined to do. Recently I wrote her and addressed her letter to Mrs. William Gerald Travis. Kindly tell me which person is correct?

2. The same friend is in business and on her sign she has Mildred Green Travis. Is this sign proper? Since she is very young and has no title one would be under the impression she was MISS.

OLD FASHIONED.

1. Your friend has the social right to ask you to use whichever form of her name that she prefers, and we must always abide by this request. While I agree with you that the unabbreviated form is better, still neither you nor I would have the right to allow our preferences to take precedence over hers. She may have some reason for her request. You mustn't "decline," dear friend, to do as she requests.

2. Yes, this sign is proper, if she wishes to use this name for her business name. That, too, is a matter for her personal choice.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Bud to Make Her Bow on Nov. 25

Now that the "little season" is almost here with its June buds, we're all becoming more and more interested in plans for the debutantes who'll make their bows in the fall.

Among these will be vivacious Lucretia Billings, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederic T. Billings, of Wallingford street. Her father and mother will give a tea on Wednesday, November 25, the day before Thanksgiving, to present her to their friends. Earlier in the month Mrs. Benjamin Page will give a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for her debutante niece. Mrs. Page and Mrs. Billings are sisters, did you know?

Society Active

This week-end and next week hold many exciting events for society folk, a gay beginning for one of the most socially interesting months of the year.

First of all, there's the dinner dance the Child Health Association of Sewickley is giving this evening in the new Edgeworth Club. Ever so many folks are planning to attend.

On Monday there's the wedding of popular Virginia English Furey, daughter of the William Morris Fureys, of Wilkins avenue, who'll marry Dr. David Alexander Cooper, of Philadelphia, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon in Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

As a grand climax of the week there will be the Allegheny Country Club horse show on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Will Bow in June

Another debut date that has all society folks planning new frocks, will be on June 30, in the newly decorated Fox Chapel Golf Club. The bud is Cecilia Grand McCormick, and her mother, Mrs. John Shoenberger McCormick of Darlington road, is to present her at a tea that afternoon.

* * *

On Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock, the home of Mrs. William Bacon Schiller, Follyfoote Farm, Sewickley Heights, will be the scene of the wedding of her sister, Anne Crosby, of Belfast, Me., and Ralph Miller Johnson, of New York. The Rev. Alleyne C. Howell, rector of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church, Sewickley, will officiate. And there will be a breakfast after the ceremony. Only the immediate families will attend the service.

* * *

Miss Marie Antoinette Anderson, principal of the Thurston Preparatory School, entertained her faculty yesterday with a luncheon in the Hotel Kenmawr.

* * *

To Marry June 5

Miss Cecile Mary Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nichols, of Jefferson drive, Mt. Lebanon, has named June 5 as the date for her marriage to John Coleman McMichael, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley McMichael, of Bower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon.

The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church with the Rev. E. C. McCown, the pastor, as officiant. A reception in the Nichols home will follow.

Miss Gerogene Nichols will be her sister's maid of honor and Miss Ethel Long will be bridesmaid.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta fraternity; Mr. McMichael is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and will receive his master's degree from Yale in June.

* * *

Dinner Hostesses

Some of the alumnae class hostesses for the University of Pittsburgh sunset dinner which will be given Saturday, June 6, in the Hotel Schenley, are Miss Mary Bigham, Miss Leila Claney, Miss Helen Davies, Miss Louise Hetherington, Miss Margaret Kiskadden, Mrs. Willa Dorning Krick, Miss Margaret Morissey, Miss Dorothy C. Paulin, Mrs. Gretchen Buske Replogle, Miss Duella Stranahan and Miss Mary Florence Taylor.

The reunion classes are 1911, 1916, 1921, 1926 and 1930, with Miss Emma Brown, Mrs. Helen Frost Dice, Mrs. Ruth McFarland Dierker, Miss Florence M. Franklin and Miss Jeanne Muter as chairmen. Miss Helen Marie Krugh, of the School of Pharmacy, and Dr. Lillian E. Birkett, of the School of Dentistry, are chairmen of their schools.

* * *

Mrs. Adolph C. Groetzinger, of Davis avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Alice Groetzinger, to Harry Fahnsworth Hayden, of Providence, R. I., which took place today. Mr. and Mrs. Hayden will be at home after June 15 in Providence.

Donors' Luncheon Brings $4,250 for Palestine Medical Work

One of the largest, most beautifully-appointed and well-managed luncheons of the club season was that given yesterday at the Hotel Schenley by Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah. It was Hadassah's "donors' luncheon," which meant that for each one of the 425 persons present $10 had been placed in the treasury for medical work in Palestine. The luncheon and all its appointments had been underwritten by three friends of the organization.

The afternoon's entertainment included a delightful program of music by Harry Azinsky, violin; Sylvia Stein, vocalist, with Helen Marquis accompanying; Cantor Julius Bloom who sang Jewish folk songs, and a trio composed of Mr. Azinsky, Max Seifert, piano, and George Curry, cello, who played during the luncheon.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, the principal speaker, took for his subject, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?", referring to it as the first scriptural expression of personal responsibility in the conduct of human life. Morals and religion can not be disassociated from daily life, said Dr. Goldenson, and if moral considerations enter every endeavor at its start they will be present at its conclusion. The trouble today, he went on, is that economic development has been achieved without moral responsibility of each man for his fellow.

Progress Related

Mrs. Moses Epstein, a national Hadassah officer, who is a guest of Mrs. I. H. Levin, local president, told of the progress of the work in Palestine where the ultimate achievement is beginning to be seen in the partial management by the community of a hospital in Tel Aviv. The Rev. Herman Hailperin offered the invocation.

The decorations for the luncheon were especially lovely. Amber bowls of spring flowers were set in the midst of tall Zion blue and white tapers on each small table, and there were several floral arrangements on the honor table in front of which a little lighted fountain played.

Mrs. Corbett

Mrs. S. J. Corbett is the newly-elected president of the Home and Hospital Club of Bellevue and will assume her duties June 9 at the luncheon which the club will have at the Pines. Mrs. C. H. Rugg is the retiring president.

* * *

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Clark Hammond, the Epoch Club will have a program on "The Printed Word" next season. The new officers are: President, Mrs. C. Calvin Burgess; vice presidents, Mrs. Philip N. Harrison and Mrs. Edward Baker; secretary, Mrs. Henry D. James; treasurer, Mrs. Frederick W. Winter. Annual reports were heard at the club luncheon which was held yesterday in the Edgewood Country Club.

* * *

Sharing Honors

Mrs. H. H. Heinrich, incoming president; Mrs. J. W. Young, Jr., her predecessor, and Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, president-elect of the Congress of Clubs and a past president of the hostess club, will share honors at the Dormont New Century Club's luncheon Friday in the St. Clair Country Club.

* * *

The last regular meeting of the season will be held by the Keadnege Society Thursday in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

* * *

A bridge luncheon will be given Tuesday at the St. Clair Country Club by the Woman's Club of the City of Pittsburgh.

* * *

The Homewood Junior Women's Club will end its year Monday evening with a dinner bridge at Frazier's, Homewood avenue.

* * *

Parisian Guest

Preceding the luncheon which the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club will give Wednesday in honor of Mme. Mary Laudner, of Paris, the guest of honor will be taken on a sightseeing drive to several private gardens in the city.

* * *

At the home of Mrs. William M. Parrish, the Woman's Club of Rosslyn Farms held a meeting yesterday and elected officers for the coming year. Mrs. E. P. Schempp was chosen president; Mrs. Ray L. Cathcart, vice president; Mrs. R. F. Riddle, recording secretary; Mrs. W. W. Bell, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. C. Plummer, treasurer.

Mrs. C. G. Thornburg, leader for the afternoon, talked on "Better Magazine Movement"; Mrs. R. F. Riddle discussed magazines she would like on her table, and Mrs. Schempp reviewed special articles in the current magazines. Tea was served at the close of the program.

* * *

The closing meeting of the department of drama was held at the Congress of Clubs yesterday. Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, who has been chairman of this department for six years, presented both the retiring president, Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, and her successor, Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, to the department. Mrs. L. A. Hubach reviewed "Alison's House," the Pulitzer prize play; Miss Bessie Hubach, her daughter, presented a program of piano numbers; Mrs. Jane Lang Hervey, contralto, with Miss Marie Hickey as accompanist, gave a group of songs, and Miss Estelle Roberta Lowitz spoke on "Theater-Going in Central America."

* * *

The College Club is giving a luncheon and bridge party today in honor of all members who have joined the club since February. Mrs. Nelson Clark, chairman of the program committee, is being assisted by Mrs. C. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Frederick B. Chelfant, Mrs. Louis Goehring, Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, Mrs. Wilson Scott and Mrs. Elias Sunstein. Mrs. George Field MacDonald, Jr., membership chairman, is assisted by Mrs. H. B. Smith, Miss Marjorie Bartholomew, Mrs. J. Clyde Whetzel and Mrs. Thomas McKennan.

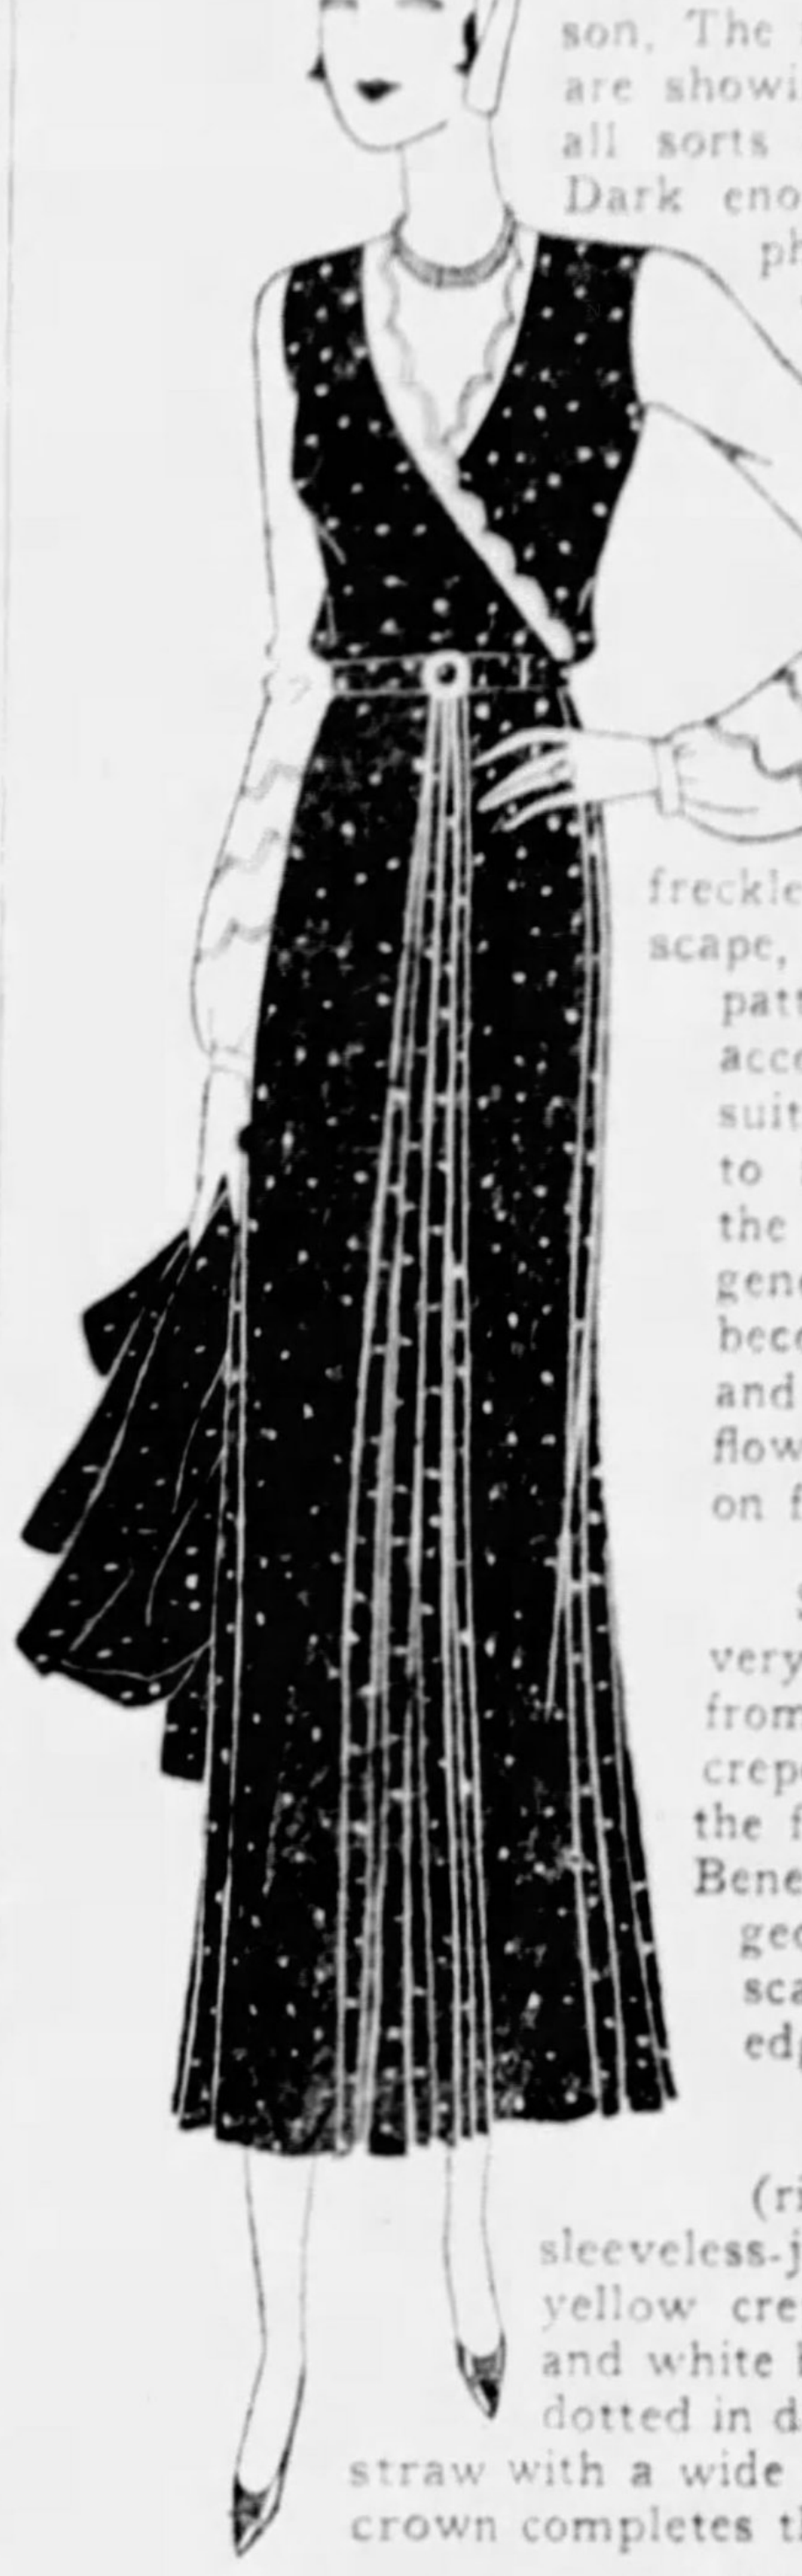
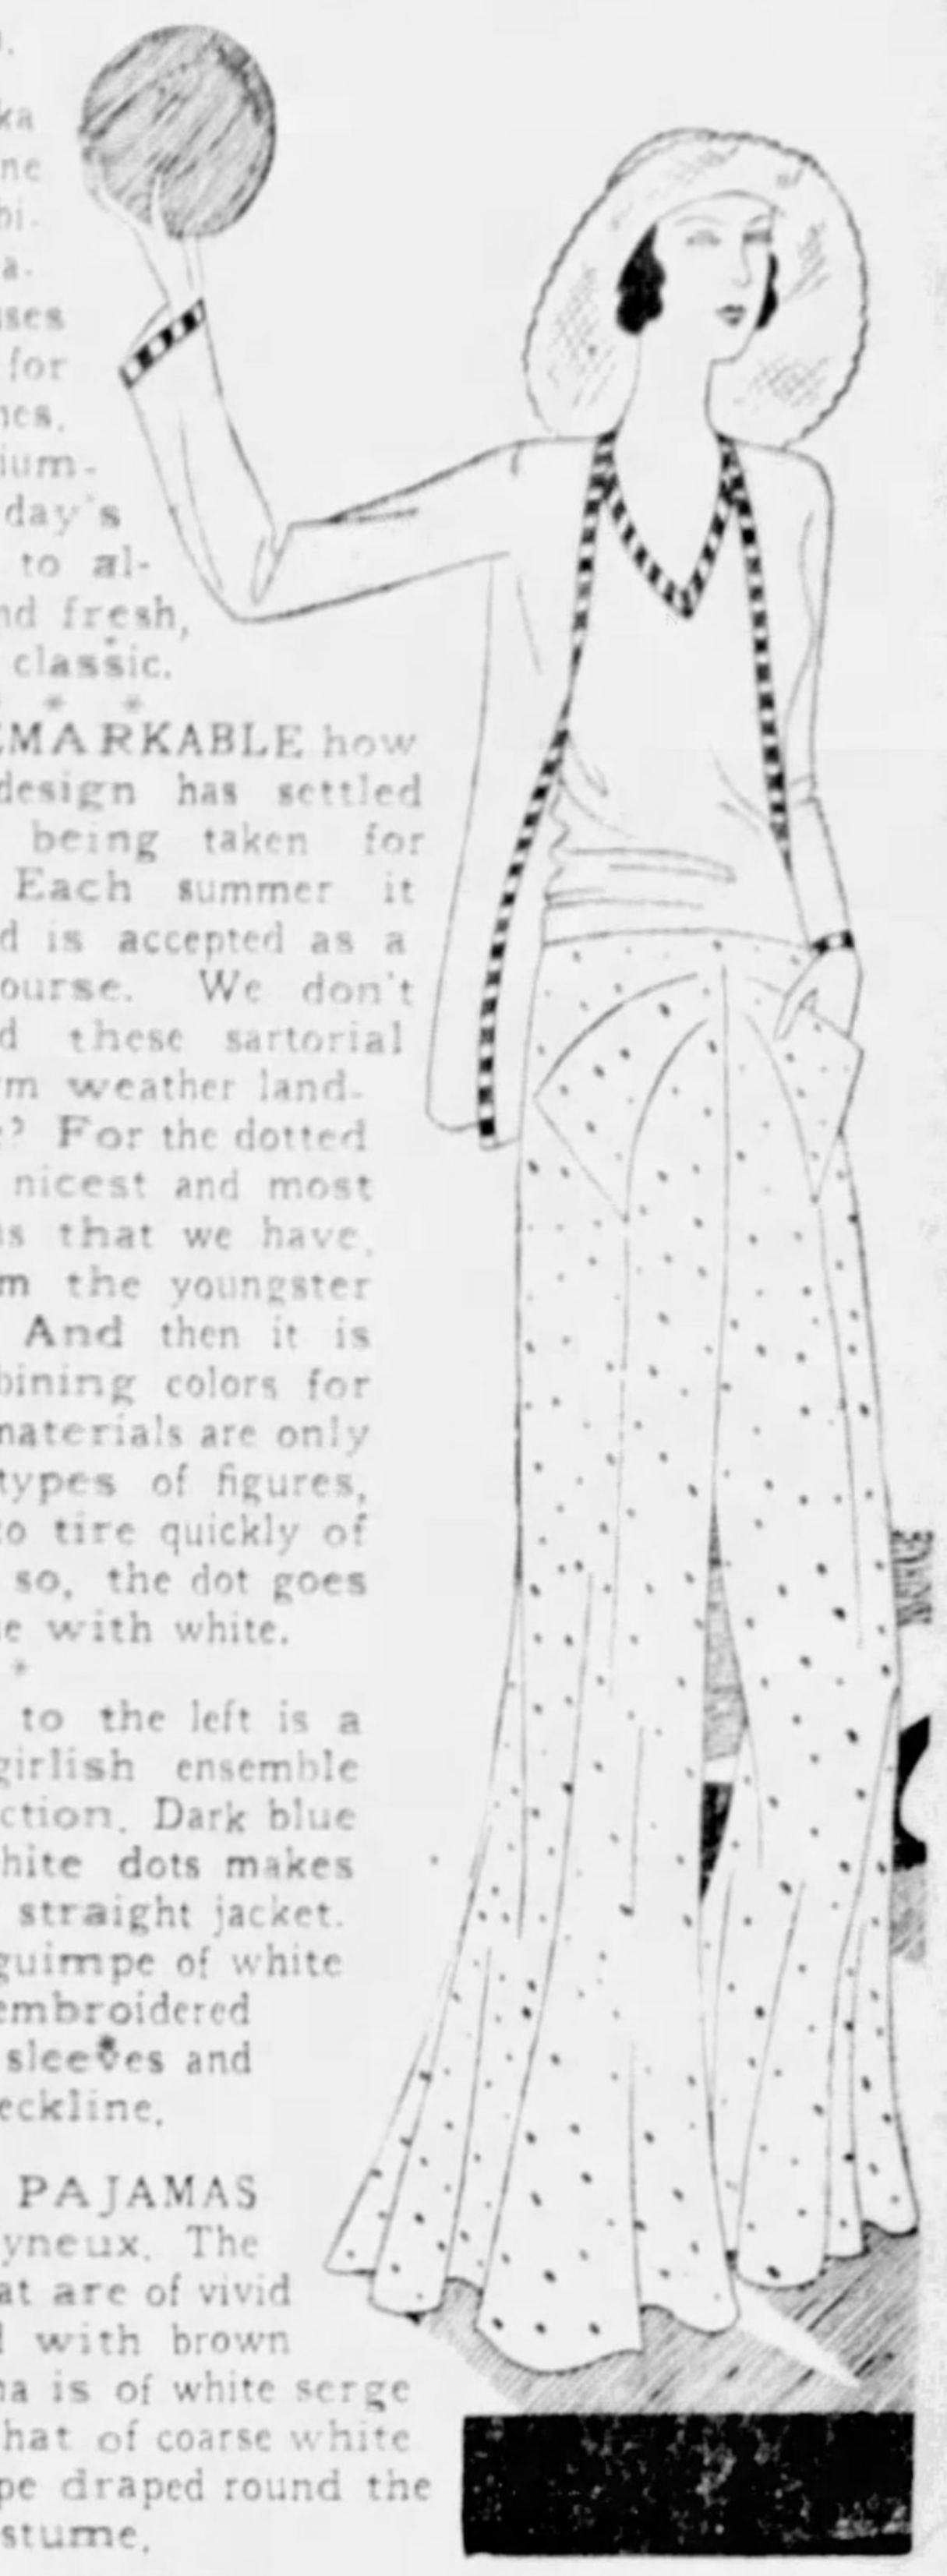
STYLISTS PREDICT POLKA DOT GARMENTS FOR SUMMER WEAR

Sketched in Paris





Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 29.—Navy blue with white polka dots or a dash of white is one of the strongest color combinations for the summer season. The most exclusive houses are showing blue and white for all sorts of daytime costumes. Dark enough to emerge triumphantly from a warm day's wear, light enough to always look cool and fresh, it is a summer classic.

* * *

IT IS REMARKABLE how the dot design has settled down to being taken for granted. Each summer it turns up and is accepted as a matter of course. We don't seem to mind these sartorial freckles that dot the warm weather landscape, and why should we? For the dotted pattern is one of the nicest and most accommodating designs that we have, suiting everybody from the youngster to its grandmamma. And then it is the best way of combining colors for general use. Striped materials are only becoming to certain types of figures, and most of us seem to tire quickly of flowered designs. And so, the dot goes on forever, as does blue with white.

* * *

SHOWN TODAY to the left is a very charming and girlish ensemble from Patou's new collection. Dark blue crepe de chine with white dots makes the frock and the short straight jacket. Beneath the frock is a guimpe of white georgette with hand embroidered scallops on the wide sleeves and edging the surplice neckline.

* * *

THE BEACH PAJAMAS (right) are from Molyneux. The sleeveless-jumper and little coat are of vivid yellow crepe marocain edged with brown and white braid and the pajama is of white serge dotted in dark brown. A large hat of coarse white straw with a wide scarf of yellow crepe draped round the crown completes this happy beach costume.

SMALL MARINE ACCEPTED HERE

John Timothy Daley, of Willock, is the first undersized applicant to join the United States Marines in this section. He is 64 inches tall, two inches shorter than the regulation height. The Marine Corps last week announced that due to the shortage of enlistments, the regulation height will be ignored.

Daley, who had worked on a Wheeling farm for four months, enlisted in the West Virginia city Wednesday, and passed the physical examination in Pittsburgh yesterday.

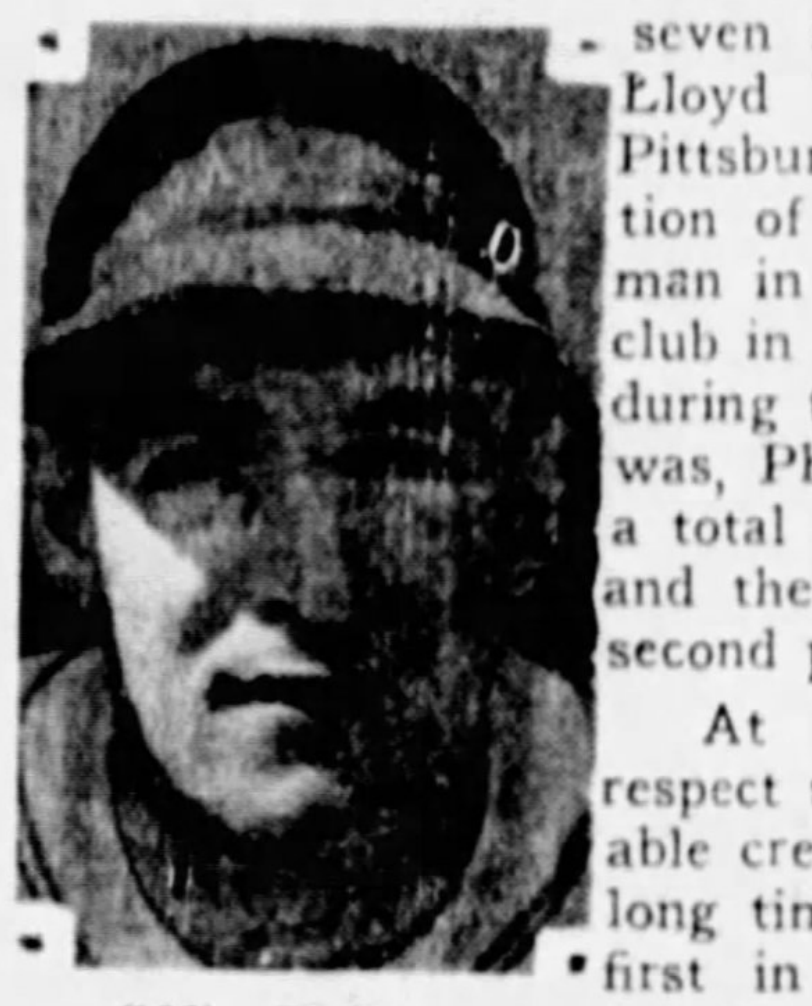
RARE LEAD-OFF PUNCH OF L. WANER

WHEN EDDIE PHILLIPS pulled his great batting feat of bringing victory to the Pirates yesterday by twice cleaning a set of loaded bases with a homer and a triple for a total of seven runs knocked in, he prevented Lloyd Waner from bringing back to Pittsburgh with him today the distinction of being about the only lead-off man in recent years who ever led his club in tallies driven across the platter during the course of a long trip. As it was, Phillips grabbed the honors with a total of 16 pounded in for the tour, and the younger Waner fell back to second place with 12 to his credit.



Eddie Phillips.

At that, Lloyd's record in this respect stands out as the most remarkable credited to any lead-off man in a long time. Yesterday's game was the first in seven straight in which he failed to knock in one or more runs, and in the previous six he clouted 11 across. Mighty few lead-off men in history have come so close to leading their clubs at driving in markers, for the season. The Pirate centerfielder stands third at present with 23, the only players ahead of him being Pie Traynor with 25 and Adam Comorosky with 24. One of baseball's greats no matter where you put him.

PHILLIPS IS BELIEVED to have set an all-time National League record, a new modern major league record, and to have equaled the best record of any period when he drove in seven runs in two consecutive times at bat. The only parallel that comes to hand readily is a mark of seven runs credited to Ed Cartwright, of the St. Louis American Association club on September 23, 1890. He knocked in seven runs with two homers in one inning.

Jim Bottomley holds the record for runs knocked in during a whole game, with a total of 12, made at Brooklyn in 1924, but the best he did in two consecutive times up was six. Wilbert Robinson knocked in 11 in a National League game in 1892, but did it with seven hits. Eight runs have been knocked in during one game in the American League by Roy Hartzell, Harry Heilmann, Lou Gehrig (twice), Carl Reynolds and Earl Averill, but there is no record of any of them having driven in seven in two successive appearances at the plate.

THE BRILLIANT FINISH which the sensational hitting of Phillips made possible in St. Louis enabled the Pirates to return home today from their 19-day trip with a creditable record in spite of their stumbles in Boston and Philadelphia.

They came back with a balance on the right side of the book, as they won eight games against six lost on the cruise. They are two games nearer to fourth place and the first division than when they left home.

AN IMPRESSIVE FEATURE of the Corsairs' play was the showing they made against the recognized pennant contenders. It was the best credited to any club this year. Against the four teams rated originally as the strongest in the league—the Robins, Giants, Cubs and Cardinals—the Bucs won seven games out of nine, taking every series. They cleaned up both games played in Brooklyn, grabbed the only event staged in New York, and then took two out of three in both Chicago and St. Louis. Quite a performance on the enemy's grounds, any way you measure it.

TWO NEW RECORDS in connection with the annual 500-mile automobile race at Indianapolis are among tomorrow's possibilities. One is the highest speed average ever made in the event, and the other is the winning of the big race twice in succession by one driver for the first time.

The present speed record is 101.101 miles per hour, set by Peter De Paolo in 1925, when he won in 4 hours 56 minutes and 39 seconds. Judging from the trials and the quality of the cars and drivers listed to start, that record may be bettered tomorrow.

Billy Arnold

IF BILLY ARNOLD, 1930 winner, is victorious again, and no entrant appears to have a better chance, he will be the first to take the race two straight years. Tommy Milton, 1921 and 1923, was the only driver ever to win it twice, even though not in succession.

This will be the nineteenth running of the famous race on the Indianapolis Speedway. The first was held in 1911, and the only interruptions were in 1917 and 1918, war years. The 1916 race was only 300 miles, and the 1926 event was called after 400 miles on account of a heavy rain.

THE SPEEDWAY GROUNDS cover 443 acres and will accommodate 225,000 spectators. It is estimated 175,000 may be present tomorrow. The track is 2½ miles long and 50 feet wide, extending to 60 feet at the turns, and is surfaced with 3,200,000 paving blocks. The front and back straightaways are 3,300 feet long, and the turns are 132 feet each. Last year's victory netted Arnold $50,150. He received $20,000 as first prize, $17,000 in lap prize money, leading all the way except in the first two laps, and $13,150 donated by accessory manufacturers.

COMPARING BOB GROVE'S fast ball with the speed of Walter Johnson in his heyday brings a negative vote from Gabby Street. "Why I think Bill Hallahan has an even faster ball than Grove," he said. "Honestly, I do. Could Grove throw with Johnson? Not if you ask me. I caught Walter for many years and know all about his stuff. No other pitcher ever had the smoke that fellow had. It was wonderful the way Johnson kept it up year after year, that terrific speed.

"I caught him just for old time's sake in 1924, and to tell you the truth I couldn't notice any letdown in his smoke. And he had been at it about 19 or 20 years, remember. He was easy to catch, though. He had what I call a soft ball in spite of the speed. His control was wonderful. You just stood there, held the mitt, and—bang! The ball was in it. I could have caught him in a rocking chair. Toward the end he developed a side-arm curve that was good, too."

PROSPECTS THAT THE reign of the Pacific Coast as the ruling power in intercollegiate track and field sports may be broken this year look none too bright as the annual I. C. 4-A. meet gets under way in Philadelphia today for a two-day run. Penn is the East's only hope and appears unlikely to beat out Southern California or Stanford.

The Coast athletes have won this meet six years in succession and nine times in the last ten. The only break was in 1924, when Yale put the East on top for one season. California won in 1921-22-23, Southern California in 1925 and 1926, and Stanford in 1927-28-29-30.

Ken Churchill

AS TO INDIVIDUAL champions, the majority of last year's winners who still are in competition face trouble in defending their crowns. The only men reasonably certain to repeat their triumphs of 1930 are Ken Churchill, of California, in the javelin throw; Frank Wykoff, Southern California, in the 100-yard dash; Bill O'Connor, Columbia, in the high jump, and Frank Conner, of Yale, in the shotput. The stiffest kind of opposition confronts Hec Dyer, Stanford, in the 220; George Bullwinkle, C. C. N. Y., in the mile; Gene Record, Harvard, in the high hurdles; Bill Carls, Southern California, in the low hurdles, and Arnold West, Stanford, in the broad jump. One other, Oscar Sutermeister, Harvard, must give up the pole vault crown without a struggle, as he is out of commission with a torn ligament. The only hope of the Pittsburgh district is Everette Utterback, Panther captain, who promises to give Champion West and the remainder of the field a battle in the broad jump, even though he is handicapped by a sore heel.

ARGENTINES TROUNCED BY YANKEES

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP.)—The youngest of all the long line of United States Davis Cup teams overran an experienced Argentine tennis lineup yesterday, capturing both the opening singles matches of the final American zone tie with the loss of but one set.

Frank X. Shields, rangy young New Yorker, started the play with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Guillermo Robson, 28-year-old Buenos Aires star.

Slender Sidney B. Wood, Jr., 19-year-old New Yorker, completed the day's battle by defeating the Argentine heavyweight, Ronaldo Boyd, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

NEED ONE WIN

To assure another United States Davis Cup invasion of Europe, only one more victory is needed in the three remaining matches to be played today and tomorrow.

A gallery estimated at more than 1,000, including dignitaries from both the White House and State Department and almost the entire staff of the Argentine embassy, provided an impartial background that applauded equally the players on both teams.

The straight-set victory by Wood was gained with more ease than many of the gallery expected. Boyd, the No. 1 ranking Argentine player, however, could not cope with the speed and control that Wood exhibited.

Time and again the United States youngster pulled the heavyset Boyd out of position to drop shots beyond his reach.

DOUBLES CHANGED

Edwin French, non-playing Argentine captain, told newspapermen after the match he had expected more of Boyd, despite his recent illness.

He said the previously announced lineup for the doubles today, which had included Boyd, would be changed to Lucilo del Castillo and Adriano Zappa, the regular Argentine doubles team.

I. C. 4-A MEET OPENS TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—(AP.)—With the mighty athletes of three California colleges once again adding prestige and color, the annual track and field championship meet of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America starts today on Franklin Field.

Trials will be held today in 11 events, beginning at 12 o'clock, eastern standard time, all finals being tomorrow.

From 37 colleges, 670 athletes are entered. The three Far West entrants are the universities of Southern California, California and Stanford.

Southern California is the defending champion. The Trojans have with them winners of 29¼ of the 44¼ points they amassed last year at Harvard when they won the team title for the second successive year.

Frank Wykoff, holder of the world record for the 100-yard dash at 9.4 seconds, is competing as a senior for Southern California.

In the same event with Wykoff is Tolan, who held the record in the century before the Trojan flash nipped off a tenth of a second.

These two sprinters will not run in the same trial heats.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: JACQUES BOERHAVE WAS EXECUTED FOR A MURDER COMMITTED 87 YEARS BEFORE—Jacques Boerhave, of Xanten, died on the executioner's block in the city of Hanover, Germany, in 1844, after royal clemency was denied him by King Ernst. The murder for which the defendant was convicted occurred in 1757. It came to light when the victim's skull was dug up accidentally and it was discovered that a long rusty nail still imbedded in the skull was the cause of the death. Ownership of the nail was traced to Boerhave, who was 104 years old at the time he was executed. (See: "Jahrbucher of Xanten, Auszug, Vol. 2, PP. 12-14.) CARBOLOY—Carboloy is the name of a cemented carbide alloy (tungsten carbide) which is non-ferrous and used as tool material. Its hardness is such that it originally was used as a substitute for diamonds in drawing tungsten wire lamp filaments.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF TODAY: THE FAMOUS ETRICKE TOMB OF ST. GILES—Anthony Etricke, a native of Holt Lodge, was recorder of Poole and the committing magistrate in the case of the Duke of Monmouth. His curious vow was the result of an insult offered him by the people of Wimborne. In compliance, a niche was cut in the wall of the minster of Wimborne, where his coffin was placed in such a manner that the body was half under and half over the ground, and neither within the church nor without, but suspended parallel with the wall. The story is contained in the "History of Wimborne Minster," by G. F. Score, the parish clerk.

SUNDAY: THE WOEFUL WALLS OF MEKNES.

LOTT LONE U. S. TITLE HOPE

AUTEUIL, France, May 29.—(AP.)—George Lott, Jr., young Davis Cup prospect, looms as America's last remaining hope of averting a complete rout in the singles division of the French hard courts tennis championships.

Idle yesterday, the Chicago star looked on as his two compatriots, John Van Ryn and Helen Jacobs, fell by the wayside and left it strictly up to him. Van Ryn went down before the soft-stroking Japanese Davis Cup player, Jiro Satoh, in five grueling sets, 8-6, 1-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, while Miss Jacobs was eliminated by Betty Nuthall, of England, in two one-sided sets, 6-3, 6-2.

PIRATES FARM M'CLANAHAN

Before his club left St. Louis last night, Manager Jewel Ens announced he had farmed out Outfielder Pete McClanahan to the Fort Worth club, of the Texas League. Pete starred for the Waco club of the same league last year.

McClanahan, a righhand batter and thrower, marked his departure from the Pirates by hitting a pinch single as he batted for Claude Willoughby.

CLINSTOCK HURT

DETROIT, May 29.—(AP.)—Jim Londos, recognized as world wrestling champion in some states, threw Jim Clinstock, Oklahoma Indian, in 36 minutes and 29 seconds here last night, with a series of flying mares and an airplane spin, and nine policemen had to carry Clinstock from the ring. He was unable to answer the summons when the bout was resumed and Londos was awarded the match.

WOMEN GOLF STARS CLASH

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 29.—(AP.)—Helen Hicks stole the show at the women's metropolitan golf championship yesterday.

Exhibiting an unbeatable brand of golf, the young Inwood girl eliminated Frances Snyder, "Giant Killer" from Apawamis, 7 and 6, and advanced to the semi-final round where today she will face Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, of Flushing, N. Y., the medalist.

The other semi-final will bring together Marion Fisher, of Salisbury, and Mrs. Wright D. Goss, of Baltusrol, runnerup in the 1926 national championship.

WALTONS MEET

Dr. Theodore B. Appel, of Lancaster, will be the principal speaker at the May meeting of the Izaak Walton League tonight in Rehearsal Hall, Carnegie Tech.

RACE STARS SET FOR GRIND

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29.—(AP.)—Practice for the 500-mile automobile race to be run here tomorrow virtually ended yesterday.

The track was closed in the afternoon and drivers were forbidden its use until an hour before sundown today, when they will be given a few minutes to make a final test spin.

Thrills aplenty were forecast during the early laps of the race as several hard drivers, placed far back in the starting lineup because of inability to qualify the first day, attempt to dash through the heavy traffic for the leadership.

Among them is Billy Arnold, Chicago, winner last year, who would rather be the pursued than the pursuer. Prize money for the winner of each lap will be the incentive for such early speed. Arnold will be in the sixth row at the start.

Francis Quinn, a sensation last winter on the West Coast, and tooling a four-cylinder speedster of surprising speed, is another heavyfooted driver far back in the lineup. So is William (Shorty) Cantlon, Detroit, who finished second here last May and is declared to have the fastest mount in the coming race.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirates rolled back into Pittsburgh this morning after one of the longest jumps any Pittsburgh club has taken in the championship season. A victory over the Cardinals in St. Louis yesterday in a seven-inning game marked the last contest of a junket that took them to every city in the league except Cincinnati. The successful finish of the long invasion gave the Pirates eight triumphs in the 14 games played. Several games in the East were postponed on account of rain.

The Cubs also reached Pittsburgh this morning. The two teams will tee off at Forbes Field this afternoon, with morning and afternoon battles scheduled for tomorrow. Either Remy Kremer or Glenn Spencer will twirl for the Buccos today. Les Sweetland is the likely selection for the Cubs.

PHILLIPS BIG STAR

Eddie Phillips is the new hero of the Pittsburgh club today. The Boston College star made new diamond history yesterday in driving in seven runs in two consecutive trips to the plate. Phillips hit a three-bagger to center with the bases loaded in the fifth, and when he came up in the seventh, he found three more of his mates on the sacks. This time the former grid star hammered a homer into the leftfield seats. The first cluster of tallies tied up the battle and the second helped win the old ball game.

The two wallops were hard smashes. Two were out in the fifth when the hustling catcher had the big assignment passed to him. The Buccos had to have three runs to get on even terms with the foe. Flint Rhem got a pitch in the alley and Eddie stung a savage drive to center. The fiery shot took a high hop over Orsatti's head and the parade was on.

One was out when Eddie faced Allyn Stout in the seventh. It was easy to see that Eddie was "swinging from Borough Hall" in this instance. Stout laid one in a

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BOSTON, May 29.—If our Washington club only took up a permanent residence in Boston we would overtake the A's so fast they would think we were riding Paul Revere's horse. That's one thing you can say for the Red Sox —, they're hospitable. They not only hand a visiting ball club all they've got, but they'll even put on a doubleheader to give you a second helping. Next to winning the Calcutta sweepstakes, I can't think of anything sweeter than a schedule of 154 games with the Boston club. I see the Giants reached a new high in the National League, but I still think this is bear market. Keep your eyes on the Cubs.

SOUTHPAW HURLERS LEAD IN BIG LEAGUES

Brownlee, Titan Ace, Seeks to Retain Conference Individual Title

EDDIE BRANDT WINS EIGHTH IN ROW

Associated Press

According to the records compiled so far this year, it's a southpaws' year in [illegible] pitching.

The left-handers, usually are considered a wild lot, sometimes very good, but more often very bad. But this season about a half dozen pitchers who throw from the port side are ranked among the leaders in the pitching department and three of them hold a complete monopoly on the top positions in the standings.

Ed Brandt, of the Boston Braves, has won eight games in a row, taking a hard-earned decision from the New York Giants yesterday by a 7-to-6 score to keep his record clean of defeat.

GROVE WINS AGAIN

In the American League, left-handed Robert Moses Grove, of Philadelphia, pitched the last two innings against the New York Yankees yesterday and scored the ninth inning run that gave the A's a 5-4 victory. Getting credit for the win, Grove earned a tie for the league pitching lead with his equally left handed teammate, George Walberg, whom he relieved with the score tied.

Right handers did most of the other work yesterday, but previously Lester Sweetland, Chicago; Clarence Mitchell and Bill Walker, New York, and Jim Elliott, Philadelphia, for the National League, and Charles Fischer, Washington, and Pat Caraway, Chicago, for the American, had done plenty to place the southpaws in the limelight.

The result of Brandt's victory yesterday moved the Braves back into third place ahead of the Chicago Cubs, who dropped a 3-1 decision to Cincinnati, but left the first two places unchanged as Pittsburgh won a seven-inning slugging duel from St. Louis, 11 to 8.

NATS BEAT SOX

Washington, now second in the American League, improved its margin over the Yankees by beating out Boston, 4 to 3, as Crowder and Hadley limited the Red Sox to six hits. Cleveland extended its newly-found winning streak to five games and carried the St. Louis Browns' row of defeats through the same number of contests by gaining a 5-to-4 decision.

Ted Lyons, of Chicago, had the edge in a mound duel with Vic Sorrell to give the White Sox their third straight victory over Detroit, 3 to 2.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the National League had their second off day.

OAKMONT GOLF STAR VICTOR

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Anjeanette Hunter, of Oakmont, former Western Pennsylvania woman champion, added another wreath to her crown yesterday afternoon when, in one of the largest fields thus far to attend a one-day tournament of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, she was the only player to break 90.

Miss Hunter's brilliant 88, at the South Hills Country Club, with ideal weather prevailing, was good enough to give her low gross honors and a tie with Mrs. C. I. Wendt, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, for low net at 84.

Mrs. Wendt won the low net prize, officially speaking, with her tally of 92-8—84, because only one prize may be won by an individual. Mrs. L. W. Gillett, of St. Clair, had the next low net score with an 85, while Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood; Mrs. Frank E. Campbell, of Stanton Heights, West Penn woman champion; Mary Kuhn, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, and Mrs. D. A. Garber, of Stanton Heights, were deadlocked at 86.

Honors in the second flight went to Mrs. J. A. Lowrie, of Longue Vue, who recorded 101-21—80, for low gross and low net laurels.

Mrs. W. C. Manville, of St. Clair, and Mrs. G. V. Sborini, of the Country Club of Pittsburgh, tied for low net honors in the third section, each recording net 81s. Mrs. Manville, with a 106, won low gross.

Oliver High plays McKeesport at Youghiogheny in a Section II school conference match today.

William C. Fownes, Jr., former amateur champion and erstwhile president of the U. S. G. A., returned to Oakmont from Pinehurst, N. C., yesterday. He has been recuperating at the resort from a serious illness and will continue his rest at the Hulton course. Fownes is said to be through as a golfer because of his illness.

Duris Gets K. O. Win Over Feeser

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 29.—(AP.)—Mickey Duris, 138½, Cleveland, knocked out Art Feeser, 138¼, Lebanon, in the seventh session of the 10-round feature on a fistic card here last night. The fight was lively from the start.

The semi-final of six rounds saw Bobby Richardson, 154, Portage, knocked out by Billy Flannagan, 160¼, Clearfield, in the fifth.

BUTLER, May 29.—J. B. Miller, of Lewisburg, Pa., won the individual smallbore rifle championship match over the Dewar course in the big tournament and international team tryouts being held here under sanction of the National Rifle Association, with a score of 393.

Jack Woolshlager, Castorland, N. Y., and R. E. Louden, Butler, tied for second place with 391. Milo R. Coleman, of Pittsburgh, captain of the Fort Pitt Rifle Club, was third with 388.

HAVE TEAM CHANCE

All of these men have a chance to win a place on the team that is to be sent to England in July to compete against European marksmen.

S. G. Kennedy, New Brighton Rifle Club, won the 50-yard telescope sight re-entry match, with L. L. Field, also of the New Brighton team, second.

Field and Coleman tied with 298 in the iron sight 50-yard re-entry. The 100-yard re-entry was won by J. A. Hill, Butler.

TEAM MATCH TODAY

Today the two-man team match with iron sights is being shot. Approximately 50 teams are contesting.

The telescope sight individual championship match is on this afternoon. Tomorrow more than 50 five-man teams will compete for the team championship.

Scores in the individual championship, in which each man fired 200 shots at 50 and 200 shots at 100 yards, iron sights, prone, follow:

CIVICS DEFEAT BUICKS, 12-6

The North Side Buicks were the victims of a surprise attack last evening in the City League, the North Side Civics throwing off the cloak of lethargy which has enveloped them since the season opened and hitting the ball hard for a 12-to-6 victory.

The defeat knocked the Buicks out of second place and was the first triumph of the campaign for the Civics.

In the Greater Pittsburgh circuit Edgewood defeated Wilkinsburg, 6 to 4, and North Bessemer downed Verona, 6 to 5. Riecks nosed out the B. and O. nine in the C. and I. League, 9 to 8.

The Crafton Presbyterians defeated the Methodists, 6 to 2, in the Crafton-Ingram Church League. Homestead Aces won another in the West Penn, defeating Swissvale, 2 to 0, and Reliance Life defeated the Martins, 13 to 3.

The North Side Buicks-Dormont game in the City League is the feature attraction on the local sandlots this evening. This game, scheduled for Wilson Field, should attract another banner crowd.

Fans watching the game should see a real pitchers' battle. Manager Johnny Dunsky is expected to work Armund Dubuque and Leo Carroll, probably will try and get the South Hills team in the win column.

Dunsky is also giving the Pleasant Valley fans a treat Memorial Day, bringing the Allegheny Valley club to Wilson Field.

GRIFFINS MEET SAINTS

Moultrie Park will see the only West Penn League game this evening. The Marty Griffin club, of the Hill, will hook up with St. Joachims, and beside flashing a good ball game, a good rooting duel should be on tap.

The Griffins played one of the greatest games of the season, only to lose a 1-to-0 fray to the Turtle Creek Community nine.

Plenty of action should be on tap at Monongahela this evening when the Keensie's, of Monongahela, and Joe Montana's New Eagle Indians clash. This game is going to pack in the crowds and the championship of the first half will probably hinge on the outcome.

Two games will be played in the Steel City loop. The De Pasquale club, of Oakland, will travel to Lawrenceville to meet the St. Elizabeth nine. The Danko aggregation is anxious to seek revenge for that beating the Oaklanders gave them in the last game.

Snee Dairy goes to Mifflin. The Steelers are also eager to break into the win column.

DUAL BILLS CARDED

Tomorrow being Memorial Day, will find many of the teams staging doubleheaders. The sandlot game on holidays seems to be on the wane.

Followers of the sandlot nines have other attractions on holidays, and teams are not so eager to stage games and pay guarantees with a few fans in the stands.

AUTO RACERS ON EDGE FOR LOCAL EVENTS

Three automobile races will be offered tri-state district speed fans tomorrow as features of the Memorial Day sport card. The list is topped by the trio of events scheduled for the board speedway at Bridgeville. Monongahela and New Brighton will offer dirt track events.

Three speed events are scheduled for the afternoon at Bridgeville, a 50-mile race, one of 25 and another of 10 miles. More than 30 drivers, including some of the best board speedway racers in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia have entered. Starter Fred McCarthy, veteran of many racing events, said today that elimination contests likely will be necessary in the morning.

BOWL REPAIRED

The speedway was to be given its final inspection this afternoon, repairs to the board bowl, grandstand and bleachers having been completed this morning, with everything complete for an interesting afternoon for automobile racing fans.

Some of the drivers who will take part in the three events include:

Dan Munro, Crafton Heights; Joseph Catone, Struthers, O.; R. Forey, Marion, O.; Earl Johnson, Tarentum, Pa.; Winnie Walker, Somerset, Pa.; Butch Williams, Somerset, Pa.; Glenn Rupert, Strattanville, Pa.; Owen Truesdale, Braddock; Jack Owen, Akron, O.; Joe Baker, McKees Rocks; Paul Rozesky, Oil City; W. M. Ward, Akron; Ernie Jones, Canton, O.; Ken Dunlap, Canton; J. E. McCausland, Pittsburgh; Charles Kley, Pitcairn; J. Black, Tarentum; W. G. Shearn, Canonsburg; Frank Demitree, Bridgeville; Buck Ramsey, Pittsburgh; Johnny Boyd, Tulsa, Okla.; Antone Ponikvar, Cleveland, O., and Clay Corbett, of Columbus, O.

Frank Fess will be chief judge and John Lyons chief timer. The first race will start at 3 o'clock.

RACE AT MONON. CITY

Almost a score and a half of pilots and speedy cars will take the track at the Monogahela City Speedway to qualify for places in the 100-mile derby to be put on in the afternoon.

The Speedway is in fine shape, and, unless rain falls heavily between now and race-time, it is certain that the winner of tomorrow's classic will register close to record-breaking speed.

In addition to the short qualifying heats and the 100-mile affair, there will be a 25-mile match race between two stock cars—a new Ford and a Chevrolet—which bids fair to be one of the meet's features.

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor

A surprisingly large crowd at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night saw one of the "fightingest" cards of battles staged in this section in months.

It was climaxed by a victory for Battling Gizzy, of Donora, over Eddie Brannon, Hill district Negro, in the 10-round main bout. Considerable grudge bitterness entered into this melee, with a lot of airy persiflage being passed from the rival corners and Referee Al Grayber having his hands full trying to keep the battle within fair play bounds.

Gizzy won on his aggressiveness. He did not travel at a sustained pace, but fought in flurries, during which he took the play away from Brannon in his customary fashion and won the approval of the fans. Brannon was warned from the start against hitting over the kidneys and behind the neck with his right, and both were cautioned early and often for hitting low.

BRANNON FIGHTS INSIDE

Brannon's best work was done at close quarters, where he battered Gizzy's left side a livid red with his righthand punches. However, he failed to lead, waiting for chances to counter with the right, while his left hand was virtually useless except for holding while he belted with the right inside.

There were no knockdowns, but Gizzy fell off balance several times. Brannon won only the sixth round, while the third and tenth were even. Eddie made 134½ pounds, an exceptionally low weight for him, at 3 p. m., and thus may have lost some of his zip, although he appeared to be strong enough in action. Gizzy scaled the same.

GUTHRIE SHOWS CLASS

Jimmy Guthrie, of Akron, one of the best looking two-fisted punchers to show here recently, made his local debut in the eight-round semi-final with K. O. Redmond, Detroit Negro, and won off by himself in a fight marked by his class, Redmond's commendable losing battle and bleeding by both. Redmond rallied to knock down Guthrie at the start of the final round and Jimmy cooly took a count of nine and then got up and punched his man all around the ring after the latter had fought himself out trying to follow up the advantage. Guthrie weighed 165½ pounds and Redmond 160.

Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, 144½, outpointed Jack Gillespie, another Detroit entry, 147½, in the six-round second bout, a pip for action, and won the referee's decision after one of the judges voted for a draw, and Jack Kelly, Johnny Deutsch's new fighter, from Lima, O., 157½, bested Carl Cesko, of Uniontown, 160, in the slugging opener, which saw Cesko on the floor for a count of two in the first round.

HERRERA-ANDERSON NEXT

Eddie Kennedy alternated with Grayber as referee and the judges were L. K. Meininger and Frank Ferris, with A. C. Couch and Steve Russell the timers, Harry Klaas the announcer and Dr. J. W. McMeans the commission physician.

It was announced that Tony Herrera and Eddie Anderson will box the main bout next Thursday night.

Between Rounds

Ted Yarosz and Tommy Rios will box the main bout of the opening show in the Foutts Brothers' Bowl, East Liverpool, O., Tuesday night. Jack Kelly meets Peter Jackson and Harry Weekly and Eddie Pucci are in two six-rounders.

Johnny Mack, of Cincinnati, has been matched with Harold Scarney, of Youngstown, for the eight-round semi-final to the George Courtney-Patsy Perroni 10-round battle at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night, completing the card. Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, boxes Benny McArthur, of McKeesport, in the second bout, and Billy Holt, of Homewood, and Tait Langford, of Canton, O., are in the opener.

The Pirates won the contest, 11 to 8. The game was called a few minutes after the Phillips' homer to allow the Pirates to board an early train for home.

P. WANER GETS ONE

Paul Waner also came through with a homer for the Buccos. Paul found Brother Lloyd aboard in the first when he walloped a long one over the rightfield pavilion. Charlie Gelbert hit a two-run homer into the leftfield seats in the second round.

Ervin Brame started against Rehm, but he was shelled off the mound in the third. Bob Osborn took his place and carried on to victory.

Brame got through the first round in good shape. But Bottomley greeted him with a double to right in the second. Traynor threw out Hafey and held Bottomley, but Orsatti doubled to right to produce a run and Gelbert hit a homer into the left field seats to put the Cards out in front.

GENEVA SQUAD FIRST CHOICE FOR HONORS

By JESS CARVER

Come what may, Harry Brownlee, Westminster College's very much he-man all-around athlete, is going to retain his individual championship in the annual Tri-State Conference track and field meet in Reeves Stadium, Beaver Falls, tomorrow.

The meet isn't strictly a conference affair this year, and both Grove City and Allegheny, non-conference schools, have been invited to attend and have entered teams. Despite their presence in the carnival, Geneva's crack squad, which is seeking its eighth consecutive conference title, is a favorite from here to Walla Walla to repeat.

Waynesburg, Bethany and Thiel will assist Westminster in disputing Geneva's right to the crown.

COMPETITION TOUGH

Brownlee won the high scoring honors last year by copping the hammer and the high hurdles and placing second in the low timbers and discus. He is just as good in the hammer and discus this year, but is likely to run into considerable trouble to grab off a first and a second in the hurdles.

"But I gotta win," says Brother Brownlee, "for imagine what all the neighbors back home at Lock Haven will say if I don't? I'm Lock Haven's little white-haired boy, you know, principally because I ain't home much."

Brownlee figures to run into the greatest opposition in his quest for another individual championship from a brace of Geneva Negro stars, Fair (Please) Thomas, the sprinter, and Spencer, the high jumper and hurdler. If he wins the hammer and discus, he'll still need at least a pair of second places in the hurdles to offset the points Thomas is certain to score in the sprints.

UTTERBACK IN PHILLY

Everette Utterback, Pitt's track captain, and his bum heel are in Philadelphia where they (Utter and the heel) comprise the entire tri-state district representation in th annual I. C. A. A. A. A. track and field championships.

Utterback, who holds the intercollegiate indoor title and record, and has held both for two years, will compete only in the jump at Penn. He plans to give everything he has in his trial leaps in an effort to win, as he knows his injured foot will not stand much pounding.

PARK HORSE IS THIRD

DEVON, Pa., May 29.—The Harold Palmer challenge trophy, one of the most desired honors of the Devon horse show and county fair, was won by Old Guard, owned by R. M. Carpenter, of Montchanin, Del. The trophy became the permanent possession of Carpenter, as his Senaca won in 1929.

Lewis A. Park, of Pittsburgh, landed one third place in yesterday's events, his Harviestown Elva taking a ribbon in the pony breeding class.

TUBER NINE WINS TITLE

Two bad throws in the last inning by Shortstop Stecko enabled McKeesport High School to defeat McKees Rocks in the final game for the W. P. I. A. L. title yesterday, 4 to 3. The Tubers succeed Scott High, of North Braddock, as champion.

McKees Rocks, finalist in last year's campaign also, trailed by 2 to 1 as the seventh inning rolled around. Two were out when Stecko got off his two bad throws, the second enabling Flynn to score from second with the winning run.

The Rox nine had the tying run on base in its half of the inning, but fozzled a chance to get it in. Robinson started the inning with a single and Peeks, the little Negro catcher, smashed a homer to center. Butchko and T. Whitman were retired and then Breit singled to right. He attempted to steal second on the first pitch and was thrown out.

Flynn, leadoff man for the Tubers, secured two of his team's seven hits.

Wilkinsburg nosed out Shady Side Academy, 2 to 1, and Gladstone defeated Baxter, 3 to 1, in other games yesterday.

People I've Met

NEW YORK, May 29.

BOB JOHNSTON. As I write this piece, it seems certain that he has been drowned in Long Island Sound. One of a party who started out for a short sail last Saturday afternoon, he has not been seen since. The discovery of several bodies seems to be fairly definite evidence that the entire party perished. If such is the case, it's a horrible tragedy.

Strange that I should be writing about Bob Johnston in this fashion. I intended to include him in this series last week, but something else came along and I failed to do it. Thus the article I had in mind must be switched to an obituary. And you can believe me when I tell you that it causes a strange shiver to run through me as I write it.

The story of Bob Johnston would make a grand work of fiction. It's strictly a product of this modern age. It includes a campus in the Far West, Broadway, Paris—and anything else with which you might care to flavor it. And, basically, it includes a guy who I always thought was a pretty swell person.

Bob met his wife while both of them were attending the same college in California. Muriel was an extremely attractive girl and Bob was a handsome boy. Muriel played the piano. Bob sang. They became man and wife, and drifted into theatrical work.

When they struck Broadway a few years ago, Bob and Muriel were an immediate success. A keen-witted and intelligent couple, the better people went for their work in a big way. When they went to Paris and opened a night club, the finest people visited it.

It was when they came back to New York in 1929 and went to work in Barney Gallant's club, however, that I grew to know them real well. When you find intelligence and charm in night club workers, you have struck one of the rarest of all combinations.

Here, then, were two very sensible people. They had youth, ability—and each other. They knew all the angles in the game of life. Their popularity was always increasing. Their future seemed definitely assured. If ever two people should have kidded their way through life together, Bob and Muriel Johnson were those people.

But, much as they knew and understood life, the game was too much for them. Muriel resented Bob's attentions to Adele Ryan, the immensely wealthy granddaughter of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan. Bob was angry about that.

"Muriel is not being quite fair," he told me. "We've had an understanding about these things. I like Adele. Why should Muriel make a taget of her?"

Surely, I felt, the Johnstons would never get themselves into a mess. Surely these two sensible people wouldn't become enmeshed in any newspaper scandals. As usual, I was very wrong. Muriel sued Adele Ryan for alienation of affections and tossed in a suit against Bob. The papers went for it in a big way.

The team of Bob and Muriel Johnston became a thing of the past. And Bob began to get the rap for everything. Leave it to the wiseacres to find dirt where no dirt exists. They whispered that Bob was helping Muriel in her alienation suit.

And while they were whispering, Bob Johnston was taking it on the chin. He could find no work. Managers said they didn't want him without his wife. Producers gave him the chill when he asked for a job.

Yes, things were pretty tough for Bob Johnston. But he never minded about the situation and he never lost his pride. He grew bitter, of course. Yau can't hit the bumps that way without getting hardened. But when he spoke of those bumps, which was rare, he did it with class.

"You like funny stories, Mark," he told me a few weeks ago. "I'll give you one of the funniest you ever heard.

"When Muriel and I were playing in London we always held open house. I wish you could have seen our home during the cocktail hour. Fred and Adele Astaire were with us almost every afternoon. Tallulah Bankhead was one of our best friends.

"Fred and Adele don't talk to me any more. I don't think I've changed so very much since London. But perhaps I don't look at myself in the proper mirror.

"But let me get to my funny story. I was sitting at home the other night and I thought I'd call up my old friend, Tallulah Bankhead.

"'Bob,' I said to myself, 'I'll make a bet with you. I'll bet you a drink that Miss Bankhead will not be at home to Bob Johnston.'

"After making that bet with myself, I stepped to the phone and called my dear, old friend. A minute later I was very happy. I had won my bet with myself. Miss Bankhead was most assuredly not at home to her old friend, Bob Johnston.

"That's a funny story, Mark. Sure it is. Where your sense of humor, boy? Laugh with me at my funny stories. Everybody else does."

Thus, with a small boat that turned over, the story ends. A short life—but how very full! Youth. College. A great love. Success on Broadway. Acclaimed on the continent. The heiress. The struggle to keep that pride on top. The irony of the underdog. And now—a death that come suddenly from nowhere.

Poor Bob. It's tough that he had to go . . .

TWO INJURED IN FALLS SUE

Henry W. Daum of the North Side, asked $50,000 damages for injuries in a sidewalk fall in his suit in Common Pleas Court against the estate of Mary E. Schenley, owner of vacant property in Howard street, North Side. He tripped over a piece of iron extending from the sidewalk facing the property on September 7, he declared.

The City of McKeesport was named defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Connelly, McKeesport, seeking $15,000 damages for injuries to Mrs. Connelly when she tripped and fell on a sidewalk fronting 615 Market street, February 24.

AUTOS KILLED 15 HERE IN APRIL

Fatal auto accidents increased during April, with 15 persons killed as compared with 13 during March, according to L. W. McIntyre, traffic engineer for the Bureau of Traffic Planning.

The total for the year to May 1 was 43 killed in auto accidents. In January there were eight fatalities, and in February seven. In the same months last year there were 65 fatalities.

The bureau reports 141 nonfatal accidents during April, with 98 personal injuries, as against 169 last year with 119 personal injuries reported. Among the injured in April, this year, were 13 children, 12 of them pedestrians.

FIRM PLANNING EXPANSION PROGRAM

General Products Sales Exceed Management's Estimates by 200%

General Products Corporation announces from its local office in the Plaza Building that, as a result of a recent survey of the drug and toilet goods manufacturing business, the company intends shortly to initiate one of the most intensive advertising and merchandising campaigns ever staged in the drug field.

The campaign, national in scope, will be conducted with the purpose of introducing the new two-compartment Quo shave jar, Quo instant skin cream and Frigitalc.

Advance orders for the products have exceeded by over 200 per cent the original sales estimates by the management.

"B" STOCK TO DEALERS

Approximately 100 inquiries have been received requesting sales rights, many coming from leading manufacturers agents and drug chain jobbers. Negotiations are also under way with representatives for the sales rights in several foreign countries.

Based on actual orders on hand, General Products Corporation estimates sales for the fiscal year, which began May 1, last, will amount to 15,500,000 jars and other products.

Part of the merchandising plan of the company is the issuance of class "B" stock to approximately 25,000 druggists. At a later date it is planned to issue warrants for the purchase of class "A" stock to dealers on a 12-month deferred payment plan. This plan was not originated as a means of financing but as an economical solution to the cut-rate situation now existing in the retail drug field; the purpose being to secure the co-operation of the independent druggist and chain store managers.

Sharon Retail Trade Set at $14,500,000

Sharon, Pa., has a retail business in excess of $14,500,000, according to the Bureau of the Census, in a release today of the returns from the 1930 census. The population of Sharon is 25,908, the census report shows.

The bureau reports there are 366 retail stores in the city, employing 1,263 men.

HOME SEEKERS FIND MANOR ATTRACTIVE

Lawyer Uses New Plan in Developing Residential District in Mt. Lebanon

If Pittsburghers realized that they could be transferred each evening after business hours from the "Smoky City" to the broad uplands of a Shenandoah-like valley in less than 15 minutes, there would be a stampede to Virginia Manor, Mt. Lebanon, for homes.

In this day of commercialized real estate and development plans, with identical houses on identical streets it took the combined imagination and practicality of a lawyer to vicualize and materialize a vast residential district within easy commuting distance of business, yet so far removed from an industrial atmosphere as to be a veritable Eutopia.

ON MAIN ROADS

James H. Duff, of the law firm of Duff, Davis, Scott & Smith, in the Union Trust Building is the man whose visual genius first comprehended the building possibilities of Virginia Manor. Located at the head of three main traffic highways, Washington road, Banksville boulevard and Greentree road, this section is easily accessible to downtown Pittsburgh.

Yet it is situated in a well ordered wilderness of verdure and trees. Infinite care has been taken to retain the natural aspects of landscape and topography, and old trees have been preserved.

Where nature ends and man begins, Mr. Duff has been able to reconcile his architecture with his land. Realizing that new bricks and new stone stand out like step-children against a background of old trees, he sought to harmonize his building mediums with his landscape.

OLD STONES USED

Study and experimentation taught him that old bricks and stones and beams rescued from old log cabins, churches and barns, reconstruct themselves into new houses which appear to have weathered the centuries.

With this simple theory, Mr. Duff, with the aid of his resident architect, Thomas B. Garman, has built houses in Virginia Manor which are symphonies of individuality and reconciliation with their natural environment.

Real Estate

An English design residence at 6815 Edgerton street, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold for Mrs. Katherine S. Masten to George A. Kelly III. The house has 12 rooms and a garage for two cars. The lot is 100x200 feet and attractively landscaped. Jacob L. Kendall, Jr., of Arthur B. Kline & Co., was the broker.

A brick residence with basement garage in Sunrise avenue, Wilkinsburg Manor plan, has been sold by Frank A. Klaus to Charles P. Held. The lot is 23x112 feet. Huss Brothers were the brokers.

A brick house in Center avenue near Wandless street, Fifth Ward, lot 25x104 feet has been sold by Ralph D. Schmertz to Holmes E. Reynolds.

In Greentree, James T. Hibbard sold to Mary T. Gettig 50x125 feet in Glencoe avenue.

Building permit applications included:

Twenty-fourth Ward — A. A. Schwartz, frame and shingle dwelling, 1149 Admiral street, $7,500.

Nineteenth Ward—O. S. Roach, brick dwelling, 120 Arion street, $5,000.

Ninth Ward — P. H. Butler Realty Company, alterations, 4117 Liberty avenue, $3,500.

Canadian Radium Analyses Favorable

PLAN TO HONOR SCHOOL HEAD

The Alumni Association of Duffs-Iron City College will give a testimonial dinner to P. S. Spangler, president of the college since 1906, on June 1 at the Hotel William Penn. Mr. Spangler is the third president in the history of Duffs, the pioneer business college in America, having been preceded by the founder, Peter Duff, and his son, William Duff.

The toastmaster for the affair will be the grandson of the founder, William H. Duff II, president of P. Duff & Sons, and addresses will be made by Harry C. Milholland, president of the Pittsburgh Press; Dr. Benjamin G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh schools; Dr. Elmer G. Miller, director of commercial education; Harry Spillman, of New York, and M. S. Johnston, secretary of the college. Dancing and cards will follow the dinner.

Pennsylvania Case to Test I. C. C. Power

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE FUTURE POWER of the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate the purchase of the stock of one railroad by another will depend on the outcome of the case filed in the federal courts by the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday.

If the courts uphold the commission, its control over the railroad merger situation will be almost absolute. If the decision is against the commission, that body will have difficulty in preventing what it considers to be undesirable alliances between the carriers.

Last December the commission ordered the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Company to dispose of their holdings in Lehigh Valley and Wabash stock by June 2. Yesterday the two companies asked the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia to set aside the order. The commission's ruling charged that the purchase of the stocks was in violation of the Clayton act. All the stock of the Pennsylvania Company is owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad. The subsidiary holds 48 per cent of the outstanding Wabash stock and 30 per cent of Lehigh Valley.

Power Over Holding Companies

THE OUTCOME OF THE CASE depends largely on whether or not the courts decide that the commission has jurisdiction over a holding company and whether the companies can prove that the stocks were bought for purely investment purposes or to control the two railroads.

The petition of the railroads asserted that the commission did not have jurisdiction over the Pennsylvania Company and also charged that the commission erred in not dismissing the case for lack of sufficient evidence.

At one time the Pennsylvania Company was actually engaged in the operation of railroad properties, but in 1918 operations were transferred to the Pennsylvania Railroad and since that time the subsidiary has confined itself to investment activities.

Lack of Jurisdiction

IF THE COURT SHOULD rule that the commission has no jurisdiction over holding companies owned by the railroads, it would be greatly handicapped in preventing the domination of one system by another. Both the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley are allotted to the fifth eastern trunk line system under the Interstate Commerce Commission railroad merger plan.

So long as the Pennsylvania controls these two lines, however, it can prevent the formation of this system or else it could control the fifth system after it is formed.

The action taken by the Pennsylvania yesterday indicates its intention to fight to the last ditch against any attempt to separate it from its controlled properties. The Pennsylvania also holds a large block of stock in the New York, New Haven and Hartford. It is quite probable that attempts will also be made in the future to force the Pennsylvania to relinquish its control of this road.

CANNED FOOD CALL GROWS

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The development of new food products packed in cans is a factor which not only helps to maintain the annual increase in consumption of canned foods but is also creating additional business for the manufacturers for food cans.

The growing national thirst for tomato juice cocktails and grapefruit juice, two of the latest canned products, is causing a rapid growth in the production of these commodities.

The 1930 production of tomato juice in tin containers was 628 per cent larger than the 1929 production of this commodity, based on firms producing over 80 per cent of the whole pack, a recent survey of the foodstuffs division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce reveals. The total 1930 pack was 41,707,584 cans.

According to a survey by the Florida district office of the United States Department of Commerce, 9,888,000 cans of grapefruit juice were packed in Florida in the 1930-31 season, an increase of 136 per cent over 4,176,000 cans packed in the preceding season.

A City of Bridges

Pittsburgh is proud of its bridges, the newest of which is Point Bridge, costing $2,079,000. The Sixth, Seventh and Ninth Street Bridges over the Allegheny River cost $1,500,000 each. Liberty Bridge cost $3,380,000, and Washington Crossing Memorial Bridge, at the point where George Washington first crossed the Allegheny River, cost $2,340,000. There are over 375 bridges of various kinds in Allegheny County.

Pittsburgh's Waterway Commerce

Pittsburgh's three rivers, connecting it with the ocean, make it one of the most important ports, as far as tonnage is concerned, in the world.

Pittsburgh's water-borne commerce in 1928 (latest record available for various cities) was 33,474,000 tons as compared with Hampton Roads' 18,485,000, Philadelphia 16,592,000, Boston 13,960,000, and Baltimore 10,122,000.

"Public Improvements Promote Progress"

South Tenth Street Bridge, over the Monongahela River in the City of Pittsburgh, is to replace the present structure, which was erected in 1903. This is the third bridge at this location, the first having been erected in 1861. In connection with the new bridge, which occupies virtually the same location as the present structure, changes will be made to the grades of Second Avenue and of South Tenth Street, starting at Carson Street. This new bridge will pass over the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad on the south side of the river and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad on the north side.

The new bridge is to be of the regular cable suspension type, the two main supporting cables being about 14 inches in diameter. The span from center to center of river piers will be 725 feet, with anchor spans of 275 feet each. The length of the bridge proper, including anchorages, will be 1,434 feet and the total length of the improvement including approaches will be 2,202 feet. The bridge will carry a roadway 40 feet wide between curbs and two 7-foot clear sidewalks.

The contract for the sub-structure which includes also the removal and disposal of the present bridge was awarded to the Vang Construction Company on October 11, 1930, the contract price being $746,878.00. The total estimated cost of the structure is $1,925,000.00, funds for which were provided in the 1928 Peoples Bond Issue. It is estimated that this bridge will be opened to traffic in the fall of 1932.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

U. S. Steel May Prove Laggard When Stocks Move Ahead.

U. S. Steel may be a laggard when the general market shows a tendency to move ahead. Many times in the past this pivotal and popular stock has been among the last to suffer during a decline, and also was behind the remainder of the market when an upward movement started. Despite this action, it is well known that Steel always has been watched by outsiders, and the public demand in the general market was at its best when this issue was moving ahead.

United Carbon was one of the favorite issues during the period of enthusiasm in the market, but the stock has been well deflated as a result of the subsequent liquidation. The dividend has been omitted, and a small profit was reported for the first quarter. It is pointed out that at recent selling prices the company has been appraised at about the value of the Kentucky gas properties, and the stock is selling far below its total asset value.

A number of brokers have expressed the opinion that several stocks may be entering buying zones attractive for long-pull purchases. They are not yet willing to advocate extensive accumulation, however, even in the stocks which have a good record to recommend them. Most of these brokers are inclined to wait for evidence of important buying by banking and corporation interests before taking a definite long position.

Loew's has been the leader in the amusement field. While other shares in this group have been encountering heavy liquidation because of adverse earnings, this stock has held above its 1929 panic low. It has done that despite selling which came from interests identified with the industry who disposed of Loew's to protect speculative holdings in other issues of the group which declined much more abruptly. In the past few days, there has been evidence of quiet accumulation of the stock by interests well informed on the company's affairs.

Declaration of the usual extra dividend by McKeesport Tin Plate emphasizes the position of the tin plate manufacturers, which reflects the demand for containers from can makers and other users. A number of the leading steel companies have reported that tin plate operations have been satisfactory right along. Had other branches of the steel industry held up half as well on sales and prices the earnings of the big steel companies for the second quarter would be much larger than those to be reported during July.

Stop-loss orders are coming into greater favor in Wall street. This policy is due to the fact that the market went down so easily on Monday. Conservative interests call attention to the break on that day as indicating the wisdom of protecting long holdings with stops. They have been advocating such action for some time, and at least part of the recent decline can be attributed to the uncovering of the stops which increased the selling at a time when the buying was confined to the shorts who were covering.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

CHAIN STORE INVESTIGATION

Field work in the study of the Federal Trade Commission relative to prices of chain stores has been completed. It has made studies in five cities, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Des Moines and Memphis. This, however, does not mean that the investigation has been completed as the commission is making a study of data which it gathered. Writing of a general report on chain stores likely will be started soon and be ready for the next session of Congress.

BRITISH TEXTILE MERGER

Six principal companies in the British textile machinery and manufacturing industry having a combined capital of £7,331,165, are shortly submitting plans for amalgamation. The companies include Platt Bros., with capital of £3,700,000, Howard & Bullaugh with £1,500,000 capital.

BANK OF AMERICA REVIEW

The monthly economic review of the Bank of America, National Association, notes "a slow, general improvement" in business, "almost imperceptible, except by comparison with conditions existing a few months ago, but nevertheless fairly well established."

CREDITANSTALT BILL PASSES

VIENNA, May 29.—The Austrian parliament has passed the bill providing for government guarantee of loans to aid credit anstalt until May 30, 1933.

LONDON, May 29.—The stock market opened with a steadier tone, although volume of business was restricted. Both Austrian and German bonds were firmer.

PRAGUE, May 29.—Small runs have developed on two Czech banks, the Bohemian Discount and the Bohemian Union. All depositors have been met in full and the situation is considered well in hand.

Armstrong Cork Earnings Improve

Armstrong Cork Company reports net earnings for the first four months of 1931, exclusive of foreign subsidiaries, after depreciation and obsolescence, bond interest, etc., were $472,388. This corresponds with net profits for the corresponding period of 1930 of $384,966, an increase of $87,422, or 22.8 per cent.

This showing is significant in view of the fact that the gross sales volume for the first four months of the current year was 31 per cent less than for the corresponding period in 1930.

April Structural Bookings Climb

WASHINGTON, May 29.—New bookings for structural steel in April amounted to 293,600 tons, against 184,400 in March and 222,800 in April, 1930, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

RAILS' PLUNGE DRAGS STOCK LIST DOWN

Early Advances Caused By Pre-Holiday Covering Dwindle Under Pressure

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—With the stimulating effects of higher freight rate agitation completely exhausted, the rail shares plunged to new low levels for the past several years in today's market, and dragged the rest of the list after them.

Pre-holiday short covering gave the market a substantial upturn in the early dealings, but advances 2 to 3 points in such issues as United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, Allied Chemical and Case, were soon lost.

Omission of the $2 semi-annual dividend of Erie second preferred while anticipated, was a depressing influence.

The carrier issues were depressed by April net operating income reports, which were considerably worse than expected a few weeks ago, and expectation of little improvement before August. The first 64 roads to report show a shrinkage of 37 per cent from a year ago, against a reduction of only 23½ per cent in March. While roads are going ahead with their plans to petition for a revision of freight rates, the expected opposition among shippers is developing.

The bond market gave a better account of itself than stocks. Railway issues and the foreign government obligations showed a considerably improved tone. This was distinctly encouraging to Wall street, inasmuch as the bolstering effects of the cheap money program have been delayed by liquidation in those groups. Foreign bonds also showed a better tone in the London market, and European financial centers were reassured by the announcement that the Austrian government would guarantee the foreign obligations of the Credit Anstalt, large Vienna bank. The Bank of Uruguay announced that it irrevocably intended to maintain interest payments on the foreign debt. It was reported, however, that Sir Otto Neimeyer, vice governor of the Bank of England, who has been studying the Brazilian situation, will recommend a moratorium on the Brazilian debt.

Brokerage circles were inclined to hope that the Memorial Day week-end might mark a turning point, after three months of stubborn liquidation in shares. Rumors that a banking pool was being formed to support the market were generally discredited. It was stated in important banking circles that there was no occasion for such action. Credit conditions remained virtually unchanged.

April Sheet Steel Sales Decrease

The National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers reports April sales of 191,987 tons, or 52.3 per cent of capacity. Production was equal to 58.2 per cent of capacity; shipments equal to 57.5 per cent of capacity and unfilled orders on Many 1 equal to 88.5 per cent of capacity.

BANKER OFFERS SILVER CURE

NEW YORK, May 29.—A suggestion that the United States alone dry up the glutted world silver markets by immediate purchase of its requirements for the next 30 years, was made to the national foreign trade convention today by George W. Leman, assistant secretary of the Irving Trust Company.

Mr. Leman doubted that an international formal conference as suggested by the American and International Chambers of Commerce would be successful "because, unfortunately, altruism on the part of nations is an unknown quantity, and, accordingly, the only results that may be attained will be through bargaining."

The banker's plan for American single-handed action suggested that we buy now about 200,000,000 ounces from the Indian government, though it is doubtful they would sell so much. He said:

"We could pay for it with about 60 to 70 millions in gold, of which we have such an excessive supply, but which the Indian government needs so badly to support her new (gold standard) currency scheme.

"In the absence of international agreements regulating silver values, this supply of silver could be employed as a reserve both for our actual currency needs and to prevent too sharp a rise that might later result from a shortage."

CORPORATE EARNINGS

American Beet Sugar Company reports for year to March 31, including subsidiaries, consolidated net loss of $1,764,961 after depreciation, interest, etc., compared to net profit of $320,654 in the preceding fiscal year.

LOCAL STOCKS SHOW FIRM TONE

Moderate Improvement in List Here as New York Securities Stage Rally

Securities held to a narrow range in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. With today's session closing the week, there was some inclination on the part of traders to even up commitments over the holiday, and the result was a slightly firmer tone during the forenoon.

This slight improvement was influenced somewhat by the strong showing of the New York market in the early hours.

Armstrong Cork was steady, but failed to show any noticeable strength as a result of the earnings statement for the first quarter disclosing a 22 per cent increase in earnings despite a drop in gross business. The regular dividend was declared.

Fuels remained close to their previous closing levels and Pittsburgh Plate Glass was a little higher on its initial sale for the day.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 29.—Grains averaged higher early today after an irregular start. Absence of any adequate drought relief in Canada and indications of better export demand for North American wheat were bullish factors. Opening ⅜ cent off to ¼ cent up, wheat afterward showed gains all around. Corn started 1⅜ cents down to ¼ cent advance, and subsequently rallied.

7%

—AND THESE SIX REASONS—
POINT TO AN INVESTMENT IN

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc.

7% CUMULATIVE PARTICIPATING
CLASS A STOCK

Preferred as to Assets and Dividends

1—SECURITY
This investment represents a participating interest in twelve strong and profitable publishing enterprises of William Randolph Hearst, including ten great metropolitan dailies, the American Weekly Magazine and the American Newsprint Company. They serve large, growing key cities strategically located throughout the nation. Valuable holdings of downtown real estate, modern plants and printing equipment strengthen the investment quality of the issue.

2—PARTICIPATION
7% cumulative dividends, payable quarterly — and in addition, the right to participate with the common stock in additional dividends, as declared, up to an extra 3%.

3—STABILITY
The newspaper is not only an ingrained daily habit of America—but it is a valuable source of revenue through the need of merchandisers to advertise their products. It is today one of the great industries of America. During 1930, a year of generally quiet business conditions, the publishing enterprises comprising this group earned $4.29 a share on all Class A Shares to be presently outstanding, against regular dividend requirements of $1.75. For the first quarter of 1931 this stock earned at the rate of $1.44 a share, against dividend requirements of $.43¾, a record which testifies to the stability of this investment under all conditions.

4—DIVERSIFICATION
Income of the newspapers is derived from both the Atlantic and the Pacific seaboards, from the industrial areas around the Great Lakes and from Western Pennsylvania—while the American Weekly Magazine has the greatest circulation of any periodical in the world, reaching weekly over 5½ million people scattered throughout the United States—truly nationwide diversification.

5—MARKETABILITY
Application will be made to list this stock on the New York Curb and the Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchanges.

6—TAXATION
Dividends received on this stock by individuals are not subject to normal Federal Income Tax.

Price $25 a Share

This stock may also be purchased on the payment plan—$5 down and $2 monthly per share. All payments earn 7% from the day received.

Where can you duplicate this nationally diversified investment in old-established, uninterruptedly profitable, growing enterprises that will return 7%—with security—and afford opportunity for a generous additional participation?

INGOT OUTPUT DECLINES

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel ingot production dropped about two points this week after decreases approximating one point a week for several weeks preceding. The general rate is not over 42 per cent. The Chicago district dropped three points to 45 per cent and the Pittsburgh district about 2 points to 42 per cent.

This has been the tenth week of decreases, the peak rate having been in the third week of March, at about 56 per cent. According to precedent, both the increase and the decrease were strictly seasonal, in point of time, but both were far in excess of the usual amount. This was quite contrary to a theory generally entertained at the close of the old year, that on account of conservatism of buyers, improvement would be sluggish but long continued.

By July everything will have been thoroughly shaken out and steel demand will presumably be down to, or below, the minimum requirements of a going country, for the country is going, although at a reduced rate and requires steel purely for upkeep, apart from construction and expansion. Conditions would then be particularly promising for increases in tonnage, which would give things a much brighter general aspect, although the greatest conceivable increase of merely seasonal character would not give the mills a really fair operation at any time this year, much less a fair average for the second half or fourth quarter.

U.S. Monetary Stocks Highest on Record

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Despite the generally accepted theory that the rapid accumulation of monetary gold in the United States will prove economically harmful to foreign countries, it was pointed out by some government experts today that when gold is really needed abroad conditions will be such as to bring about an increase in foreign investments by this country.

Federal Reserve figures for the week ending May 27 showed total monetary stocks in the United States of $4,795,000,000, by far the greatest on record and an increase of $23,000,000 in the week and $279,000,000 for the year.

Will Recommend Brazil Moratorium

LONDON, May 29.—Sir Otto Neimeyer, vice governor of the Bank of England, who has been studying financial reconstruction of Brazil, will recommend a national moratorium, including suspension of interest and sinking fund payments on all foreign obligations of Brazil's national and state governments.

Brokerage Opens Cincinnati Office

Post and Flagg, members of the New York Stock Exchange and other leading exchanges, announce the opening June 1 of a branch office in Cincinnati. Chase H. Davis and Orland S. Greene will be joint managers, and Joseph C. Marks will be associated with them.

Franklin Motor To Adjust Output

SYRACUSE, May 29.—H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Company, effective May 31, will discontinue production until June 15. Officials state this is for the purpose of adjusting output to seasonal demand and express the opinion that from now on demand will be on an even keel. Shipping will be carried on as usual while production is shut down.

CITY OF PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Controller of the City of Pittsburgh until the 9th day of June, 1931, at 10 a. m., eastern standard time, for the purchase of the following issues of bonds of said city:

$100,000.00 General Improvement Bonds 1931.

$75,000.00 Bridge Bonds 1931.

Said $100,000.00 General Improvement Bonds 1931 will be dated April 1st, 1931, and will mature in ten (10) equal installments on April 1st of each year. Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter (4¼) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st days of April and October in each year without deduction for taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law. Said $75,000.00 Bridge Bonds 1931 will be dated May 1, 1931, and will mature in fifteen (15) equal annual installments on May 1st of each year. Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of four (4) per centum, payable semi-annually on the 1st days of May and November in each year without deduction for taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, pursuant to any present or future law.

Said $100,000.00 General Improvement Bonds 1931 are issued to provide funds for furnishing supplies, materials, equipment, skilled labor and supervision for improvement generally of streets, parks, playgrounds, sewers, etc., the labor to be furnished by the Allegheny County Emergency Association. Said $75,000.00 Bridge Bonds 1931 are issued to provide funds (including engineering expenses) for the construction of bridges and repairs to present bridges crossing streets, highways and streams in the City of Pittsburgh.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds of denomination of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars, exchangeable at the option of the holder at any time for a registered bond, or bonds, of the same maturity and of the denomination of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars or a multiple thereof not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor.

Unless all bids are rejected the said bonds will be sold to the highest responsible bidder complying with the terms of sale. No bid for such bonds at less than par and accrued interest from the date of said bonds to the date of delivery will be accepted. The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the provisions hereof will be rejected. Any bidder may condition his bid upon the award to him of all or none of the bonds for which he bids.

All bidders are required to deposit a certified check drawn to the order of the City of Pittsburgh, on a National Bank or Trust Company for two per centum (2%) of the principal amount of bonds bid for. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds. No interest will be allowed upon the amount of the check of the successful bidder and such check will be retained and applied in part payment for the bonds or to secure the city against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of this bid.

The City of Pittsburgh reserves the right to deliver to the successful bidder temporary typewritten or printed bonds in the form of one temporary bond for each maturity, which shall be substantially in the same form as the definitive bonds, with such appropriate omissions, insertions and variations as may be required. Until their exchange for definite coupons bonds, the temporary bonds shall be in full force and effect according to their terms, and shall bear interest from the first days of April and May, 1931, respectively.

Proposals should be addressed to James P. Kerr, City Controller, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and enclosed in a sealed envelope, marked on the outside "Proposal for Bonds." Bids must be made upon blank forms which may be obtained from the City Controller.

The successful bidder will be furnished with the opinion of Messrs. Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of Pittsburgh, that the bonds are binding and legal obligations of the City of Pittsburgh.

JAMES P. KERR,
City Controller.

Dated, Pittsburgh, Pa., May 22, 1931.

Jenny Shudders at Thought Of Rarick's Death

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER XX.

In the phraseology of Jennifer and Avery, between whom existed a gay nonsense-code, any period of time fraught with comings and goings, telephone bells, messenger boys, arrivals, departures, in, out, bang, hasten, bag, baggage, up, down, motor cars, golf bags, theater tickets, opera wraps, bridge tables, packages, flowers, caterers, bustle and rush, constituted a "day among the Raricks."

Hurried scrawls of notes or telegrams, interchanged between them, read like this:

Dear Jennif: This day among hell of a day among the Raricks down home here. How cum with brother Rarick up among the Campus Cut Clothes Boys?

Dear Jennif. This day among this Rarick has been no go. This Rarick has a new speedboat. This day among this Rarick has been spent feeling seasick in and about said speedboat. It's a wamble. To be a wamble means to be built for land and live on water. That's me, too. I am built for where I ain't.

"Five and Ten" Synopsis

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. He buys a magnificent home after being urged by his wife, Jenny, and finds himself hating her. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to Jennifer and Avery, his children. Rarick installs an odd genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, in his house. Jenny objects, but to no avail. Jenny begins to be intrigued with Ramon Lopez, a youthful gigolo. Avery comes home from school to beg his mother to help him get leave from his father to have a couple of years to himself. Jennifer likes the handsome and rich Barry Rhodes, and Jenny urges her to try and win him. Berry kisses Jennifer while taking her to one of Leslie Edgerton's parties. Jennifer is not welcomed very cordially by Leslie and feels humiliated. Leslie becomes boisterous when she sees Jennifer and Berry by themselves. Leslie says she is married to Berry and Jennifer goes home feeling shamed. Rarick plans to interest Avery in a new theatrical scheme. Ramon, intimating that he is neglecting his work to see Jenny, succeeds in getting money from her.

Now Go On

That was about as far as these two ever ventured across the chasm of the six years' difference in their ages.

Jennif was a peach, but you couldn't let steam off to her, because when you tried to talk she was always listening to someone beyond your shoulder who wasn't there.

You couldn't talk to Avery, whose mind was always on his own young stuff. Hard to make out what his own stuff was. But there was something to Avery, all right. The boy ran deep . . . he already knew the strange heartaches of seeing illusions tarnish and had learned his game of compromise. Life among the Raricks wasn't the joke he pretended it was. . . .

The "day among the Raricks" that precipitated a galling scene between Jennifer and her father began as any run-of-the-mill day for Rarick, for Jenny, and for Jennifer might have begun.

This particular one started for Jerry with a pain in her side. An annoying neuralgic one, against which she usually carried tablets in a beautiful gold and enamel snuff box (Napoleona) which she had begged from Rarick's collection.

Abominable Habit

The flooding memory of the night before, when she had dared, because the chauffeur was new, to drive home from the opera with Ramon by way of three circumferences of the Park, came sparkling over her in gooseflesh.

It made her shudder. It made her lift eyes that were still brilliant from the night before, up to the sound eating radiations of shirred brocade that hung in a canopy over the bed and then dropped in more sound eating drapes between her and the vista of six full length windows that looked out on Fifth avenue.

This habit of her early awakening was still abominable to her. Precious hours of needed rest even when they were filled with contemplations that were sweet to her, were wasted lying in bed thus, waiting for her day to begin.

How he slept! Deep in the cave of his pillow, with his face upward. "Little man, you! What do you know of me—here—lying by your side—sharing your bed? Nothing!"

A fear smote her. What if he knew more than she realized! That was absurd. He was not astute.

How strange, after all these years of the disillusionment of a love-life that had spluttered out like a feeble match, that a Ramon should find her desirable. It made her lie slim and straight in bed, with arms folded across her breast in the beatific attitude of feeling herself desirable.

The aspirin made one pleasantly at ease.

Pictures Death

What if that were not Rarick beside her, but—

She shuddered with a rousing distaste of self. Horrible, horrible, to lie there imagining . . . . There were certain scavengers of thoughts that must be kept locked in the inner boxes of the mind. It made one feel shameful to have a thought like that pop out. Just the same, the whole meaning of life would be changed and exalted if that were not Rarick lying there, but, yes, but Ramon! How horrible of her. How poisonous.

What if Rarick should die? No. No. No! And yet she could never really see the wickedness of trying to visualize the effect upon herself of the death of another. Death was one of the few certainties of life. Rarick would die some day. Either before or after her. If before? She was not wishing it. She was thinking it.

It was difficult to visualize life free of the strain of simultaneously wanting to remain impeccably married to Rarick and yet continue to be desired by Ramon. A life free of the strain of daring to ride three times around Central Park with Ramon because the chauffeur was new, and yet all the while dreading with undercurrent of fear, the indiscretion of it.

What if Rarick should die and his restraining hand were left off that household? What if she were herself, but free! A woman of terrific wealth, suddenly released from over 20 years of the indefinable depressant of a man who had grown rich with his lips tight. Would Ramon be lying beside her then?

She swung out of bed, shuddering, and, ringing for her maid, hurried toward her boudoir.

Her day began earnestly now, with a 9 o'clock appointment with the executive of a large firm of decorators, who was coming to inspect the ballroom, with an eye to erecting at one end of it a gondola-shaped stage on which Jenny proposed to give a charity fete called "A Dog for a Day."

At 10 o'clock she had a henna rinse and shampoo, a long-drawn but imperative performance that accelerated the pain in her side and made her nervous.

At 11 o'clock Jenny emerged from the barrage of cold cream to accompany Jennifer to a loft over an armory, there to enter vigorously into a fencing lesson with a master from Turin. When Jenny fenced, a curious flame leaped into her eyes. Jenny's "glitt," her daughter called it.

With her lower lip caught between her teeth, and her face in the tight vise of a grimace, she danced to the steel on the balls of feet that were surprisingly nimble. Her mother's fencing inspired Jennifer—who was lovely at the thrust herself—to peal after peal of hilarity.

"You're the spirit of war let loose, Moth, only don't bite your tongue. Down with humanity! Long live sin!"

Nevertheless, these hours exhilarated Jenny, not only seeming to help the pain at her side, but endowing her with a new sense of body buoyancy. She took an extra lesson a week now. "Go measure for you," she told Ramon. "I must at least be one-hundredth as lithe as you are."

No Social Invitations

At 12 o'clock in this day of a Rarick, the executive committee of the Manhattan Hospital for Crippled Children met at the home of Mrs. Bursilap Dobson. This home, a somber brown one that still occupied wide footage in a once highly conservative section of Madison avenue that was rapidly giving way to business, was one that Jenny had never entered on a social basis.

Curious, too, because Mrs. Bursilap Dobson apparently went out of her way to be gracious to Jenny. On these occasions of the weekly committee meetings, they exchanged doctor, steamship, opera-box and motor-car preferences, as well as lore concerning their sons who had attended the same preparatory school. Most of the time, at Mrs. Dobson's request, Jenny remained after the meeting for a bit of chat.

It stopped there.

To the exclusive Dobson functions the John Raricks were not bidden. "Where do they get off?" gritted Jennifer between her teeth. "It's town talk that her mother, old lady Emanie Bursilap, aged 246, keeps flocks of patent-leather-haired tame robins and feeds them meal tickets. None over 21 need apply."

The time had come when this horrid indictment could send a special kind of chill down Jenny's spine.

DAILY TRUE STORY Reno-vated

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Couple Divorced in Order To Inherit Legacy

"Why not get married?"

"I'll bite—why not, Bertie?"

"I'm not joking, Muriel."

"You mean you're being funny without knowing it."

Bertram Callowell Jones frowned at Muriel Anthony.

They sat on the rustic bridge and started down into the stream where minnows darted and flashed their white tummies.

"We're both goofy—and it's great."

"Which completes the circle around to where I started," Bertie declared. "Not being a great man, I repeat myself. Why not get married?"

"And my reply," said Muriel, "was why not?"

They clinched.

Why not? Both were young, good looking, deeply in love with each other and it was spring, with lilacs in bloom and bluebirds darting about.

"Therefore," Bertie said, gaily, after the clinching process, "we shall be married."

"And that will relieve Mr. Gilson Berry of his guardianship over me."

Bertie was an architect in the city. He dreamed dreams of planning vast estates and making a great fortune, but in reality he was merely an employe of a big architectural concern, and if it hadn't been for a small life income it is doubtful if he could have afforded to marry Muriel.

As for Muriel, she lived with Gilson Berry, who managed her property to the best of his ability. Gilson Berry was a kindly man but exceedingly close-mouthed. He did not believe that women knew as much about business and finance as a snail knows about flying—those were his words, in fact.

Pleasing Fortune

And for this reason Mr. Berry did not tell Muriel anything about her property.

An aunt had reared Muriel from the time she was five, when her parents died within a week of each other from an epidemic.

This aunt was an old maid. But not the fiction type of man-hating old maid. She believed in marriage. She expected Muriel to marry some day. And the combined property of Muriel's parents and the old maid aunt amounted to a very pleasing fortune.

Mrs. Berry, who had reared three daughters, was kind and understanding. Muriel would have been quite content to live in this manner were it not for the fact that she had fallen in love with Bertram Jones.

Bertram, or Bertie, as everyone called him, called frequently at the Berry home. Mr. and Mrs. Berry had no objections to him. In fact, they approved thoroughly of his people, had known and admired his parents and were glad to have Muriel go about with him rather than with some of the wilder young men of the suburb.

And so Muriel and Bertie sat on the rustic bridge and loved each other very much indeed.

Bertie glanced at his watch.

"Honey, we can get the license and drive around to Rev. Holton's in no time at all—come on."

"Oh!"

"What's the matter? Don't you want to do that?"

"Why — er — yes—honestly, Bertie, I won't lie—of course I want to."

One split second later he was holding open the door to his car and helping her in.

The town clerk issued the proper paper and wished them luck. It was a small suburb and almost everyone knew everyone else there.

The Rev. Holton beamed on them and nodded. He called his wife, stood Muriel and Bertie up in his front parlor just in front of the fireplace that was then redolent with lilacs in tall vases, and in almost no time at all Muriel and Bertie were Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Callowell Jones.

"Now we'll go and explain it to Mr. and Mrs. Berry. They like you heaps, Bertie."

Mr. and Mrs. Berry were on the wisteria-draped veranda when the newly-weds drove up. To them Muriel and Bertie looked quite as usual, smiling very happy, although Muriel and Bertie felt so happy that they believed anyone would know by looking at them that they were married.

So Muriel and Bertie went up to the veranda.

"We've done it, folks!" Muriel said.

Produces Proof

"Meet Mrs. Jones," Bertie said, with a low bow to her.

"Land sakes, I believe you dears are married," Mrs. Berry said, "and I'm glad of it—I know you'll be happy."

"Married?" Mr. Berry asked, with a rising inflection on the end of the word.

Muriel extended her certificate.

"Well, good Godfrey's goat!"

"What's wrong with the picture?" Bertie asked.

"About fifty thousand dollars."

They stared at Mr. Berry.

"Muriel loses that amount according to her aunt's will. Why in tunket didn't you tell me you were going to get married?"

"Well, why in all git-out couldn't you have told me the conditions of my aunt's will?" flared Muriel. Then she added, "I don't care—I wouldn't give up Bertie for any amount. Auntie was awful to think I wanted to be an old maid!"

"Let me see a copy of the will, Mr. Berry," Bertie said, quietly.

They went inside. Bertie studied the will.

There it was—the thing that was to rob Muriel of her fifty thousand. The deadly sentence being, in part:

"—— and said sum goes to the above named charity if my niece is married at the time she becomes 21 years of age, as I do not believe girls can know their own hearts or use mature judgment in selecting a life mate before they attain this age."

Starts for Reno

Bertie read it several times.

"Listen here, Mr. Berry," he exclaimed, and he began to talk rapidly.

Mr. Berry began to shake his head.

"I don't believe she would do it—and it's too late now anyway—the milk is spilled."

Bertie argued some more.

Mrs. Berry called Muriel in.

She listened to Bertie say: "Now you can save your money, dear, by getting a divorce——"

She interrupted with a "Never!"

"But, dearest, what's six weeks now, in Reno?"

"But Bertie, I want you, not the fifty thousand. I mean now that I have to choose, it is you."

Bertie argued some more. He took down the wall calendar and figured and argued some more.

That night Muriel and Mrs. Berry were headed for Reno.

So was Bertie—that is, in the same general direction, but he went over the line into the town of Truckee in California.

Six weeks is often a long time. It didn't seem to Muriel and Bertie to be so very long. Being registered and her attorney secured, Muriel did as so many others do, journeyed about a bit.

Always in the direction of Truckee.

At the end of six weeks and a few minutes more Mrs. Bertram Callowell Jones had no legal husband and also had the authority to resume her maiden name.

Couple Remarried

There was another week spent in journeying around with Bertie and Mrs. Berry, and then Mr. Gilson Berry, back East in the little suburban town, received a telegram which read:

"This informs you, as guardian of Muriel Anthony, that she is this date 21 years of age and unmarried. Kindly file papers to this effect in probate court and notify me.

"SARAH BERRY."

Bertie had written the telegram for Mrs. Berry.

Mr. Gilson Berry read it. He filed the papers and smiled knowingly.

The clerk of probate announced that he would protest until he investigated, as there was a rumor that Miss Anthony was married.

"That doesn't make any differ—"

Mr. Berry explained in words of one syllable that by the reading of the will, all that was necessary was for the girl not to be married when she became 21.

"And, by cracky, she wasn't," Mr. Berry cried.

"But—"

"Bertie showed me how to Reno-vate this mixup and you call in all the lawyers on earth and they'll say it goes," Mr. Berry explained.

And it did go.

Bertram Callowell Jones and Muriel Anthony were married the next day in Truckee, California.

What's that—"Remarried," you say?

Have it your way—they're very happy, and that's the right answer.

No 'Harmless' Fireworks

The Lockjaw Danger in Toys Requiring Gunpowder Is Something for Mayor Kline to Consider.

Eight year-old Leonard Wood III, grandson of Maj. Gen. Wood, is dead of lockjaw. "It was said the boy injured his hand with a toy pistol while at play a week ago."

This is something for Mayor Kline to consider, along with the letters that have gone to him from the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations, asking him to veto the fireworks ordinance recently passed by Council.

Council has maintained that the fireworks which it has authorized are "harmless."

There are no harmless fireworks, as the death of Gen. Wood's grandson proves.

Danger of lockjaw lurks in every toy requiring the use of gunpowder.

Swimming Season Opens

A Drowning Calls Attention to the Need of Carefully Supervised Pools.

Warm weather has given small boys—and others—the urge to go swimming.

An unfortunate Mt. Washington boy was drowned in the Monongahela Wednesday afternoon. Probably because no safer place was available he and a party of companions went into the river at a point where there was nobody to watch over them.

This fatality has prompted inquiry as to when the new swimming pool that the Department of Public Works is constructing in Carnegie Lake, Highland Park, will be ready. It was promised for Memorial Day, and it is a disappointment to learn that no assurance can now be had of its being opened to the public before the end of the summer.

Other municipal pools are to be opened tomorrow, however, and it behooves parents to see that their children swim in them rather than in unguarded places in the rivers.

Swimming, under proper supervision, is so refreshing and wholesome that it deserves every encouragement. It is to be hoped that all municipal pools in the boroughs as well as the city will be kept open on Sunday afternoons this summer.

Lincoln School Reunion

Such Gatherings Can Be Made Useful as Well as Pleasant.

After 65 years of service the old Lincoln School in the Twelfth (formerly the Twenty-first) Ward is to come down. It will be replaced by a modern and better equipped building.

Lincoln School deeply influenced the lives of many Pittsburghers. Thousands received their elementary education there.

Now a plan is on foot to have a reunion of the old pupils and teachers and school directors on the eve of the razing of the structure. Dr. Ben Graham, superintendent of schools, has been approached in regard to it and has promised his co-operation.

It is a capital idea, and promises a pleasant evening. Reminiscences will be exchanged, old acquaintanceships renewed, and curiosity satisfied as to what has befallen schoolmates and teachers that have not been heard of in many years.

Such gatherings can and should be made useful as well as pleasant. The old pupils owe it to their children and their children's children to look to the future as well as to the past, to consider what the schools are doing now as well as what they did long ago, and to use their efforts and influence to improve them.

Busy Electric Chair

Pennsylvania Is Executing Murderers in Unprecedented Numbers, But Murders Continue.

There is no danger that dust will accumulate on the electric chair at Rockview. It is being kept too busy for that.

They are getting ready to execute 10, possibly 11, murderers there next month. June will set a new high record for executions, and 1931 promises to be "a banner year."

This official killing of human beings by the Commonwealth is a disgrace to civilization.

There might be some excuse for it if it deterred people from committing murders. But it doesn't.

We had a good illustration of its futility when Irene Shrader and Glenn Dague were put to death last winter. The horror of their execution was given the utmost publicity. Everyone was talking about it. Yet the very day they went to the chair and during the days immediately following there was a saturnalia of murder in Western Pennsylvania.

With our busy electric chair we and the other states that inflict the death penalty have a higher murder rate than the states that have abolished capital punishment.

Justice Drew

Pittsburgher Elevated to Supreme Bench Has a Record Which Assures Good Service.

The appointment of Judge James B. Drew to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Sadler is gratifying to his fellow Pittsburghers.

It should give satisfaction throughout the state, for Justice Drew has a record which assures good service.

As illustrative of what kind of man he is, it is worth while recalling that in the concluding year of his term on the Common Pleas bench of Allegheny County, while he was presiding in Criminal Court, he boldly slashed red tape and did away with customs which had nothing but tradition in their favor. Thereby he expedited the business of the court and promoted justice.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS SACRIFICED TO UNPREPAREDNESS
1898 — 1918
Nelson Harding

Decoration Day reminds us
Of our past neglect and failure
To prepare for war and conflict
In the intervals of peacetime.

Row on row the serried crosses
Mark the wasted lives of soldiers
Hurried half trained into battle
By a blind and careless nation.

Golf-Widowlogues

"There's going to be a terrible REVOLT in this country!" remarked Mrs. Green, ominously, sinking into a chair on the Country Club piazza.

* * *

"The Communists will get you if you don't watch out!" laughed Mrs. Divot, without looking up from her embroidery. "Who's going to revolt?"

* * *

"The OLDER GENERA[illegible]ON!" answered Mrs. Green. "Y[illegible]nd I—and all the harassed [illegible]wn-trodden fathers and mot[illegible]ho are making burnt off[illegible] of themselves on the a[illegible]ar of [illegible]aming youth."

"Nonse[illegible]" mocked Mrs. Divot. "I suppose your Sweet Blessings have smashed the car again. But you won't revolt—you'll pay the damages, as usual. You fathers and mothers are all worms of the dust—and the natural human impulse, when you see a WORM, is to step on it! Don't blame the youngsters, blame yourselves.

* * *

"From the time a modern child opens its eyes it is pampered and coddled and handed everything it yelps for, from 'self-expression' to an airplane. Modern parents are the prize idiots of the age. They hold all the balance of power in their hands——"

* * *

"What!" exclaimed Mrs. Green, incredulously.

"They hold the purse-strings, don't they?" demanded Mrs. Divot. "Youngsters could not go tearing around the country and breaking the speed laws if their parents did not furnish them with sport-cars and gasoline. Boys could not flourish pocket-flasks if their fathers refused them the money to buy the stuff to fill them. Girls would not stay out until dawn, making whoopee, if the front doors were not left open for them to sneak into when they get back.

* * *

"It's a pretty sad state of things when a mother doesn't know whether her son is going to grow up to be a gangster or a gigolo. Or whether her daughter is going to elope with a racketeer or annex a playboy for Father to support. But don't blame the children!

* * *

"Blame the PARENTS—the silly, soft-hearted, soft-headed modern parents, who have brought them up in idleness, luxury and self-indulgence. Who have taught them 'self-expression' instead of self-control, and self-importance instead of self-reliance."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 29.—Thoughts while strolling: What became of liquid shoe polish with little sponge daubers? Basil Rathbone wears the widest pants legs in town. Board rooms in the brokerage shops filling again. Jimmy Walker says "tewday." Blatantly transparent light ladies.

Dorothea A. Bryant who finished Jim Curwood's last novel. New imported limousines all finished in beige. Scott Fitzgerald wrote about the first flapper. And John Held, Jr., drew her. Taxis piled high with luggage rushing uptown from steamer piers. And they called them "securities!"

Lowell Thomas, a Cripple Creek, Col., boy, who made good in the city. Another hotel goes Republican—the Manger is now the Taft. There are also the Coolidge, the Harding, the Roosevelt and the Lincoln. Wonder what you have to tip a head waiter to get a window table at Child's?

Berton Braley getting gray. As who isn't? With the last year behind us it's a wonder we are not all white headed. The Babe Ruth shop didn't last. Where's Ruth Elder? Edna Best and Herbert Marshall. Irene Bordoni is the only woman I know who looks swell with bangs.

An orange drink stand in cool green marble with gilt stools. Don't suppose anyone plays authors anymore. Earl Carroll's theater nearly finished. Built in back of store fronts, it will eventually have a new modernistic front. That lady looks like Lulu Glazer. And where is she?

Nearly all the staff of The New Yorker are small towners. The parrot scare is over. Dealers sell them again. Victor Moore, the comedian. The editor of a highly sexed magazine. A tittupy type who wears rubbers, carries an umbrella and attends morning musicals.

That new filling station on upper Madison avenue reminds me of a revered picture in Life. An American motorist pulls up in front of the Taj Mahal, waves to his gas tank and cries: "Fill her up!" Wrestling is pulling in the silk hat trade at the Garden. Wonder if Gibraltar is the world's biggest dornick?

* * *

Don Herold, who combines comical limning with equally comical scribbling, is back East for the summer. He will remain until swallows wing south and then trek back to sunny California. Mr. Herold likes variety in his over-the-continent migrations. He once left Los Angeles by airplane, alighted at Tucson and bought a second hand auto for a ride to Emporia, Kan., rode a motor bus from there into Chicago, then the Twentieth Century to Albany, whence he bicycled to Tarrytown and walked into the metropolis from there.

Someone once said—Voltaire, I reckon, for he said most of the things—that humorists were invariably travelers. It is largely true of the American brand. Mark Twain was a roamer and never so happy as when off to some distant port. Irvin Cobb has been almost everywhere save the Far East. George Ade lights out at least once a year for strange parts. Ring Lardner is not in New York more than seven months a year. P. G. Wodehouse divides time between London and New York. Montague Glass flits from the metropolis to the Riviera and Southern California. Will Rogers will not "stay put" and lately flies to get wherever he is going. Bugs Baer is a frequent visitor to Europe and California. Ted Cook and H. I. Phillips are gadabouts.

* * *

There is one notable exception, however, to the rule. The gifted Frank Sullivan is a homebody. Save for a seasonal vacation at his home town, Saratoga Springs, he is one humorist who scarcely ever steps off the island.

* * *

Turning just now to drop something in the waste basket, I came very nearly shedding out of season. It seems that Ray Long[illegible], aged 6, had left a false fa[illegible]—face-up-in the basket. And with an ungraceful leap, I almost jumped out of my skin.

MISCONCEPTIONS OF SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

It is never desirable to accept views because they are generally entertained without subjecting them to scrutiny. Indeed, some of our greatest thinkers shine most brilliantly in bringing to the bar of the most rigorous criticism many popular views which they find to be imperfect, unsatisfactory or positively erroneous, and so, harmful. Dramatists, who are likewise social critics, such as Moliere, Ibsen, Shaw, for example, were constantly engaged in exposing some popular view or accepted convention and showing it up for a fallacy or a lie agreed upon for social convenience.

These observations apply with peculiar force to science. One of the most familiar misconceptions regarding science is that truth, discovery, always comes like a thief in the night. This is true in some instances, of course; and usually is the case with scientists and inventors endowed with a very high degree of imagination and intuition.

In the overwhelming majority of cases scientific discoveries are intimately related to all that has been done before in the same field and along the same line. The discoverer is usually the last link in a long chain. Newton modestly explained his discoveries with the statement that he had stood upon the shoulders of giants. It was by arranging, co-ordinating and integrating the work of his predecessors that he was enabled to formulate the great laws of mechanics, governing alike the stars and the atoms.

Consider the invention of the airplane, for example. It would be the gravest blunder to imagine that the Wright brothers worked entirely independently of their predecessors. It would be nearer the truth to say that they were aware of everything of value and utility their predecessors had done. Many inventors had hit upon principles which are employed in all the airplanes now in use. Langley had made several models which flew considerable distances although not carrying a pilot. The machines he made which failed to fly were not far from correct, the fundamental principles by which they were constructed were sound. A few changes here and there, a more powerful motor, a redistribution of pressure—and the Langley aerodrome would have made a successful flight during his lifetime. Because he failed he became the butt for the jeers of the nation.

Another misapprehension prevails in regard to the necessity for great outlays of money to enable the scientist to do his work. It is quite true that expensive tools, costly laboratories, elaborate equipment are highly desirable aids to the scientist. Surely the scientist should be given every facility for carrying on his work of analysis, experiment and discovery. But science bristles with illustrations of men who accomplished miracles, made epochal discoveries and marvelous inventions with the aid of little or no equipment. The mathematician needs only books, quiet, a pencil and paper. If Fremat had had a wide margin on the page of a certain book, upon which he was jotting down his discoveries, he would have given the world the proof of a theorem for the solution of which, since his day, a prize of $25,000 has been offered. Madame Curie has described the miserable little shed and the meager equipment with which she and her husband and fellow-scientist, Pierre Curie, had to content themselves. Yet it was in that little shed and with that meager equipment that they made one of the most epochal of modern discoveries in physics, the discovery of radium.

Holding Companies Are 'Vicious Mazes'

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY

THE "INTRICATE AND VICIOUS MAZES OF HOLDING COMPANIES AND INTERLACED SUBSIDIARIES"—these are the words used by Hon. Joseph B. Eastman, a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, speaking recently before the New York Traffic Club.

Mr. Colby

He says they are not only "mazes," but "VICIOUS MAZES."

I have often wondered why it has been deemed desirable to cast the great basic industries of transportation and the generation and distribution of electric power, into such a vicious form. Not even the Cretan labyrinth was so bewildering as the holding company of today.

Take for illustration the Middle West Utilities Company. There is no particular reason to single out this company. It is neither better nor worse than many others—only typical.

Its president, Martin J. Insull, has stood forth in a rather manful way, by speeches on the radio and through the circulation of reprints of his addresses, as a defender of the interweaving of corporate relationships in the electric power industry. He takes the attitude of courting public attention, but there is nothing in the record of his company to indicate any disposition to deviate from the general policy of the holding companies to limit and resist investigation by public authorities.

HIS company, the Middle West Utilities Company, has 12 principal subsidiary companies:

1. Central and South West Utilities Company.
2. Central Illinois Public Service Company.
3. Central Power Company.
4. Commonwealth Light and Power Company.
5. Illinois Northern Utilities Company.
6. The Kansas Electric Power Company.
7. Kentucky Utilities Company.
8. Michigan Gas and Electric Company.
9. Missouri Gas and Electric Service Company.
10. National Electric Power Company.
11. North West Utilities Company.
12. United Public Service Company.

The first subsidiary, the Central and South West Utilities Company, has FIVE SUB-SUBSIDIARY companies:

American Public Service Company.
Central Power and Light Company.
Public Service Company of Oklahoma,
Southwestern Gas and Electric Company,
Southwestern Light and Power Company.

Of the foregoing SUB-SUBSIDIARIES, the American Public Service Company has a SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARY, the West Texas Utilities Company.

THE fourth subsidiary, the Commonwealth Light and Power Company, has one immediate SUB-SUBSIDIARY COMPANY, the Inland Power and Light Corporation, which in turn has FIVE SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES:

Arkansas-Missouri Power Company.
The Kansas Power Company.
Michigan Public Service Company.
Missouri Edison Company.
Missouri Public Service Company.

Of these SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARY companies, one, the Arkansas and Missouri Power Company, has a SUB-SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARY, the East Missouri Power Company.

The seventh subsidiary, Kentucky Utilities Company, has one SUB-SUBSIDIARY.

The tenth subsidiary, National Electric Power Company, has FIVE SUB-SUBSIDIARIES:

Michigan Electric Power Company.
National Public Service Corporation.
New England Public Service Company.
Ohio Electric Power Company.
Penn Central Light and Power Company.

OF these SUB-SUBSIDIARIES, the National Public Service Corporation has three SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARIES:

Jersey Central Power and Light Company.
Municipal Service Company.
Seaboard Public Service Company.

One of the latter, the Seaboard Company, has five SUB-SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARIES:

Eastern Shore Public Service Company.
Florida Power Corporation.
Georgia Power and Light Company.
Tide Water Power Company.
Virginia Public Service Company.

The sub-subsidiary, New England Public Service Company, has FIVE SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARIES, one of which, the National Light, Heat and Power Company, has a SUB-SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARY, the Twin Star Gas and Electric Company.

THE principal SUBSIDIARY, United Public Service Company, has TWO SUB-SUBSIDIARIES, and each of the SUB-SUBSIDIARIES has in turn SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARIES, the Kentucky Power Company controlling the Kentucky Power and Light Company and the United Public Utilities Company controlling eight SUB-SUB-SUBSIDIARIES, as follows:

Buckeye Light and Power Company.
Citizens Heat, Light and Power Company.
Fort Smith Gas Company.
Greenville Electric Light and Power Company.
Indiana-Ohio Public Service Company.
North Dakota Power and Light Company.
Northern Power and Light Company.
Western Ohio Public Service Company.

WHAT sort of a front is this for an enterprise serving a great public with such vital necessities as power, light, heat and transportation, to present to its huge body of consumers, to the Public Service Commissions of the 30 states in which it operates, and to the Federal Power and Trade Commissions, to say nothing of its own shareholders and the holders of its bonds and other obligations?

WHAT POSSIBLE EXPLANATION THAT SQUARES WITH REASON OR GOOD INTENT CAN BE OFFERED FOR SUCH A MASTERPIECE OF DESIGNED CONFUSION?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Just keeping busy does not indicate accomplishment.

You may work hard all day and see nothing as fruit of your labors.

That is one reason housekeeping is so uninteresting to some women.

They say, "woman's work is never done" and don't try to get farther.

Suppose you are home-keeping, can't you have a certain method of furnishing in mind for one room at a time and work for its accomplishment?

Have you not some originality and curative ability?

Can you not find a way to utilize what you have with little other expense to bring the result you think you want?

If it takes money can't you shave here and there and put something into a fund for the purpose you want so that it won't be felt seriously by the earner who must work outside?
